KELLOGG WARNS MEXICO OUR RIGHTS MUST BE PROTECTED

Will Support Calles Regime, He Says, Only if Lives and Property Are Safeguarded.

RESULT OF CONFERENCES

Statement Issued After Coolidge, Sargent, Borah and He Consult Ambassador Sheffield.

SITUATION UNSATISFACTORY

American Rights Are Disregarded, It Is Reported, as Mexican Officials Lean to Bolshevism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Secretary Kellogg in a statement today served notice on the Calles Government in Mexico that it can expect to command the support of the United States Government "only so long as it protects American lives and rights" and complies with its international engagements and obligations.

Our relations with the Calles Government are declared to be friendly, but Secretary Kellogg pointed out that "conditions are not entirely satisfactory" and that "we are looking to and expect the Mexican Government to restore properties illegally taken and to indemnify American citizens." The United States Government has been patient, asserted the Secretary of State, and realizes that it takes time to effect a stable Government, but cannot countenance violation of Mexican obligations to the United States and failure to protect American citizens.

Secretary Kellogg's statement was issued after two extended conferences with James R. Sheffield, the American Ambassador to Mexico, who came to Washington yesterday on a leave of absence. Mr. Sheffield has been a guest at the White House and since his arrival here has gone into the Mexican problem in detail with the President, Secretary Kellogg and other officials.

Conditions, as reported by the Ambassador, are far from satisfactory to the Administration and the decision to issue a statement was reached in a conference at the White House last night, which was attended by President Coolidge, Ambassador Sheffield, Senator Borah and Senator Smoot and Attorney General Sargent.

It was stated tonight that Secretary Kellogg's statement had the unanimous approval of all who attended the White House conference, including Senator Borah, who is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and who is not satisfied with the treatment of American property rights in Mexico. Secretary Kellogg did not attend the conference, but had previously conferred at length with Ambassador Sheffield and saw the Ambassador again this morning. It was indicated at the White House late this afternoon that the statement had the approval of the President.

SECRETARY KELLOGG'S STATEMENT.

The text of the statement follows:

I have discussed Mexican affairs with Ambassador Sheffield at great length. He has gone over the entire situation. It will be remembered that we entered into two claims conventions with Mexico under which joint claims commissions were appointed to adjust claims of Americans citizens for properties illegally taken by Mexico and for injuries to American citizens of their rights. These commissions are now sitting and will, in due time, adjudicate these claims. Conditions have improved and our Ambassador has succeeded in protecting American, as well as foreign, interests. Our relations with the Government are friendly, but nevertheless conditions are not entirely satisfactory and we are looking to and expect the Mexican Government to restore properties illegally taken and to indemnity American citizens.

A great deal of property of Americans has been taken under or in violation of the agrarian laws for which no compensation has been made and other properties practically ruined and, in one instance, taken by the Mexican Government on account of unreasonable demands of labor. Mr. Sheffield will have the full support of this Government and we will insist that adequate protection under the recognized rules of international law be afforded American citizens. We believe it is the desire of the Mexican Government to carry out the conventions and to indemnify American citizens for property taken. So long as we are satisfied that this is the policy of the Mexican Government and this course of action is being carried out with a determination to meet its international obligations, that Government will have the support of the United States.

I cannot go into the details of the many cases which Mr. Sheffield has taken up with the Mexican Government, but they will be worked out as rapidly as possible.

Gives Stand on Revolutions.

I have seen the statements published in the press that another revolutionary movement may be impending in Mexico. I very much hope this is not true. This Government's attitude toward Mexico and toward threatened revolutionary movements was clearly set forth in 1923, when there was such a movement threatening the constituted Government of that country, which had entered into solemn engagements with this Government and was making an effort to meet those obligations at home and abroad.

The attitude taken by this Government at that time has since been maintained and it is now the policy of

WARREN S. STONE,
Chief of Locomotive Engineers, Who Died Yesterday in Cleveland at 65.

WARREN S. STONE, LABOR LEADER, DIES

FORMED CHAIN OF BANKS

Did Not Believe in Forcing Workers to Join Union—Spent 25 Years in Engine Cab.

CLEVELAND, June 12 (AP).—Warren Stanford Stone, 65, labor leader and financier, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and all its far-reaching financial activities, in banks, trust companies and other business ventures, died in a hospital here late today from an acute attack of Bright's disease. Funeral services and burial will be held here Monday afternoon. Mr. Stone's wife was at home here when his death occurred. They had no children.

Next Monday, June 15, Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, was to confer the degree of Master of Arts upon Mr. Stone at the annual commencement exercises.

Telegrams of condolence were pouring into the brotherhood offices tonight from railroad managers, national labor leaders, chambers of commerce and other organizations from many parts of the country.

Mr. Stone was taken ill in New York last April, his first serious illness. He came home and went to a hospital for two weeks and then returned to work, going to New York two days later. He returned from a business trip a week ago yesterday and was at work until late Tuesday of this week, when he was taken from his office to a hospital suffering from an attack of uraemic poisoning. He was only semi-conscious from that time until his death.

Began as Locomotive Fireman.

When Warren S. Stone completed his common school education in May, 1879, his father wanted him to take up the study of law, while the son was inclined toward surgery. As a sort of compromise, if it may be called that, the son, in September of the same year, began firing a locomotive on the Rock Island Railroad out of Eldon, Iowa. Whether he sacrificed a distinguished career in law or surgery will remain unanswered, but the work he chose eventually made him internationally known and a leader in two widely diversified fields—as head of an international labor organization and President of labor's first national bank in America.

One of the characteristics of Mr. Stone in doing a thing was a determination to do it as well as any one could. In that spirit he began firing his locomotive and in that spirit he continued, although promotion was slow. He worked five years and nine months at the firing job before he was promoted to engineer. Then he rounded out a quarter of a century on the road by putting in nineteen years and three months at the throttle in freight and passenger service.

Through all those years Mr. Stone had innate executive ability, for the display of which he had little opportunity in the locomotive cab. But he had shown it in the councils of his fellow-engineers, and while still holding his job in the cab was called upon in August, 1903, to fill the position of Grand Chief of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which had become vacant by the death of Grand Chief P. M. Arthur while delivering an address at Winni-

UNDERWOOD URGES CUT IN SURTAXES TO 13 PER CENT.

Alabama Senator Opens Campaign for Tax Reduction as a Democratic Policy.

HITS CONFISCATORY RATES

And Holds Maximum of 15 Per Cent., Including Normal, Will Produce Needed Revenue.

CALLS ESTATE LEVIES HIGH

No Justification for Present Rates, He Declares in Montgomery Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 12.—Senator Oscar W. Underwood opened tonight a campaign for a sharp reduction of the higher brackets of the income tax. In a speech before the Alabama Tax Clubs in session here, he proposed as a policy for Democrats in both houses of Congress cutting in half the present surtaxes.

The Alabama Senator declared a maximum income tax of 15 per cent. would produce the needed revenues, and at the same time cause men with large incomes to pay a larger proportionate share of the cost of government.

Mr. Underwood argued that present rates were driving capital into hiding, thereby reducing revenue, and were a confiscatory burden on the larger accumulations of capital. He criticized high inheritance taxes, and remarked: "If I had the power to write the tax law I would go back to the tax of 1916, where the highest bracket of the surtax was 13 per cent."

Text of the Senator's Speech.

Senator Underwood's speech was as follows:

I come to make some suggestions in regard to taxation and its resultant effect on our civilization and our future business prosperity.

Since the very dawn of civilization taxes and Government have been almost synonymous terms. Government did not exist where tribute was not exacted from the governed.

Long, long ago the most cruel, grasping and avaricious of rulers had learned that through the power to tax he held the power to destroy the future productive capacity of his people, and that the laying on of undue burdens of taxation inevitably led to revolution or death.

There is a school of philosophy extant in America today that would destroy if they could the private ownership of all property and mass it all in the hands of the State. Though the avowed advocates of these political heresies are comparatively few in number, their satellites and partial imitators, who deny the faith, but who would destroy those they envy, are approaching numbers that may in the near future jeopardize the life of the State.

The very dawning of civilized life was the recognition of the home unit, father, wife and children, their sustenance and their protection. The accumulation of sufficient property (food and clothing) to carry on and provide for the future was necessary that the family unit might persist. The destruction of this property by whatever methods has always meant the destruction of the home life and the fabric that rests upon it.

Under Protection of Family.

For untold centuries the ownership or protection of this property, the resultant accumulation of the family effort, has remained with the family and not with the State primarily. The philosophers of the new school would take it away from the family and give it to the State. In a State where there is no constitutional inhibition it may be done by direct legislation. Not so with us. It must be borne in mind that, although there is a constitutional prohibition in the Government of the United States against taking private property without just compensation, there is no limit placed on the power of taxation, as to amount, in the Federal Government, and the private ownership of

Court-martial Is Ordered for 2 Women Nurses Accused of Smuggling Liquor on Naval Ship

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Two navy nurses will face a general court-martial at the Washington Navy Yard on Wednesday morning on a charge of importing liquor in violation of the Volstead act, aboard a naval vessel, the Kittery.

The accused are Ruth M. Anderson, chief nurse, now attached to the Washington Navy Yard, and Catharine C. Glancy, attached to the naval dispensary of the Navy Department. It is alleged that the liquor was brought in on the Kittery on one of her recent trips from Cuba.

The court selected by the Navy Department to conduct the trial is composed of Captain Yates Sterling, Captain of the Washington Navy Yard; Commander John H. Iden, Medical Corps; Commander Frank J. Fletcher, Lieut. Commander Ernest W. McKee, Lieutenant Fred J. Bryan and Lieutenant John F. Kennedy. The Judge Advocate of the court will be Lieutenant A. L. W. Gordon.

No announcement was made by the Navy Department with respect to the court-martial until after the fact had leaked out this afternoon. The precept for the trial, which will be public, was received at the navy yard this morning, and preparations were begun.

Lieutenant W. O. Horan, on duty in the Naval Communications Office at the Navy Department, will appear before the court in defense of the nurses. He said today he had no statement to make in behalf of his clients, but would deny all the charges when they appeared before the court-martial next Wednesday.

It will be the first time in naval history that women have been ordered before a court-martial.

CANTON INVADERS DRIVEN FROM CITY

HONGKONG, June 12.—The Yunnanese invaders have been overwhelmed and driven from Canton by the Cantonese forces, which are allied with the Kuomintang's most radical faction.

The Cantonese began the bombardment early this morning, using shrapnel, and about noon the attack started.

The Yunnanese General Tan Yen-yai moved in from the west along the Canton-Shamshui Railway, while volunteers under Russian officers attacked from Whampoa, where the shipyards and military academies are situated.

The Cantonese on Honan Island, in the meanwhile, had crossed the river and gained a footing. The Yunnanese then retired northward, leaving Canton entirely in the hands of the Kuomintang.

Earlier reports today had stated that the Kuomintang forces were drawing the cordon tighter around Canton and had been joined by the remnants of the army of Chen Chiung-ming, former ally of Sun Yat-sen.

The issue now is stated to be no longer one between the pro-Communist and anti-Communist sections of the Kuomintang (Peoples Party), but between the Cantonese and other provincials.

The Chinese in Hongkong remain calm. The local Government has suppressed a notorious Chinese Communist newspaper and has appealed to all peaceful residents to continue their occupations and to rely upon the Government for protection.

Thousands Flee to Hongkong.

CANTON, June 12 (AP).—Thousands of refugees are passing through the foreign concession here on their way to Hongkong and safety, the result of the week of civil warfare.

Hongkong steamers changed their schedules today, leaving earlier in order to pass between the two forts at the Bocca Tigre, the entrance to the Pearl River (Chukiang), before darkness. The foreign concession, Shameen, is the only point at which the Hongkong steamers now can land, all other approaches to Canton being blocked.

Thus far the combatant armies have not disturbed Shameen, although promiscuous firing in Canton has killed many noncombatants and injured many more. Several cases of looting in the native city also have been reported.

Military reports today included one that the Kwangtung army seeking to capture Canton had broken through the Yunnanese troops holding Canton.

Bolshevist secret agents here are said to be agitating for a general strike of workers in public services. The strike of Chinese seamen is reported to be spreading.

The Kwangtung army leaders have threatened to bomb the city from the air.

The fighting at present is extremely serious.

Foreign Merchantmen Shelled.

Foreign steamers were fired upon today as they moved within the fighting lines established by the rival military leaders. One Chinese steward on the steamer Salon was wounded severely when he was struck while aboard the craft.

The movement of exports and imports is practically nil, but silk shipments are moving under protection.

If the forces of General Hsu Chung-chi, who was reported to be nearing Canton with a Russian-trained army, arrived in time and join with the forces of Chu Pei-tak in assisting the attacking forces, the defenders may be driven out of Canton. Otherwise the Yunnanese will continue to hold the city.

Chinese Troops on Guard at Hankow.

HANKOW, June 12 (AP).—Late tonight the situation here still remains quiet, largely owing to the efforts of General Hsia Yao-nan, Military Governor of the Province of Hupeh, who today issued a proclamation in which he threatened to execute any Chinese who disturbed the foreign concessions. There was no repetition today of the rioting of last night, in which a number of Chinese were killed or wounded while making an attack upon the British volunteers.

It is estimated that 5,000 Chinese soldiers were stationed around the concession tonight.

When the coolies on the upper wharf attempted to resume work this morning

PLAN DRY SHAKE-UP TO BE NATION-WIDE

Prohibition Heads Propose a "Mobile Force" in All States, Capital Hears.

GEN. ANDREWS IS RETICENT

Calls Reorganization Reports Premature—Minor Officials Anxious About Their Jobs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—There are signs that a big shake-up is coming soon in the prohibition enforcement personnel of the country. According to the understanding of some of those who are interested in the situation it will mean, if the plan is carried out as is now said to be contemplated, the disappearance of the State Prohibition Directors and an overhauling of the existing plan by which several agents in each State are operating under these directors.

The date for putting the plan into effect is understood to be July 1, when the new appropriation act covering funds for the Prohibition Unit will go into force. This, it is said, would be convenient for reapportionment of the salaries that might be required in event of a change. Prohibition enforcement authorities and others who are aware that something is brewing are in great uncertainty as to their fate. It is said that even Roy A. Haynes, the Prohibition Commissioner does not know all the details of the reported reorganization. The new program is said to be under the personal direction of General Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

General Andrews was asked tonight about the reports that the State Directors would be eliminated. He replied that "any reports to that effect are without foundation," and when asked further stated that there was "nothing determined."

"Is there to be any change of any kind in the personnel?" General Andrews was asked.

"Nothing is near ready," he said. "That is all premature now."

One of the chief purposes of the reported program outside of a tightening up in the administration of the Volstead law is to make of the entire prohibition enforcement personnel a "mobile" field force which can be ordered readily from one State to another. The men under the State directors are known in official circles as "stationary" forces, with the meaning that their operations are within the States and the localities where they reside.

Drys who have become aware of the possibility of a shake-up believe marked advantages would follow an order making the entire personnel of agents mobile. One of these is that the agents will not be known among the people where they are working. Their status would be somewhat similar to that of postoffice inspectors who travel over a wide territory in their search for violators of the postal laws.

Another advantage seen in such an arrangement is that it would minimize the chances of collusion between agents and law violators and reduce the prospects for bribery, of which there have been complaints at times.

State directors would not be so essential under the change because the personnel now under their charge would be under divisional chiefs. The much discussed problems of political influence in the naming of the directors, moreover, would be eliminated so far as they are concerned.

The only officer or officers of the prohibition unit who would be established in a State, if the suggested proposal should be put into execution, would be those assigned for the issuance of permits for such uses of alcoholic liquids as may be permissible under the Volstead act. One of these to a State is thought to be the plan most preferred.

The divisional organization would remain somewhat the same at present, each division embracing a number of States, and the agents now under the State directors would be amenable to the divisional chiefs and their movements directed from the various headquarters.

Court Frees Ship Seized 34 Miles Out.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 12.—"The fact that sovereign government has the right to seize ships flying no flag on the high seas does not constitute a warrant or authority for a person supposed to be its servant to do the same thing. It is not true that the Coast Guard may do whatever the Government may do," said Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas in a finding in United States District Court.

He dismissed a libel on the American ocean-going tug Underwriter, seized by the Coast Guard cutter Cassin thirty-four miles off Block Island Dec. 7, 1924, with 811 cases of whisky.

When the ship was seized it carried no permits to transport liquor and was turned in at New London and libeled by United States Marshal Jacob G. Walter of New Haven. It was charged that the tug was engaged in smuggling, violating the National Prohibition act.

Owners of the tug said the seizure was made thirty-four miles off the United States coast and was without warrant of law, all evidence obtained was inadmissible and that violation of the National Prohibition act cannot occur outside of the United States.

GUIDER AGAIN BOLTS HYLAN TRANSIT PLAN; STIRS DELANEY'S IRE

Calls Board of Transportation Scheme Worthless as Applied to Brooklyn.

FORCES A POSTPONEMENT

SNARL IN ESTIMATE BOARD

Brooklyn Borough President Submits His Own Plan for Routes in That City.

Borough President Joseph A. Guider of Brooklyn, who announced last week his opposition to the Board of Transportation's plan for raising 25 per cent. of the cost of new subways by assessments, kicked over the traces again at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate. Mr. Guider declared that the Board of Transportation's plan, devised by its Chairman, John H. Delaney, was worthless so far as it applied to Brooklyn, and submitted an entirely different plan of his own for new Brooklyn subway routes.

Mr. Guider's bombshell was exploded soon after Mr. Delaney had begun a speech urging the board to validate the twenty-two new subway routes recently submitted by the Board of Transportation. Mr. Delaney, visibly angry, replied tartly to Mr. Guider's criticism, and after declaring Mr. Guider to be an "obstructionist," warned the board that he would not be responsible for any delay in subway construction.

The board, with Deputy Controller Charles F. Kerrigan not voting on the ground that the routes should not be approved "piecemeal," finally validated all the remaining Manhattan and Bronx routes with the exception of one running to the Harlem River, on which changes have been suggested by property owners. It referred to a meeting of the Committee of the Whole next Tuesday further discussion of the Brooklyn and Queens routes.

Guider Kicks Over the Traces.

"Before we proceed with a consideration of these items," Mr. Guider worned the Mayor, when the validation of the subway routes came up, "there will have to be a rearrangement of the financial plan suggested by your Board of Transportation.

"Also the routes which your Board of Transportation proposes for Brooklyn will not do at all. We in Brooklyn feel that the Board of Transportation has not given us the needed relief. I have alternative routes and must insist that they be thoroughly considered. I think the whole plan should be referred back to the committee, and that we should not do anything on it today at all."

Mr. Guider then handed the Mayor a map showing his proposed routes. One of them begins at Sheepshead Bay and runs through Bedford Avenue, Roebling Street, Manhattan Avenue to the Bridge Plaza in Long Island City, connecting with lines to Manhattan, furnishing, as he described it, "an ocean to Manhattan route."

The other route he proposed was a crosstown line, running from Lafayette Avenue at Stanhope Street to Broadway, to Lafayette Avenue, to Flatbush Avenue, to Schermerhorn Street, to Clinton Street and then by tunnel under the East River to connect with lines in Manhattan.

Mr. Guider declared that these routes would cost less to build than the Delaney route, which is for a crosstown line from Long Island City through Brooklyn to connect by tunnel with Manhattan by way of Union, Throop and Gates Avenues. He added that the routes he proposed would cross practically every subway, elevated and surface line in Brooklyn.

Asks for Time to Study Plans.

"You ask me to consider the Manhattan routes now," Mr. Guider said to the Mayor. "I object to that because the Manhattan lines are linked to the proposed Brooklyn routes, and the latter won't do at all. We must have more time to study these things, both the proposed routes and the proposed methods of financing.

"Why, no intelligent man should be asked to act quickly on this report of

'Smith for President' Club Is Incorporated in Colorado

DENVER, Col., June 12 (AP).—Articles of incorporation for the "Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928 Club" were filed with the Secretary of State today by Julius Aichele, John [illegible] Maley and Anna E. Hansen, prominent Democrats of Denver.

The stated objects of the club are to "promote the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, Governor of New York, for President of the United States" and to conduct a campaign in Colorado and the other States of the Union for the selection of State delegations pledged to Governor Smith at the next Democratic National Convention."

METROPOLITAN BUYS BARNARD CLOISTERS

Sculptor's Famous Gothic Art Acquired With $600,000 Gift of J. D. Rockefeller Jr.

IT IS NOT TO BE CHANGED

Barnard Spent Years Collecting the Treasures in France—Glad That Place Passes to Public.

With a gift of $600,000 from John D. Rockefeller Jr. the Metropolitan Museum of Art has just purchased from George Grey Barnard, sculptor, The Cloisters, Mr. Barnard's collection of Gothic art, at 190th Street and Fort Washington Avenue. Robert W. de Forest, President of the Metropolitan, announced the gift and purchase yesterday.

The purchase includes not only the art objects assembled with much painstaking and over a period of many years by Mr. Barnard, but also the building and the plot of ground, approximately 200 by 200 feet, on which The Cloisters stands. For the present, and perhaps permanently, The Cloisters will be maintained separately where it stands as a branch of the museum, according to Mr. de Forest.

"Obviously the acquisition is one which cannot be installed in the museum," said Mr. de Forest.

The collection of Gothic art in The Cloisters, concerning the future of which there has long been much speculation, includes between 600 and 700 separate items of sculpture, painting and other works, mostly of the French Romanesque and Gothic periods.

Some of the more important items include forty-eight sculptured capitals and columns from the Romanesque cloisters of St. Guilhem-le-Desert; forty from the cloister of St. Michel de Cuxa; twenty capitals of the Gothic period from the cloisters at Trie, and forty-eight from the cloister of St. Gaudens.

Salvaged From Pigsties.

Gothic sculpture is represented by a monumental torso of the crucified Christ, a large statue of the Virgin and Child and a sepulchral effigy of a knight in armor.

Some of the finest examples of Gothic art in The Cloisters were salvaged from dry stone walls, from pigsties and other crude structures in which the French peasants utilized the ruins of cloisters as well as rubbish of no artistic or historical value. Mr. Barnard gathered and shipped his collection to New York before the French Government put a prohibition on the exportation of such relics.

"The purchase has been facilitated by the public spirt of Mr. Barnard, who, for the sake of retaining the whole collection in New York and transferring it to our art museums, has foregone the opportunity of realizing a larger sum by its dispersal," said Mr. de Forest's statement.

"The plans of the museum for showing these collections are still to be made. They must be carefully considered. Presumably, however, at least for the present, they will be shown where they now are as a Gothic annex or branch of the Metropolitan Museum.

"The location has the advantage and the disadvantage of remoteness. The advantage is that these collections, covering a particular development of Christian art, can be seen by themselves in appropriate surroundings apart from any other museum exhibits. Thus shown, they have an interest, and particularly an esthetic interest, which could not be obtained by showing them at the museum in connection with other collections. The disadvantage is inaccessibility except by motor, a disadvantage which will be removed by expected subway extension."

Joseph Breck, assistant director of the museum, has prepared an article describing The Cloisters which will be published in the June bulletin, from which, Mr. de Forest adds, the following extracts have been taken:

"Some twenty years ago, during one

SMITH CHALLENGES MILLER TO DEBATE ON BOND PROGRAM

Governor, in Letter to His Predecessor, Accuses Him of "False Economy" in Office.

CHARGES LOSS OF MILLIONS

Declares He Found the State's Plant in "Wretched Condition" From Pay-as-You-Go Policy.

KNIGHT REPLIES ON PARKS

Republican Senator, by Radio, Calls Executive a "Political Whirling Dervish," Concealing Truth.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 12.—Governor Smith made public today a communication he had sent to former Governor Nathan L. Miller in which he offered to debate with him in public the merits of the $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent improvements, a project which Mr. Miller bitterly assailed in a letter read recently at a dinner of the Staten Island Republicans.

While the Governor was issuing his challenge on the bond program, Senator John Knight, leader of the majority in the upper house, replied over the radio tonight to the Governor's address of last night in which the Executive charged that a wealthy few were being aided by the Republicans in blocking the State's park plans.

Mr. Knight assailed the Governor personally, calling him a "political whirling dervish," and saying he concealed the truth, which, he insisted, was that the extra legislative session was summoned to retrieve the Long Island Park Commission's blunder of "improperly" seizing the Taylor estate at East Islip without having funds to pay for land valued at $250,000.

In his letter to Governor Miller Governor Smith took his predecessor to task for "false economy" practiced during his administration which had left the State's plant in "a most wretched condition" by the time the change of administration occurred.

In his letter to ex-Governor Miller, Governor Smith took his predecessor to task for "false economy" practiced during his administration which had left the State's plant in "a most wretched condition" by the time the change of administration occurred.

"You did practically nothing to bring the State's plant into proper condition and absolutely nothing to meet the needs of the future," the Governor wrote Mr. Miller. "I venture to say that this false economy, this failure to provide the necessary funds for permanent improvements, have cost the people of the State more millions than you ever claimed to have saved them."

The objection of Mr. Miller was on the ground that it would be perilous to change the present constitutional proviso under which each object for which the State's credit is to be pledged must be separately submitted to the people for ratification. With a "blank check" of $10,000,000 annually for the next ten years, as provided by the $100,000,000 bond issue proposal, the Legislature would go wild with extravagance, Mr. Miller contended.

Governor Smith in his letter said he was willing to trust future Governors and Legislatures to safeguard the interests of the State.

Governor Smith also made public a brief communication to Representative Ogden L. Mills, another Republican who has joined in the onslaught of his party on the Governor's financial policy. As in the case of Mr. Miller, Governor Smith offered to meet Mr. Mills in public debate on the merits of the bond issue and transmitted to him the letter he sent the former Governor.

The Governor's Letter to Miller.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY.

Hon. Nathan L. Miller, 61 Broadway, New York.

My Dear Governor Miller: I recently received a request from you and Congressman Mills to be invited to attend a conference I called for the formation of a committee to aid in the ratification at the next election of the hundred million dollar bond issue proposal. The interval between the receipt of your telegram and the date of that conference was so short that I informed you that I should be glad to have you and Mr. Mills at the meeting.

Unfortunately, I had to postpone the meeting by reason of the condition of my throat. Now that it has been postponed, I think it proper to call your attention to the fact that the meeting I called was not in any sense a conference to consider the advisability of ratifying the proposal. It was called solely to organize a committee to have it ratified.

So far as I am concerned, the time for discussion of the advisability of this proposal is past. I am prepared to wage a campaign to have it ratified and to meet in public or private debate any persons who, like yourself, oppose it. If, under these circumstances, you still wish to come to the meeting on the adjourned day, I shall, of course, be glad to have you come, if you understand clearly that it is a meeting of the proponents of the plan.

On the other hand, if, as I understand it, you are an opponent of the plan, I shall be glad to debate its merits with you at any time and place. I think it would be very helpful to the public if you and I discussed our respective positions at length at a public meeting in Carnegie Hall. If you agree with this, I shall be glad to suit your convenience as to the date and details of such a discussion.

Meanwhile I restate to you my rea-

Soviet Ministers Sign Harriman Concession For 20-Year Control of Georgia Manganese

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 12.—Representatives of the Soviet today signed the contract giving W. A. Harriman & Co. of New York the concession to exploit the rich manganese mines at Chiatouri, Georgia.

MOSCOW, June 12 (AP).—M. Djerjinsky, head of the Supreme Economic Council, signed the Harriman concession for the Government and George Tchitcherin, Minister of Foreign Affairs, countersigned it. John S. Elliott signed for the Harriman interests.

The contract becomes operative within forty-five days, provided the Georgian Government in the meantime liquidates the present State monopoly for the export of manganese which now controls the output of the Chiatouri mines.

When this is done, the $1,000,000 in cash advanced by the American interests against the first year's royalties will become available through Lloyd's Bank in London.

In a statement to The Associated Press, Djerjinsky said:

"I am delighted that the negotiations, which lasted longer than a year and which were fraught with many difficulties and uncertainties, finally have borne fruit.

"I am confident that the contract will prove to be the forerunner of other projects of a similar kind. We welcome American capital and American business men to Russia, and will accord them every facility and consideration."

According to previous Moscow dispatches the concession granted to the Harriman interests will give them control for twenty years of the manganese fields in the Chiatouri district of Georgia, said to be the largest and most productive of their kind in the world.

Soviet Government officials have estimated that Russia will get a minimum of about $62,000,000 in royalties over that period and that the Harriman interests will profit to the extent of $120,000,000.

The concession is described as the largest and most important active mining award ever granted by the Soviet Government. It marks the first entry of American business interests into Soviet Russia on a large scale.

A new American corporation will be organized to develop the properties, but no public offering of securities is contemplated. Associated in the financing will be certain Europeans.

The Harrimans will install modern equipment, increase the carrying capacity of the railroad connecting the mines with the seaboard, and provide adequate ore loading facilities at the port of Poti. These improvements, it is stated, which will effect a material saving, will cost approximately $4,000,000 and will require several years to complete.

Scopes Refused $50,000 Movie Offer Here; Stunned, He Pays $7.70 for a Show Ticket

John T. Scopes, who was on his way back to Dayton, Tenn., yesterday, where he is to be tried for teaching the theory that mankind evolved from the same parent stock as the simians, turned down offers aggregating $150,000 while in this city advising with attorneys and scientists on his defense. This was disclosed yesterday by a friend who was with Scopes constantly here.

A motion-picture corporation offered $50,000 for the rights to the trial and for the young biologist to appear in a production. Offers to write for syndicates and various others brought "the sum well beyond $150,000," said the friend.

"Scopes refused them all," he stated, "for he feels that the big thing is the trial, and that nothing else matters to him. In fact, he even refused offers of theatre tickets, insisting on paying his own way.

"We decided, three of us—Scopes, his attorney, Dr. John R. Neal, and I—to witness the Follies. I telephoned to my club and got three seats. On the way over Scopes asked how much the ticket cost. I told him that, coming via speculators, the price was $7.70 per ticket.

"'Good Lord!' he exclaimed, but insisted on paying. Frankly, Scopes didn't care much for the Follies. He is too serious minded for that type of entertainment. During the performance I thought I would tip off Will Rogers that Scopes of Tennessee was in the front row. I wrote out a message, and was about to pass it to the orchestra leader, but I let Scopes see it. He declined absolutely to enter the limelight."

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12.—John T. Scopes came to Annapolis last night accompanied by his counsel, Dr. John R. Neal, who introduced him to Dr. Jesse W. Sprowls, head of the Department of Philosophy and Psychology at St. John's College. Dr. Neal and Dr. Sprowls are old acquaintances, having opposed together two years ago the efforts to prevent the teaching of Darwinism in the University of Tennessee.

The conference at the home of Dr. Sprowls lasted several hours. When Mr. Scopes and Dr. Neal left the Sprowls home to pass the night at the home of Dr. Neal's brother, Captain George F. Neal, head of the Department of Physics and Chemistry at the Naval Academy, all refused to make any statement. It is understood that Dr. Sprowls has been asked to go to Dayton as an adviser.

sons for advocating the ratification of this proposal, which has been passed by a Republican Legislature.

The situation of this State with regard to its public buildings and improvements is a disgrace to civilization by reason of the penny-wise and pound-foolish policy which has heretofore obtained with respect to capital expenditures.

In the next ten years the State of New York must expend at least one hundred million dollars for permanent betterments and permanent improvements, all of which will, unquestionably, have a life in excess of a fifty-year bond.

Will we pay for it from the sale of bonds, thereby giving relief to the taxpayer of today and passing along some of the cost to the generation to come, who will have the full enjoyment of the improvements, or will we assume that, in spite of all the experience of the past, we will somehow get these vitally needed improvements by annual appropriation out of current revenues?

What happens now in carrying out needed public improvements? A great public work is started with a small appropriation. A new Legislature decides to progress it slowly and makes another small appropriation and at the very same session begins a new public work. We run into periods of false economy set up for political purposes and all public work is stopped for lack of appropriations.

The State is entirely without any plan. We live from year to year dependent upon the ever-changing whim of the Legislature for the progress of any public work for which full appropriation is not made in the first instance.

Record of Unfinished Projects.

The history of some of the urgently needed and incompleted projects throughout the State tells the story:

The new Sing Sing Prison was started in 1916. Only the minor buildings and walls are built. We need over $3,000,000 to complete the prison.

Several of our normal schools are a menace to life in case of fire and so dilapidated that the cost of necessary repairs is more than the value of the buildings.

We are paying $717,878 yearly rent for office space in New York, Albany and Buffalo. This sum would amortize the capital necessary to construct modern buildings in these cities. Eight years ago we paid $700,000 for a site in Albany, but construction on the building is not yet begun.

In New York City we spend $386,252 a year for rent. This covers forty-seven leases for housing State departments which are now scattered from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street.

We need additional land for Creedmoor State Hospital, a Normal School in Westchester, a Ranger School for New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, additional buildings at Cornell University, a new tuberculosis hospital in the western part of the State to relieve the overcrowding at Bay Brook, new armories to house and train a guard fixed by the National Defense act at 23,000 men. In 1909 we purchased Saratoga Springs Reservation; only a start has been made toward its ultimate development.

Contracts for the approaches of the vehicular bridge between Poughkeepsie and Highlands have been awarded; we need $6,000,000 to complete the bridge. This is a toll bridge and the tolls will retire the bonds with interest.

These are but a few illustrations of the plight in which the so-called "pay-as-you-go policy" has left us.

Need for Comprehensive Plan.

To cure this situation we need a comprehensive, systematic plan of capital expenditures and the means to finance them without possibility of interruption. I am referring to expenditures which no private corporation would charge to expense, but which any business corporation would charge to capital.

These represent the permanent improvement and construction with the life of many generations which may be regarded as expenditure of capital and which must be amortized under our Constitution over a period of at least the life of the improvement.

When a man tells me that we should allow suggestions of log rolling and blank checks to outweigh the safety of thousands of helpless wards of the State, in the preservation of the State's financial integrity in the expenditure of moneys for rent, and creation of these other needed public improvements, I can only say that he is weighing shadow against substance.

You have been the Governor of this State. Can you honestly say from your knowledge and experience that on the basis of the so-called "pay-as-you-go policy" any of us will live to see this great construction program carried out?

Do you expect to see the Sing Sing cell block finished or a new prison built at Auburn, or the necessary building constructed at Haverstraw for the crippled children or for the State schools for the deaf and blind? Do you honestly expect to see the State armories, which are falling to pieces, reconstructed so that they will last and will not be a disgrace to the State?

Do you expect to see office buildings in New York, Albany and Buffalo built out of current revenues, or the Poughkeepsie Bridge completed, or the unified State park program actually finished and available for public use, or modern buildings put up at Cornell, or the Syracuse School of Forestry or modern normal schools available for the training of the teachers of the State?

Charges Neglect by Predecessor.

I have no desire to be personal in this discussion, but there is one thing which I must say to you in all fairness. If there is a man in this State who should appreciate the soundness of the bond issue plan it is yourself.

When I took office in 1919 the State's physical plant was in a wretched condition. I did what I could to remedy it as soon as construction was permitted after the war and demanded that a policy of complete rehabilitation of the buildings and public improvements of the State be adopted.

You refused in the campaign of 1920 to discuss these matter which seem to agitate you so much now. You talked then about Article 10 and the League of Nations. You pledged yourself generally to economy, condemned what you called my extravagance and let it go at that.

After your election you cut down a number of the State's appropriations. You stopped building and construction. You did practically nothing to bring the State's plant into proper condition and absolutely nothing to meet the needs of the future. I venture to say that this false economy, this failure to provide the necessary funds for permanent improvements, have cost the people of the State more millions than you ever claimed to have saved them.

You went to the people with me on this economy issue and they decided against your particular brand of saving. When I came back into office in 1923 I found conditions worse than they had ever been before. I did everything I could to change this situation and to have the State face its problems in a courageous and straightforward way.

Relies on Wise Outlay of Bond Fund.

Upon my recommendation the $50,000,000 bond issue for hospitals was passed and adopted by the people. The $15,000,000 park bond issue was also passed and adopted, and the Legislature passed for the first time constitutional amendments providing $100,000,000 for permanent improvements and $300,000,000 to pay the State's share and to loan the necessary funds for the elimination of grade crossings.

If you as Governor did nothing to meet these problems, if you postponed these construction items, how can you prophesy that other Governors and Legislatures proceeding on the pay-as-you-go policy will not do the same thing? It is altogether too easy to stop public improvements or to postpone them and to take the credit for temporary economy, letting the next fellow inherit the problem.

I am going to be honest with the State in this matter and to see to it, if I can, that bond money will be available so that we can intelligently plan out what needs to be done with the assurance that it will be done, and that it will not be interrupted by false economy.

If bond money is made available I am ready to trust the Governor and the Legislature to see that the program voted on by the people will be carried out. I am not ready to assume that the Legislature will squander the State's money with the approval of the Governor if this bond issue is authorized.

I understand that many of your associates in opposing the one-hundred-million-dollar bond issue proposal favor the grade crossing amendment. There is no distinction in principle whatever. Each is based upon a sound business policy of bonding the State for the making of needed improvements largely for the benefit of future generations in such a way that these generations will pay their proportionate share.

There can be no political aspect fairly given to this discussion. This project originated in conference of State officials with some of the leading citizens of this State, eminent in public affairs, Democrat and Republican alike. Its details were worked out in conference between the Governor, the Republican Speaker and Republican and Democratic leaders alike in the 1924 Legislature. It was again approved by the Republican leaders of the 1925 Legislature.

I shall do my utmost between now and election day to have the people of the State of New York understand that this great plan for the welfare of the people of this State is not to be smothered by the device of whispering through the State the cry that it is my plan, and that therefore the Republicans should beat it.

It is not my plan any more than it is the plan of scores of other citizens belonging to both parties and devoted to the welfare of the people. So far as argument on the merits of it is concerned, as I have said, I am willing to meet you or any other opponent of the plan, and I shall be glad to hear whether you care to accept my suggestion of debating this matter publicly. Sincerely yours,

ALFRED E. SMITH.

The Letter to Representative Mills.

STATE OF NEW YORK
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
ALBANY.
June 11, 1925.

Hon. Ogden L. Mills,
New York City.
My dear Congressman:

I am sending you copy of a letter which I have just written to Governor Miller and which will also serve as an answer to your request to attend the meeting of the committee to support the one-hundred-million-dollar bond issue proposal.

I have debated this matter publicly with you and am ready to do so again at any time.

Sincerely yours,
ALFRED E. SMITH.

Ex-Gov. Miller Likely to Accept Offer.

Ex-Governor Nathan L. Miller, who is spending the week-end at East Hampton, L. I., when reached there by telephone last night said that he had not received the communication from Governor Smith. He declined to make any comment on its contents until he actually had received it. It is regarded as highly probable, however, that he will accept the Governor's challenge to a public debate.

CONNOLLY RETURNS, DECLARING FOR HYLAN

Queens Leader, Back From Europe, Says the Mayor Will Be Re-elected.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens returned last night aboard the Cunarder Berengaria after a five weeks' trip abroad, the greater part of which was spent in London and Paris. Other prominent passengers aboard the Berengaria were Booth Tarkington, the novelist, with Mrs. Tarkington and her sister, Miss Louise Keifer, who spent six months traveling in Algeria, Sicily, Italy and France, and Murray Hulbert, former President of the Board of Aldermen, who was returning from the Olympic Games Conference at Prague.

Mr. Connolly declared upon his arrival that he was for Mayor Hylan, first, last and always, and predicted the Mayor's re-election by a substantial majority.

Murray Hulbert refused to comment upon the political situation. "I'm through with politics," he announced, "and I'm going to confine myself to the practice of law." He said that the Olympic Games Conference had selected Amsterdam, Holland, for the next games, in 1928, and that in 1932 the games would be held in Los Angeles. Amsterdam, he said, was already laying plans for the building of a stadium similar to that erected in Stockholm.

Booth Tarkington said he had been abroad seeking material for a new novel. He said that in Italy he found people so interested in economic affairs that they had no time for music, and predicted that unless the trend of affairs changed within the next decade grand opera in Italy would suffer, if not entirely disappear. The Tarkingtons will go from here to Kennebunkport, Me., going from there to their home in Indianapolis early in November.

The Berengaria carried 896 passengers, 572 of them first class, 180 second class and 144 steerage. Captain W. R. B. Irvine said that the voyage had been quiet and uneventful. The ship was late leaving Southampton last Saturday and did not dock until 9:30 last night.

Prince of Wales Ends Visit to Natal.

VRYHEID, June 12.—The Prince of Wales concluded his visit to Natal today. Before reaching Vryheid the Prince visited Newcastle and Dundee. In the afternoon he escaped from the crowd at Dundee and climbed Talana Hill, where the first action in the Boer War was fought, and visited the cairn erected on the spot where General Penn Symons was killed.

Gov. Smith Gives 2 Hungry Cubs to Zoo Here; Coolidge Finds a Home for White House Cat

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12.—Two bear cubs that have occupied a prominent place at the Executive Mansion have been sent to the Bronx Zoo. The reason for their departure was that the animals presented to Governor Smith several months ago developed such huge appetites.

There was food enough in the Executive Mansion pantry to appease the appetites but no one was around at midnight and 2 o'clock in the morning when the cubs wanted an extra luncheon. So Governor Smith directed that the cubs, which were named Ike and Mike because they looked so much alike, were crated up and sent to New York. They arrived there yesterday and have been renamed "Pete" and "Joe."

One night recently the Governor was awakened by the cries of the bears. He stood it a long time and then finally arose, summoned servants and went out to the "zoo." He diagnosed the trouble as a call for food. A big rice pudding intended to grace the luncheon table next day, was found and given to the bears, who after devouring it went to sleep and left the neighborhood in peace.

A baby lamb and a baby deer have taken the place the bears occupied in the Executive Mansion zoo.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—"Blackie," a big black cat that has held a position of distinction among the White House pets for more than a year, has been given away by the President. His future home will be with one of the White House attachés.

Few tears are being shed by those around the White House over losing "Blackie." Besides not being playful or affectionate, this cat is a night prowler. His prowling around was not for social purposes but to satisfy his thirst for blood. He was what is described as a killer. As a result of this trait there are few squirrels and rabbits left in the White House grounds. Some of the White House staff say they notice a reduction in the number of birds in the grounds, and they blame "Blackie" for it.

It is no secret that "Blackie" never was a special favorite with President Coolidge. He became a pet at the White House about the same time as "Tige," the vagabond cat, which finally roamed away for good and has not been heard from for nearly a year.

Paul Pry, the White House Airedale, now wearing a muzzle because of vicious habits, has also been offered to a Secret Service operative by the President.

KNIGHT DISPUTES SMITH ON PARKS

Republican Senator, by Radio, Lays Special Session to Taylor Estate "Blunder."

ASSAILS SMITH PERSONALLY

Calls Him a "Political Whirling Dervish" and Declares He Conceals the Truth.

DEFENDS THE LAND BOARD

Says Tammany Will Reap Harvest of Patronage if Governor's Plan Is Followed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 12.—Replying tonight by radio to Governor Smith's similar address last night on the Republican policy toward the acquiring of land for State parks, Senator John Knight, leader of the majority in the upper house, assailed the Chief Executive and President Moses of the Long Island Park Commission and declared the Governor's demand for an extra session of the Legislature to act on the expenditure of the $15,000,000 park bond issue was an effort to retrieve a blunder committed when the Long Island Park Commission, with the approval of the Governor, "improperly" seized the old Taylor estate near East Islip without having the necessary funds to pay for the land, valued at $250,000.

Speech Bristles With Personalities.

Senator Knight's speech was broadcast, as was the Governor's, by Station WGY at Schenectady.

The extraordinary session was called by Governor Simth to consider park legislation exclusively. The only measures likely to come before would render available appropriations aggregating some $6,000,000 for the purchase and development of park lands which were provided for at the regular session of the Legislature through the Mayer bill, which Governor Smith found it necessary to veto. The seizure of the Taylor estate for park purposes is now the subject of litigation.

"Governor Smith is attempting to avoid a trial of a lawsuit now pending in which the court will probably say that the taking of the Taylor property was absolutely unconstitutional," Senator Knight said. The money enabling the Long Island Park Commissin to pay for the land and avert such a decision, he added, could be obtained only by favorable action by the lawmakers on the Thayer bill or one similar to it which the Governor would sign.

The address of Senator Knight makes it evident that the Governor is in for a strenuous battle at the extraordinary session which will begin a week from Monday. Clearly the Republicans are in a fighting mood. Where the Governor in his radio address observed all the courtesies and scrupulously refrained from personalities, Senator Knight's speech this evening bristled with denunciation and personal attacks on the Governor and on Mr. Moses. The Governor's radio address Senator Knight called a compendium of half truth and half fiction.

"Such an attitude," the Senator said, "is characteristic of this political whirling dervish (the Governor), as he turns from fact to fiction to suit his own political purpose."

Raises Class Prejudice Cry.

Senator Knight accused the Governor of "playing politics with the parks," of seeking to arraign the classes against the masses in his reference to wealthy land owners on Long Island who sought to obstruct the State in gaining possession of the Taylor property and of misrepresenting the situation to attain his ends. He declared that should the Governor have his way in relation to the proposed park legislation "Tammany will reap a harvest of political patronage on Long Island; Tammany lawyers, Tammany contractors, Tammany engineers and Tammany real estate agents will wax fat on the proceeds from the bond issue."

"Never in the heyday of its sinful graft has Tammany, under the guise of respectability, attempted such a steal of public moneys," said the Republican leader. "Moses of the Long Island Park Commission is only a false face of respectability."

He stoutly defended the propriety of the State Land Board exercising supervision over land purchases, so hotly contested by the Governor, and the feature in the original park appropriation or Thayer bill, which impelled the Governor to veto it. The Governor urges that supervision should be exercised by the State Park Council.

The State Land Board, Senator Knight contended, had functioned as trustees of State property since 1786 and would continue to function in that capacity notwithstanding what the Governor said. The State Land Board, he contended, was composed of the elective officers of the State who could be reached and disciplined by the people at the biennially recurring elections. They were responsible to all the people of the State, whereas the members of the State Council of Parks were appointed by the Governor and were responsible solely to him. To substitute the Park Council would be to change from democracy to appointive bureaucracy.

Senator Knight's Statement.

The text of Senator Knight's reply follows:

The State Constitution provides that the Governor may convene the Legislature on extraordinary occasions. Governor Smith has just announced a call for an extraordinary session. The emergency, or extraordinary occasion, if any exists, was caused by his own failure to approve a bill passed by the last Legislature appropriating $6,000,000 for park purposes. It is most regrettable that the expense and the difficulties which ordinarily come from a special session should be thus forced upon us. Through the medium of the radio and the public press the Governor has attempted to justify the false position he has taken. His speech is characteristic in that it tells half truths and draws unfair conclusions.

I take this opportunity to answer and present the position of the Legislature and the majority party thereof. The general purpose in the Governor's speech is to create class prejudice and convey the impression that the attitude of the Legislature in the different park matters has been guided by party motives. Nothing is further from the fact. At all times, in every reasonable way, since the various park projects have been under consideration in recent years, they have had the sincere support of Republicans and the Republican Party.

Indeed, if any evidence were necessary to show that politics has not controlled the action of the Republican Party, it is found in the very fact that a majority of the present Park Commissioners are Republicans, as pointed out by the Governor. Were we of the Legislature attempting to permit politics to control parks to the detriment of the common people, naturally we would have been content to leave the distribution of the moneys voted by the people for parks entirely in the hands of such Commissioners. As an evidence again of our fairness we joined in the passage of laws providing for the Council of Parks and various park commissions, which laws authorized the appointment of members by a Governor of a different political faith than our own. We joined with him this present year in the enactment of various statutes to carry out the State park program. He characteristically seeks to shift the responsibility to the Legislature.

Says Project Would Cost $100,000,000.

While this is probably the boldest political manoeuvre which even he has ever attempted, he feels the necessity of making this gesture because of the legal blunder which he and Commissioner Robert Moses committed when they improperly seized the Taylor property on Long Island without having funds to cover the taking of this property. Governor Smith is attempting to avoid a trial of a lawsuit now pending in which the Court will probably say that the taking of the Taylor property was absolutely unconstitutional.

It is no wonder that the Governor resorts to the use of high sounding platitudes in vaingloriously attempting to array the masses against the classes. If he were truly interested in the masses and the poor people he would not have taken the expensive and exclusive Taylor property so well described by him and which he admits in his statement to be located forty miles from the City of New York and therefore inaccessible to its poor people. If he wanted to help the poor people he would have selected cheaper property for his park site so that he could have taken more land and could have increased the valuation of the neighboring property owned by these poor people. He had an opportunity to create a larger and a new Central Park located in Long Island, instead of which he is creating a picnic ground for the rich which may some day become a shooting box for the exclusive use of the favored few.

It is true, as the Governor asserts, that the people approved a total of $15,000,000 for the construction of parks in the State of New York. It is also true that it has been asserted, and Governor Smith has not denied, that if the Moses plan is carried out in Long Island that one plan alone will cost the State over $100,000,000. It has further been stated and not denied that of the $225,000 allotted for the taking of lands $65,000 was spent for overhead covering the employment of a number of automobiles and the use of a private yacht. So much in fact was extravagantly expended by Robert Moses that it was impossible to pay counsel employed by the Park Commission. That was not denied by the Governor.

Reiterates Ottinger Charges.

It has been said and not denied by Governor Smith, in spite of his allegation of delay caused by other people, that the Long Island Park Commission has actually failed to pay more than $50 for the taking of land and yet Governor Smith pretends to favor the prompt payment of moneys to people whose land has been taken. The Long Island Park Commission and its counsel are solely responsible for the delay which has existed in Long Island. They have submitted but three parcels for examination to the Attorney General.

It is because of the illegal seizure of the Taylor property that the Legislature in passing the Thayer bill at the last session inserted the provision for the approval of the taking of all land by the Land Board. In doing so the Legislature has but followed historical precedent. It is properly using the function of this board as it has existed since 1786, which function has been recognized and incorporated in the Constitution of the State of New York. The Land Board represents the elected officers of the State who are directly responsible to the people. They constitute a perfect check upon the Commissioners appointed by the Governor. The Land Board consists of the Speaker, the Lieutenant Governor, Controller, the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, the State Engineer and the State Treasurer. The legal officer of the Land Board is the Attorney General. From time immemorial it has exercised supervision over the taking and granting of land. Governor Smith's assertion that it has nothing to do with parks is utterly inaccurate, as it has been charged with the duty of taking lands incorporated in the great forest preserve of the State.

The Land Board requires appraisals by competent real estate appraisers which are to be filed with the State Comptroller and provides rules and regulations for a uniform procedure to safeguard the interests of the people and the expenditure of large sums of money for land. But the Governor asserts that if the people adopt the new constitutional amendment the Land Board will be abolished. This is a characteristically inaccurate statement and completely at variance with what the Attorney General has said. Functions of the existing Land Board would be transferred to some other department similarly constituted of elective officers whose duty it will be properly to review the attempted expenditures of the personal appointees of the Governor.

Lays Delay to Democrats.

The Governor failed to point out that the constitutional amendment would have the effect of abolishing the State Council of Parks. Governor Smith again poses as an authority on constitutional law. In view of his unconstitutional appointment of Murray Hulbert as Finger Lakes Park Commissioner, a blunder which might have cost the City of New York $500,000 because of a special election which should have been held—we regard him as the latest but nat the last authority on constitutional law.

In the last analysis the responsibility for the proper expenditure of the people's money and for the taking of their land for the creation of their parks should rest ultimately with those whom they have elected and who are directly answerable to them. The Land Board incorporates and represents such responsible elective officers. When the Governor seeks to cast aspersions upon them he slurs the representatives of the people. I am sure that he does so now because, as constituted today, the Land Board is not of his political faith.

That was his mental attitude when he sought to camouflage the issue by placing the blame upon the Attorney General. When he spoke of delays in the Attorney General's office he did not dare to make direct reference to the present Attorney General, who is a Republican, but he adroitly used language from which this inference might be drawn. Yet he knows that the delay to which he refers existed and was caused by the predecessor of the present Attorney General. Governor Smith knew that this condition existed during the last administration, but because the former Attorney General happened to be a Democrat he was silent on the subject.

Yet in his so-called partisan conference of a few Park Commissioners and some of the legislative leaders, Governor Smith and Robert Moses admitted that Attorney General Ottinger has established liberal rules for cutting the red tape by over 75 per cent. They had to admit that such delay was reduced to a minimum and that so far as the Attorney General was concerned, Mr. Ottinger's efforts to see to it that owners of property were promptly paid for the taking of their property were eminently successful. Attorney General Ottinger has practically completed his work of examining park titles ready for examination. The stagnant condition which exists today is due to the Governor's veto of the Thayer Park bill making it impossible to acquire more lands for the creation of parks because under the Constitution property may not be taken without just compensation and due process of law.

Calls Governor "Whirling Dervish."

At this late date the Governor is compelled by inference to confess his blunder in an adroit attempt to put the blame upon other shoulders. In Governor Smith's radio talk he praises DuPratt White, Judge Clearwater and Judge Staley, all of whom are State Park Commissioners. These three distinguished gentlemen have all endorsed the Thayer Park bill and Judge Staley was one of the foremost advocates of the necessity of providing that the Land Board shall pass upon properties taken for park purposes.

Governor Smith has properly praised Dr. Kunz (President American Scenic and Historical Preservation Society), a park president, yet in the alleged conference of Park Commissioners he failed to invite him to be present. As a matter of fact, out of the eighty-nine commissioners he invited but eleven and one secretary. He failed to invite five or six presidents of commissions and in other cases he selected commissioners who were favorable to his pet plan. He handpicked his conference. He refused to invited those who disagreed with him or those who insisted that overhead charges must be properly audited. Then he glibly told the people that this conference was not political.

Such an attitude is characteristic of this political whirling dervish as he turns from fact to fiction to suit his purpose. The Attorney General of the State of New York is the properly constituted legal officer of the State, as was admitted by the Governor in his message in January, 1925. Since that time, in an attempt to garner legal political patronage, Governor Smith, to make confusion worse confounded, has tried to take away the powers of this properly constituted legal authority and to scatter them among his pet legal appointees. He is playing politics with the parks even down to the appointment of political lawyers. He is disregarding the principles which he has so vociferously enunciated in favor of the proper concentration of power into the hands of one individual who shall be responsible to the people in an attempt to break down the legal authority of the State for the purpose of maintaining his own political fences.

Asserts Moses Acted Illegally.

The Governor states "that this controversy grows largely out of the attempt on the part of the State to acquire one piece of property on Long Island." If that is the only point at issue the issue is one of law and order as against lawlessness and a violation of sacred constitutional property rights. With scarcely a dollar in sight or available for payment, Robert Moses, with the written approval of Governor Smith and with the aid of the State police, seized property of the admitted value of $250,000 and excluded the owners from such property. The question as to the legality of that action is one for the courts, and it appears that the owners of this property have brought an action against Mr. Moses for large damages. That is the big reason why Mr. Moses is so much concerned at this time and why he wants an extra session and funds to pay for this property.

The Legislature has not and could not pass upon the merits of this controversy. The most the Legislature could and can do is to safeguard private property against future unlawful seizure. If the lands in question are desirable for State park purposes and funds are available there is no reason why the lands should not be taken in an orderly and lawful manner. The desires of individual owners have never prevented the taking of private property by the people when the welfare of the people at large demanded such taking.

Says Move Means Bureaucracy.

The State Council of Parks is made up of the Chairman of twelve commissions having charge of parks in various parts of the State. Their interests are local and not State-wide—like the interests of the State Land Board.

The elected State officers are directly responsible to the voters. They are the representatives of the voters themselves. They do not have long and overlapping terms. The people can reach and discipline State officers at every general election.

Are we to change from elective democracy to appointive bureaucracy? Shall we substitute for the responsibility of State-wide elected officers, elected directly by the vote of the people, the appointee responsibility of a Governor's favorites?

Governor Smith wants to relieve his appointees from supervision by members of the board elected directly by the people themselves. This is appointive bureaucracy displacing elected democracy. Of course a system of appointee bureaucracy may work with centralized efficiency, but that very efficiency is brought about by the exercise of centralized power and this leads to tyranny which is the antithesis of democracy. This is not the way to make the world safe for democracy, nor even the way to make democracy safe for the world.

If the Governor has his way, if his appointees shall oust the elected State officers from jurisdiction in taking lands, then, by the same logic, his appointees should also oust those same elected officers from the other power of granting State lands to individuals. Then we would have the Governor's appointees giving grants of lands under water in New York Harbor and elsewhere, without any check by elected State officers and the heads of the two houses of the Legislature. The statement of such a power condemns it utterly. Why should the power to take lands be any less protected than the power to grant them away?

The Governor says the cure for democracy is more democracy. Then why does he withdraw from the public officers, elected by the people, a reasonable check on the expenditure of the people's money to the extent of $15,000,000? He attempts to compel the surrender of this legitimate power of elected officers to his appointees, who are responsible to him but who do not have to stand the test of the ballot box.

Holds Taylor Property Example.

This is not a fight between a Republican Legislature and Republican State officers on the one side and a Democratic Governor on the other. It is a test to determine whether the people's elected officers shall have at least the authority of passing a final approval on the expenditure of millions of the people's money instead of the arbitrary use of such power by the appointees of any Governor. When the people by revolution or constitutional amendment determine to give up democracy and go over to bureaucracy, it will be time enough to let appointees raise and spend the people's money. But so long as our present form of government survives, it should contain the substance of democracy as well as the form.

As one editorial ably expressed it:

"In a general way the question is whether the Legislature should control the general method for the expenditure of State moneys for purchase of State lands or whether the method should be fixed by administrative agencies created by the Legislature."

In other words, shall the tail wag the dog?

The principal objection to the requirement of land board approval seems to come from the Long Island Commission and, in particular, relative to the so-called Taylor property. It should be noted that the Thayer bill expressly provided that the approval of the Land Board was not required as to any lands which had been lawfully appropriated. Therefore, if the Taylor property has been lawfully appropriated, the Land Board need not be consulted as to it. So why the anxiety? If the taking of the Taylor property was legal, Governor Smith's entire argument is unnecessary because in that case the State would now own the property. If illegal, the necessity of supervision by the elected Land Board has been conclusively proved.

So far as the other commissions are concerned, the Land Board must under the referendum approve all of the land acquisitions of the Conservation Commission. This commission will spend one-third of the $15,000,000, or $5,000,000. It has already spent $7,500,000, with Land Board approval, and no one has ever claimed that the Conservation Commission or the State has suffered as a result. What the Conservation Commission has done the other commissions can do. The point is urged that two exceptions were made. One was a county commission—the Westchester County Park Commission, authorized to take land for a particular connecting link with the Bear Mountain Bridge; and the other, the Palisades Park Commission, was an interstate commission which does not acquire lands in the name of the State. In addition, it has large private gift funds.

Attacks Long Island Plan.

Another reason for having a central check is to curb unauthorized developments and expenditures. The Long Island commission is attempting to commit the State to the expenditure of millions of dollars, perhaps $100,000,000, for parks and parkways on Long Island. The total amount in sight as provided by the 1924 referendum act is only $1,000,000. Notwithstanding that, the Long Island commission has a staff of expensive engineers and has announced that construction plans for a "scenic parkway" were nearly completed. This parkway was to be 75 miles long and to cost $15,000,000, or $200,000 per mile. It would not, however, connect any of the lands already acquired for park purposes.

These lands are scattered. Some are on the North Shore of Long Island and others on the South Shore, and still others on the extreme end of the island. Some of the lands taken are absolutely useless for park purposes. It is apparently the purpose of Mr. Moses to acquire scattered parcels and to attempt to force the Legislature to provide funds with which to carry out his visionary schemes. Too many State and county highways on Long Island and elsewhere throughout the State need construction and reconstruction before the State should start out on a program of extravagant parkway construction.

Political lawyers and the title guaranty companies are heartily in favor of the Governor's park bill, which would take away from the Attorney General the duty of examining titles to park lands. A single search made for the Long Island Park Commission cost that commission about $2,000.

The fees of political lawyers and these companies would be enormous if the Governor's plan were adopted.

Fears Carnival of Extravagance.

Unless the State Land Board is given the power of approval of lands to be taken for park purposes we may look forward to a carnival of extravagance in the expenditure of the $15,000,000 voted by the people for parks. The Land Board in this situation will be the only check upon the tendency of unlawful invasion and legalized larceny of private property.

Tammany works in dark and devious ways. Tammany's hand is visible in the park situation. Unless the Land Board is given the power of approval of land acquisitions, Tammany will reap a harvest of political patronage on Long Island. Tammany lawyers, Tammany engineers, Tammany contractors, Tammany real estate agents will wax fat on the proceeds of the park bond issue.

Never in the heyday of its sinful graft has Tammany under the guise of respectability attempted such a steal of the public moneys. Moses of the Long Island Park Commission is only a false face of respectability. He is merely an alleged Republican pawn in the Tammany chess game. I agree with Governor Smith when he says that the parks of the people are more important than Senators or Attorneys General.

There is one thing, however, that is even more important than parks and Governors, and that is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Let the people know the exact facts.

VISCOUNT GORT GETS DIVORCE IN LONDON

Holder of Victoria Cross Cites Spanish Embassy Official, Quoting From Wife's Diary.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12. — Viscount Gort, wearer of the Victoria Cross, obtained a preliminary divorce decree today against the Viscountess Gort, who was Miss Vereker. She is his second cousin. The correspondent named is Louis de Silva, third Secretary of the Spanish Embassy of London. But Señor de Silva claimed diplomatic privilege and the name was struck from the proceedings.

Viscount Gort was married in 1911. He had occasion to complain from time to time of the relations of his wife with other men, but these incidents were passed over. In 1922 the Viscountess went to Spain and soon after her return in 1924 Señor de Silva came to London and visited her home three or four times a week.

Counsel cited a diary kept by the Viscountess which he said would provide the evidence on which plaintiff relied. One entry was:

"Louis's birthday. God keep him."

Another read:

"All day waiting a letter from Louis. Suppose nothing has happened to him."

On Sept. 4 Señor de Silva returned after an absence and she wrote:

"Louis looked wonderfully well. Perfect bliss."

The servants, said counsel, would tell how Señor de Silva was shown to the Viscountess's room when he arrived to dine with her, and an order was given that no one be admitted on the evenings he was there.

Before testimony was given, Sir Edward Marshall Hall, the Viscountess's counsel, announced that Lady Gort would not testify.

"Therefore, I shall not take further part in the case," he said.

Viscount Gort gave evidence and received a decree. He announced a desire to give an allowance to his wife, and the offer was made part of the official decision.

HIRSHFIELD ADMITS CHARGING PERJURY

But Still Believes Ex-Bartender Did Not Tell Truth, He Testifies in Slander Suit.

SAYS MAYOR NEVER ERRS

Declares Hylan Ordered His Police Inquiry—McAllister, on Stand, Tells of Raid.

Testifying in his own defense, Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield admitted on the witness stand yesterday that he had termed the testimony of Charles Tiernan, ex-bartender, "perjured testimony," when the latter had appeared before him during the Hirshfield investigation of police graft in 1923. The Commissioner said that he believed even now that Tiernan had not been telling the truth. Tiernan is suing Commissioner Hirshfield for $50,000 damages for slander.

The Commissioner's answers were evasive when Jeremiah A. O'Leary, counsel for Tiernan, tried to pin him down to a definite admission that he had called Tiernan's testimony "deliberate perjury."

"I believed that Tiernan was not telling the truth," Commissioner Hirshfield said repeatedly.

Tiernan testified on Thursday that he had been called before the Commissioner in connection with the investigation of Robert McAllister, the "Flying Cop," who had arrested Tiernan for selling liquor. The latter alleged that he had been "framed up" at the time, and that the liquor McAllister had poured into a flask as evidence was not liquor but water, and that a substitution had been made at the station house later. Tiernan also said on the stand that when McAllister, a noted athlete, had threatened him the Commissioner told the officer to "keep cool, the deliberate perjury of the last witness is enough to rile anybody."

Calls Him a "Fabricator."

Commissioner Hirshfield could not remember the exact language he used against Tiernan, and when pressed by Mr. O'Leary for more specific answers he shouted, "I tell you Tiernan was the cleverest fabricator I have ever seen, and if you had been present at the time and seen the impertinence of his demeanor you should have thought so yourself."

The Commissioner admitted having told McAllister to "keep cool," because, he said, Tiernan had made derogatory remarks concerning McAllister's athletic ability which had seemed to irritate the officer. Mr. O'Leary then referred to the letter written by Mayor Hylan to Commissioner Hirshfield in April, 1923, in which he had ordered the latter to investigate the charges of police graft made by Magistrate Corrigan. The Commissioner said he had made the investigation because the Mayor had so ordered.

"Is the Mayor always right?" he was asked.

"Absolutely," replied the Commissioner.

"Well, couldn't he be wrong once in a while?" asked Mr. O'Leary.

"He could be," Commissioner Hirshfield replied, "but he never is."

Commissioner Hirshfield insisted that his investigation of police graft had been impartial, and he denied that he had brought the Irish issue into it. In answer to Mr. O'Leary's questions he denied having tried tactics calculated to intimidate the witnesses who might incriminate the Police Department, and said that any remarks he might have made concerning these witnesses had been deserved as the witnesses had been mostly bootleggers anyway.

Was Served With Summons.

The Commissioner said he had not called Tiernan before the District Attorney when he had become convinced Tiernan's testimony had been perjured because the latter had served him with a summons and complaint within an hour after he had left the stand. Otherwise he would have begun proceedings, he said.

McAllister, who was the next witness, testified that he had raided Tiernan's place at 288 Ninth Avenue at the suggestion of Detective Sergeant Faust, who had told him the place looked suspicious. Coonan had accompanied him, McAllister said. As they had entered the place dressed as longshoremen he had seen Tiernan pouring out whisky for two negroes standing at the bar. McAllister said he had jumped over the bar, had grabbed the pitcher containing the whisky and had poured some of it into a flask to use as evidence. He had then arrested Tiernan, who had been intoxicated and abusive, according to the officer.

The patrolman said that he was now an investigator for an attorney, and that he reported every day at Police Headquarters pending a decision in connection with the charges against him of neglect of duty, for which he has been suspended. He said that Tiernan had provoked him by saying he "would get even if it takes the rest of my life." McAllister admitted, as did Coonan, who followed him on the stand, that he had taken drinks at other places in the neighborhood prior to entering Tiernan's place, but he insisted that he had only been gathering evidence to be used later.

Counsel for both sides will sum up Monday, when it is expected the case will go to the jury.

DAVIS CALLS MEETING OF BUILDING STRIKERS

Plasterers and Bricklayers' Union Officials to Confer With Labor Secretary Tuesday.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP).—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has taken a personal hand in attempts to settle difficulties between the plasterers and bricklayers' unions that is threatening to tie up $100,000,000 worth of construction work in New York, Chicago and other cities, and has called a meeting to be held in his office in Washington on Tuesday.

Officials of the Plasterers' International Union and of the bricklayers have been summoned by the Secretary to attend the meeting in an effort to iron out the jurisdictional dispute which already has affected three of the larger construction companies now engaged on major building contracts in the United States and Canada.

Secretary Davis, who was here today to attend commencement exercises at Mooseheart as Director General of the Loyal Order of Moose, is understood to have some definite plan of settling the dispute between the two unions, but he declined to divulge details.

"We are going to try to get together on Tuesday in my office," he said. "Both sides have been asked to appear. Until we get them together we do not know what can be done."

The plasterers' strike, called last Monday, was based on the old dispute with the bricklayers over jurisdiction of plastering contracts and was directed against contractors who, the plasterers' officials said, had refused to sign an agreement excluding bricklayers from sharing jurisdiction of plastering jobs.

Building trades contractors yesterday looked forward hopefully to next Tuesday, the day set for the conference by Secretary Davis with the plasterers and bricklayers. No further strikes were called by the plasterers, it was said.

peg, Man. Up to the time he started for Cleveland to take up his duties. Mr. Stone never had been east of Chicago.

Early in his administration Mr. Stone was confronted with a serious situation because railroad workers generally had become dissatisfied with their wages. The new leader handled the problem skillfully and in the end brought about satisfactory agreements. He grouped the transportation systems of the country into Eastern, Western and Southeastern sections. After reaching agreements with the railroads in the two latter sections his negotiations with those of the Eastern section became deadlocked and the matter went to arbitration, an agreement being reached on the basis of those of the other sections.

As Grand Chief of the engineers' brotherhood Mr. Stone took an active part in the campaign of the railroad employes' organizations for the Adamson law. In all negotiations he earned a reputation for always keeping his word and never losing his temper, and although he became one of the most prominent labor leaders in the country he had gained the distinction of never having been called upon to lead a strike. He was quoted once as having said: "It is a fundamental principle without which no labor organization can hope to exist that it must carry out its contracts."

One of Mr. Stone's early achievements in behalf of the engineers was the erection of the brotherhood fourteen-story office building in Cleveland. It paid for itself in ten years, at the end of which time it was valued at more than $3,000,000. Another feature of his administration was compulsory life insurance for all engineers. During more than twenty years as chief executive of the brotherhood it increased from a membership of 38,000 with $69,000,000 insurance in effect to nearly 90,000 members carrying approximately $200,000,000 of life, sickness and accident insurance.

Organizes Cooperative Bank.

With wide experience in money matters as a result of having handled millions of dollars of brotherhood dues and insurance, and having made an exhaustive study of cooperative banks throughout the world, Mr. Stone presented a plan for an engineers' cooperative bank at the triennial convention in 1918 and was authorized to start such a bank in Cleveland. It was opened Nov. 11, 1920, with a capital of $500,000 and a surplus of $100,000. Three years later its resources were nearly $25,000,000. This was followed by the establishment of several other banks throughout the country, controlled by the brotherhood, and in addition a substantial interest was acquired in the Empire Trust Company of New York.

Because the brotherhood cooperative bank could handle only a limited amount of business under the restrictions of the national banking laws, the Brotherhood Holding Company, conceived by Mr. Stone, was incorporated in 1922 for $1,000,000, the stock being sold entirely to engineers. A year later the Brotherhood Investment Company was incorporated with a capital of $10,000,000. The brotherhood retained 51 per cent. of the common stock of the enterprises. A twenty-one-story building for the bank was erected in Cleveland and the Brotherhood Building Association acquired a seventeen-story building in the same city.

Under Mr. Stone's guidance the engineers, as individuals, invested more than $2,000,000 in coal mine properties in Kentucky and West Virginia and financed a mail order store on a profit-sharing basis to provide themselves with the necessaries of life.

Mr. Stone was born on a farm near Ainsworth, Iowa, Feb. 1, 1860. As a boy he worked on the farm in the Summer and attended a country school three months in the Winter. He became a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in 1884, six months after being promoted to engineer. His ability and his interest in the organization were recognized by his election as Secretary-Treasurer of his local division. Then he was made head of the local Grievance Committee and later Chairman of the Central Committee of Adjustment for the brotherhood of the entire Rock Island system.

When he became head of the brotherhood he made his home in Cleveland and took an active part in all its civic enterprises, being especially interested in educational affairs.

In October, 1884, Mr. Stone married Miss Carrie E. Newell of Agency, Iowa.

Within three and a half years of its entrance into finance the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers controlled thirteen banks and investment companies, and President Stone then prophesied that within ten years it would have a chain of fifty banks in operation from the Atlantic to the Pacific. One of the important reasons for this program was thus stated by Mr. Stone:

"There is an identity of interest between railroad workers and railroad owners, but hitherto there has been no way of expressing that identity. When there is trouble the owners have been inaccessible to us. They were to be found in Wall Street, no matter where the road in question was located. So we decided to buy into 'Wall Street.' Now we can sit at the same table with these men and talk things over."

Brotherhood's Assets $150,000,000.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, through its ownership of 51 per cent. or more of the stock, controls enterprises with assets of approximately $150,000,000.

These include the Empire Trust Company, New York, resources of $82,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Cooperative National Bank, Cleveland, resources $28,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Cooperative Trust Company, New York, resources $6,650,000; the Philadelphia B. of L. E. Cooperative Bank, Birmingham (Ala.) Cooperative Bank, Spokane (Wash.) Cooperative Bank, Seattle (Wash.) Cooperative Bank, Tacoma (Wash.) Cooperative Bank, Portland (Ore.) Cooperative Bank, B. of L. E. National Bank of Boston, Transportation Brotherhood National Bank of Minneapolis, People's Cooperative State Bank of Hammond, Ind.; Labor Bank of Montana, Three Forks, Mont., and Farmers and Workingmen's Savings Bank, Jackson, Mich.

Finance Companies: Brotherhood Investment Company, Cleveland, resources $10,000,000; Brotherhood Holding Company, Cleveland, resources $1,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities Corporation, New York; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities Corporation of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Southern Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities Corporation, Birmingham, and Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company.

Office buildings: Equitable Building of New York, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Building, Cleveland, valued at $4,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Cooperative National Bank Building, Cleveland, valued at $6,000,000; Euclid Avenue Building of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Cooperative National Bank, Cleveland, valued at $3,000,000, and several other office buildings occupied by brotherhood banks.

Opposed to the Closed Shop.

The views of Mr. Stone were not always in accord with those of the leaders of other large groups of organized labor. It is well known that none of the four great railroad unions belongs to the American Federation of Labor, the railroad workers avoiding such an alliance on account of the difficulty of adjusting the resulting rights and privileges of the many crafts involved. A year ago the Federation of Labor convention at El Paso unanimously passed a resolution demanding that the Coal River Collieries in West Virginia, of which Mr. Stone was Chairman of the board, cease employing non-union miners. On several occasions Mr. Stone said that he was opposed to the closed shop.

Mr. Stone was for years a friend of Senator La Follette and a believer in his political theories. He was one of the chief supporters of the Third Party movement in the last Presidential campaign.

Firemen's President Pays Tribute.

DETROIT, June 12 (AP).—David B. Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, tonight expressed the sorrow of his organization upon the death of Warren S. Stone, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, an allied association.

"The labor world will miss him," Robertson said. "The loss of his counsel, advice and wonderful leadership will be seriously felt by all labor organizations."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen tomorrow will name a delegation to attend Stone's funeral and other appropriate steps will be taken by the brotherhood, holding its thirtieth triennial convention here.

DOROTHY PERKINS TO TELL OF KILLING

Accused Girl Will Testify in Her Own Behalf at Trial Monday Morning.

CONNORS CALLED TO STAND

Young Defendant Faints as He Gives Evidence—Court Grants Motion for Recess.

Dorothy Perkins will tell her own story on the witness stand on Monday, according to a statement made by her attorney, Sidney R. Lash, before Judge McIntyre yesterday in General Sessions. The seventeen-year-old girl is on trial for murder in the first degree as a result of the shooting of Thomas Templeton during a party at her home on the night of Feb. 14.

Mr. Lash, asking for a recess at the afternoon session, said he had finished the case for the defense except for hearing the defendant, and that he wanted her to take the witness stand when she could tell a continuous story. Only a few minutes before the young defendant had fainted and was carried from the courtroom, causing the trial to be suspended twenty minutes. This fact was believed to have influenced the Judge in granting her attorney's request, and he declared a recess until 10:30 Monday morning.

Permission was granted to the attorney to see his client in her cell today and tomorrow. Mr. Lash told the Court that his direct examination of the girl would take only fifteen minutes.

The feature at yesterday's session was the appearance of Michael Connors on the witness stand. Connors had been alluded to by almost every witness as the married man with whom Dorothy Perkins "went around." Witnesses also had testified that the girl's infatuation for Connors had caused bad feeling on the part of her father and Templeton, the dead man. Connors was sentenced in March to serve six months in the Workhouse for beating his wife. He was brought from there to the Tombs to testify.

The young girl defendant, who had been a quiet witness to the proceedings all day, became agitated when Connors was called as a witness. As he appeared from behind the partition beside the witness box she stiffened, took one brief look at him, and then her head fell on her arms, outstretched on the table before her.

In the cross-examination, Assistant District Attorney McDonald tried to get Connors to identify a letter which his questions implied he believed Dorothy had sent to Connors after the shooting. Connors denied receiving the letter. Suddenly it was noticed that the girl was slipping from her chair. Her attorney grasped her arms and raised her. She had fainted, and two court officers carried her out through the prisoners' entrance to an anteroom, where a physician attended her.

Trial Stopped Twenty Minutes.

The trial was suspended and the jury left the courtroom. It was 2:55 when the girl collapsed. She returned at 3:15, walking without assistance. After she took her seat she appeared to have no difficulty in looking at Connors, and for most of the remainder of the time he was on the witness stand she looked straight at him.

The defense scored an important point when former Police Captain William A. Jones, a firearms expert in the Police Department until he retired, identified a hole in the coat which the accused girl's father wore on the night of the party as a bullet hole, and stains on the coat as having been made by the discharge of a pistol.

The defense has contended that the shot which killed Templeton was fired during a scuffle for possession of the pistol between Dorothy and her father, with her mother holding the father's arms. Mr. McDonald, who accepted Captain Jones's qualification as an expert, saying he was "one of the best men on firearms in the country," did not succeed in upsetting his testimony on cross-examination. He brought out, however, that there were no marks on the sleeve of the coat, and this, the witness said, indicated that the sleeve had been at least six inches from the coat when the pistol was fired.

It was brought out in Connors's testimony that Dorothy Perkins had visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keating at 828 Greenwich Street, where he had taken a room a few days before the shooting after leaving the home at 566 West 126th Street, where he lived with his wife. He saw the girl there and talked with her. She was with another girl. She invited him to come to the party, he said, but he declined. He testified that her father had asked him the night before to come to the party.

Admits Prison Sentence.

On cross-examination Mr. McDonald tried to hold Connors to a statement made after the shooting, according to the District Attorney, that he saw the girl at 8 o'clock. Connors insisted it was about 6 o'clock. He said also he had seen her after the shooting, but denied she had told him she had done the shooting.

Connors said Mr. Keating came to his room and told him there had been "a shooting affair in Jane Street," and that he had better go home or they might try to implicate him. He said he had gone to his wife's home about 2:30 in the morning.

The witness admitted he had served time in Atlanta for robbing the mails, and that his wife had been convicted of grand larceny and is now on parole.

Mrs. Letitia Dunlop, aunt of the defendant, concluded her testimony begun on Thursday. In general, she corroborated the evidence given by Dorothy's mother.

Miss Anna Haughton of 42 Eighth Avenue, a friend of the Perkins children, testified that she had met Templeton, his brother, Harsel, and Brown when they arrived at the party and had taken their coats. She told of drinks being served.

Harold Perkins, 20 years old, brother of the defendant, testified to hearing Templeton say to his sister, "Well, Dot, if we can't be sweethearts, we can be friends, anyway," and of his sister's replying in the affirmative.

Young Perkins was the last witness at the morning session, and after he left the stand he was in a position near the grill behind which prisoners pass back and forth to the court room. As his sister went out he pressed near her, nodded and smiled, and said something which was not heard.

ARRESTS IN TURKEY REVEAL WIDE PLOT

President Ali Bey Exposes Secret Society Seeking to Restore Wahid to the Throne.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 12.—The existence of a secret society similar to the Ku Klux Klan, having for its purpose the restoration to the throne in Turkey of Sultan Wahid Ed Din, has been revealed in a statement by Ali Bey, President of the Angora Tribunal of Independence.

The organization also hopes for the reestablishment of the Ottoman caliphate, autonomy of Kurdistan, and the return of the capital to Constantinople.

The society was founded by the Sultan just before the flight from Constantinople in November, 1922. It comprises many men on the list of 150 names to which the Angora Government refused to extend amnesty. Sultan Wahid in the organization bears the title of Servant of Islam and Benefactor of Humanity, and governs the "klan" through a committee of twelve called the Council of Apostles.

It is charged the society is being backed by Britain.

Ali Bey's statement further charges that Sultan Wahid is responsible for the Kurdish insurrection.

Numerous arrests were made the day following the discovery of the "klan." Lutifi Fikri Bey, leader of the Turkish bar; Ali Kemal Pasha, former commander of the gendarmerie; Jemil Molla, former Imperial Minister of Justice; Sabri Pasha and five others were arrested and sent to Angora. More arrests are expected, according to the semi-official Jumhuriet.

The Tribunal of Independence is believed to have drawn up a long list of persons who have been working wittingly or unwittingly against the security of Turkey. A widespread reactionary conspiracy is believed back of the discovery of the "klan," and the arrests, it is understood, were in line with the Government's decree suppressing the Republican Progressive Party, charged with helping to provoke the reactionary movement.

The public has been warned against mixing religion and politics in connection with discovery of the plot.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN RUM HIJACKING CASE

Prosecutor to Ask for Retrial in November—Ex-State Trooper to Be Sentenced Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., June 12.—The jury which has been trying Thomas Smith, his brother, Frank Smith, and William Shaber for burglary in connection with the attempted hijacking of 100 cases of liquor last April on the Benson estate, Montauk Point, reported a disagreement today and was discharged. District Attorney George W. Hildreth of Suffolk County said that he would move for a retrial in November.

The defendants and William Delmadge, former State Trooper, were indicted on a charge of attempting to hold up Frank Dickerson, caretaker at the estate. Dickerson said that the defendants tried to get 100 cases of liquor from a $250,000 cache of Scotch whisky maintained by a Captain Walker, described as an agent of an English rum-running syndicate. Delmadge, who was wounded in the affray that followed the attempt to get the liquor, pleaded guilty on Wednesday to accepting a bribe. He also was indicted for burglary but was not on trial with the Smith brothers and Shaber.

The jury, it was reported, stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. Delmadge will be sentenced on Monday by County Judge Furman.

FEDERAL COURT CASES DOUBLE IN TEN YEARS

Sargent Reports 114,000 Actions Were Terminated in Ten Months, but 125,000 Were Started.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Attorney General Sargent today made public a statistical recapitulation of the business at present transacted by the United States courts. The information was presented by the Attorney General to the annual conference of senior Circuit Judges, which was presided over by Chief Justice Taft and which has just been concluded here.

The magnitude of the business is shown by the cases and other proceedings pending at the close of April, 1925, which reached the enormous total of 162,675. This figure does not include more than 6,000 cases arising under the Selective Draft act and nearly 4,000 inactive private suits. Nearly 18,000 of these cases are pending in the Southern District of New York alone and more than 11,000 in the Easetrn District of that State.

During the period of ten months commencing July 1, 1924, and ended April 30, 1925, more than 114,000 cases were terminated, but, on the other hand, nearly 126,000 were commenced during the same period, so that, notwithstanding the extraordinary activity of these courts, the dockets are further congested than they were at the opening of the current fiscal year.

The number of cases begun ten years ago, during the fiscal year 1915, was only 62,768.

100 OFFER TO GIVE BLOOD.

Doctors Forced to Weed Out Volunteers to Aid Stricken Teacher.

Special to The New York Times.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., June 12.—Fifty students of the Monroe Street School, of which Myron W. Brooks Jr., is the principal, as well as fifty students and a number of teachers of the Ridgewood High School, volunteered to give their blood today if a transfusion is necessary to save the life of Brooks.

While conducting assembly this morning Brooks was stricken with violent fainting spells. Shortly afterward a hemorrhage of the stomach developed. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson, by Dr. Fred Gelburt. Dr. Thomas A. Dingman said that a blood transfusion might be needed.

As soon as this announcement was made 100 students came forward and said that they wanted to give their blood. Five members of the high school, four of the boys from Brooks's own school, and Principal Robert Meyer of the Beach Union Elementary School were selected. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for a physical examination. Then they went home to await a call in case the operation should be decided on.

The boys chosen were Louis Wolf, Deerwood Baker, James Cannon, H. S. Brown and E. D. Brown of the high school, and Wilbur McAllen, Herbert Stout, Reed Sheffield, and Jack Zabriskie of the Monroe Street school. Late tonight Brooks's condition was said to be somewhat improved.

THE BARNARD CLOISTERS

of his many long sojourns in France, the American sculptor, George Grey Barnard, was led by his admiration for medieval art to conceive the idea of acquiring a few examples of Gothic sculpture which he could bring back with him to New York for the instruction and enjoyment of his pupils.

"Mr. Barnard was not a man of means. His own creative work, through which he has won international reputation as a sculptor, made heavy demands on his time and energy. The project to establish here through his own efforts a shrine of medieval art might, therefore, to one who did not know the man, seem visionary in the extreme. But difficulties only served to fan the flame which burns in every true collector's heart.

"Taking as a centre of operations the site of some ruined abbey or church, he would visit all the farms in the neighborhood, having observed that the fallen stones were often removed by the peasants to serve for one purpose or another on their farm. A pigsty might yield the slab of a crusader's tomb; an attic, some forgotten statue that once graced an altar or church portal.

"Many artists have been collectors, but none more persistent, courageous, public spirited than George Grey Barnard. It is, consequently, not surprising that he has done what he set out to do—that he has realized his vision! He has brought together a collection of medieval art second to none in this country."

Housed in Brick Building.

A plain, red brick building, decorated on the exterior with a few sculptures flanking a twelfth century portal, contains most of the collection at The Cloisters, the article points out.

"The building is lighted principally by a large skylight provided with a velarium of tawny canvas which modifies the light, giving to the interior the dim illumination characteristic of a Gothic church," Mr. Breck writes. "The interior division of the building again suggests an ecclesiastical prototype, although there is no actual simulation of a church plan. The brick walls, ranging in color from deep rose to silvery gray, provide an admirable background for the sculpture.

"Throughout in his installation Mr. Barnard has been particularly happy in avoiding set, obviously studied effects. There is a spontaneity, even a casualness, that lends not a little to the charm of the interior."

"I am very happy to know that The Cloisters will belong to the public," said Mr. Barnard after Mr. de Forest issued the formal announcement of the museum's new acquisition. "As a sculptor who lives by his mallet and chisel I have done all I could for the public. Of course, taxes and assessments were high and added to the burden I assumed as an individual in maintaining The Cloisters. The work so far has been a work of love."

Mr. Barnard said that Mr. Rockefeller had visited The Cloisters many times. He is very familiar with most of the items in the collection.

MULLER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Leeming's Slayer Will Be Defended by Col. Hayward.

Charles Muller entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned yesterday before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on a first degree murder charge for the shooting on June 5 of Thomas Lonsdale Leeming, importer, outside his office at 130 William Street. Muller told the court he was without counsel, and Colonel William Hayward, former United States District Attorney, and James Marshall, son of Louis Marshall, were assigned to defend him. The accused man then was remanded to the Tombs without bail, pending trial.

A few hours later Warren Stephens, also known as Paul Draper, was freed from custody on order of Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora, after he and Assistant District Attorney Jones of the Homicide Court had questioned him in connection with statements made to the police by Muller that Stephens, known to him as Jack Lawrence, conspired with Muller last October to "frame up" Mr. Leeming at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

YACHT HELD AFTER CRASH.

Accused of Ramming Coast Guard Boat While Showing No Lights.

Charged with running without lights, the fifty-two-foot motor yacht Medeva was brought into the Barge Office basin yesterday by Coast Guard Patrol Boat 161 and held for violation of the Federal navigation laws. The yacht accidentally rammed a Coast Guard boat thirty-two miles off Sea Girt, N. J., on Thursday night.

Four men on the Medeva said they had been engaged at Ulmer Park to take the boat to Egg Harbor, N. J., and that they had approached the Coast Guard boat to get their bearings. The revenue cutter Gresham, standing nearby, witnessed the collision. One Coast Guard officer ventured the opinion that the Medeva had mistaken the patrol for a rum vessel. This was denied by the crew of the yacht. Prior to the ramming the Federal boat fired a blank shot in the direction of the yacht. The Medeva will be held pending the appearance of her alleged owner, John H. Paffee of 148 Wst Fortieth Street.

Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones, told the Court that Dunton had been recently released from Sing Sing.

SLANDER SUIT GOES TO JURY

Publicity Agents Dropped as Defendants of Mrs. McAllister Smith.

The $200,000 suit for slander brought by Mrs. McAllister Smith went to the jury yesterday, and Supreme Court Justice Delehanty, who heard the case, ordered a sealed verdict returned Monday morning. The defendants in the case when it went to trial were Colonel George W. Burleigh, a lawyer; Barry N. Smith, head of the National Information Bureau; Bronson Batchelor, Inc., publicity agents; Roger B. Jenkins, an officer of that concern, and Mme. Anne E. Guerin, a former representative of Mme. Millerand, wife of the former President of France. Bronson Batchelor, Inc., and Roger Jenkins were eliminated as defendants by order of the Court yesterday.

Mrs. Smith alleged that the defendants circulated false reports that she was the Duchesse de Vallenda, a notorious Frenchwoman who had served a term in prison for embezzlement. Mrs. Smith said that as a result she had suffered in many ways. Her work as head of the New York State Chapter of the American and French Children's League, through which she had tried to raise money for the French orphans in the 1921 "Poppy Drive," had been greatly impaired, Mrs. Smith testified.

James L. Long, Superintendent of Prisons and a member o fthe State Parole Board, speaking yesterday of reports that Robert P. Brindell had been ordered exiled from New York until the close of the investigation to determine if he had broken his parole by meddling in union affairs, said:

"We simply gave Brindell's parole custodian certain instructions as to what we wanted done. I cannot say what they were. We have not and will not give that out. That is a matter between the parole officer and the board."

John Bramer of the Catholic Protective Society, who is Brindell's parole guardian, could not be reached last night.

ROSSI SURRENDERS FOR LARCENY TRIAL

Partner in Defunct Steamship Agency Denies Knowledge of Where Funds Went.

Umberto Rossi, active partner in the steamship agency and unlicensed banking firm of Bifulci & Rossi, 586 Morris Avenue, Bronx, one of three indicted after the failure of the business, was arrested yesterday.

Rossi claimed he had nothing to do with the mismanagement of the business and blamed his partner, Vincenzo Bifulci, for the losses. Bifulci also has denied any knowledge of what happened to the funds consigned to the firm. Alberto Galdini, confidential clerk of the firm, has confessed, according to District Attorney McGeehan, that he participated in looting the agency and $7,300 which he admitted depositing in banks has been recovered. This is all that has been found of the accounts of the firm except a few hundred dollars left in the office.

Rossi surrendered at the District Attorney's office after two days of negotiations with Mr. McGeehan by his attorney, former Sheriff James Donnelly. He said that he had gone away because he was afraid, and had been in hiding here since he closed the bank two weeks ago. He was arraigned before Judge Albert Cohn on charges of grand larceny in the second degree, violating the State banking laws and accepting deposits in the agency after it had become insolvent. He was held in $25,000 bail, and remanded to the county jail for pleading early next week.

After the agency was closed by Rossi, it was discovered by the District Attorney that all but a few hundred dollars of its funds had disappeared. Much of the money had been entrusted to the firm to be sent to Italy, mostly by very poor Italians. Mr. McGeehan was informed that it had not reached its consignees.

Bifulci, found ill in bed at his home, is now in the prison ward at Fordham Hospital. Galdini, the confidential clerk, surrendered and is being held.

DIES IN TWO-STORY FALL.

Miss Caroline Merrall, 60, Had Been an Invalid for Years.

Miss Caroline Merrall, 60 years old, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when she fell from a second-story window of her duplex apartment in the Apthorp, Seventy-eighth Street and Broadway. Miss Merrall occupied an apartment on the West End Avenue side of the building, which covers an entire block. She was a sister of Walter Merrall, a member of the firm of Acker, Merrall & Condit Co., grocers. Mr. Merrall is in Europe.

Miss Merrall had been an invalid for several years. She was attended by both a day and night nurse. A few minutes before 4 o'clock she dismissed the day nurse, Miss Mary O'Connor, saying that she would not need her any more during the day, and that the night nurse would be in in a few minutes. A short time later a passer-by on West End Avenue saw Miss Merrall fall from a window and strike the grating at the side of the building, a few feet below the level of the sidewalk.

Dr. J. T. Simpson, who has attended Miss Merrall and who lives in the apartment house, was called, as was Dr. Jolinson of Knickerbocker Hospital. Miss Merrall was dead when the ambulance arrived.

$50,000 FRAUD TALE STOPS STOCK DEALS

Walter Gutterson Is Enjoined From Trading, Following Widow's Complaint.

GOOD SHARES EXCHANGED

Attorney General's Office, States Mrs. Mary E. Cowan, Got Worthless Paper in Return.

Walter Gutterson, whose stock selling activities have on several occasions brought him into conflict with the law and who served a sentence of thirty days last year for using the mails to defraud, was enjoined yesterday from buying, selling and dealing in securities in this State. The temporary injunction, issued by Justice L. J. Faucett in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, also includes the United Bond and Mortgage Company, of which C. L. Taylor is the President and Gutterson is alleged to be the guiding spirit. The order was obtained by Attorney General Ottinger after an investigation conducted by Deputy Attorneys General Victor R. Kaufmann and Clarence W. Donovan. A petition to make the injunction permanent will be argued on Monday.

It is charged that Gutterson and his company obtained more than $50,000 from Mrs. Mary E. Cowan, a widow 70 years old, of 82 Greenridge Avenue, White Plains. Gutterson was arrested on Mrs. Cowan's complaint, taken to White Plains, where he was charged with grand larceny, and is now out in $10,000 bail.

According to Mrs. Cowan two men called on her on Dec. 10, 1924, and one of them introduced himself as Mr. Barr of the United Bond and Mortgage Company. He said he came from a man named John Hogan, from whom she had previously bought securities. It was alleged that Barr told her that an oil stock she had purchased from Hogan was "no good" and that he would allow her $1,500 that she had paid for it.

He offered to sell her stock in the Interstate Mortgage Company, telling her, the papers stated, that this stock was selling at between $50 and $60 a share and would rapidly go to $150. At that time, according to the Attorney General, the Interstate Mortgage Company stock, which is an unlisted security, was selling at between $5 and $10 a share. In this exchange she is said to have paid Barr $500 in cash.

Afterward Mrs. Cowan became acquainted with Gutterson. When examined by Deputy Attorney Keyes Winter, Mr. Cowan told of an occasion in January last when she went to lunch with Gutterson at the Hotel Marseilles in West 103d Street, "so as to be near her bank. She gave him $1,000 in stocks.

"He said I must give him them so that he could do the best he could for me in getting stock of the Interstate Mortgage Company, as the stock was in great demand," Mrs. Cowan testified. She added that Gutterson said: "Don't mention anything about these transactions to anybody."

It is charged by the Attorney General that Mrs. Cowan exchanged stock in the Bank of Commerce and other securities and cash amounting to more than $50,000. It is also charged by Mr. Ottinger that Gutterson was selling bonds of the Oldham New York Saw Works in exchange for good securities and cash. The securities of the Oldham Saw Works, it was stated, are practically worthless.

"Later Gutterson represented that the Oldham bonds were not as valuable as he had believed them to be and he would, in order to do the right thing to the purchaser, exchange them at par for stock of the National Consolidated Coal Company," it was said in a statement from Mr. Ottinger's office. "These stocks were in denomination of $100 par value; actually they were worthless."

LOSES $250,000 SUIT AGAINST 3 DOCTORS

Father's Action for Damages for Alleged Injuries to Son Through an Operation Fails.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 12.—After three hours of deliberation, the jury which has been hearing evidence in the suit for $250,000 damages brought by Charles J. Davis of White Plains, against three doctors for alleged injuries to his son through an operation, brought in a verdict tonight in favor of the doctors.

The suit was filed against Dr. John J. Erdman of Roosevelt Hospital, and Drs. J. Fielding Black and Edward Weber of White Plains. Supreme Court Justice George T. Taylor today dismissed the action against the White Plains doctors because, he ruled, the two-year statute of limitations barred the suit. They complete their services in 1921.

The trial was in progress three weeks, and the plaintiff sought to show the operation was unnecessary and unauthorized as well as harmful.

JENNIE FAVA JURY STILL OUT

No Verdict at Midnight in Case of Girl Accused of $15,000 Theft.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 12.—The jury in the trial of Jennie Fava, 22-year-old bookkeeper, who is charged with stealing $15,000 from the department store of Steiger & Shick at Port Chester, was locked up for the night shortly before midnight after seven hours' deliberation had failed to bring about an agreement.

The case went to the jury without the defendant taking the stand. Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for the defense, bitterly assailed the credibility of the State witnesses in his summing up.

FINDS A SCARLET LOBSTER.

Fish Dealer's Trade Booms, Then He Gives Crustacean to Museum.

Joseph F. Steiner, a fish dealer in Centre Market, Newark, found in a shipment of lobsters from Portland, Me., yesterday a freak lobster which, although alive like his greenish fellows, was scarlet in color.

The find, which aroused admiration among customers and envy among competitors for it brought many persons to Steiner's stall, was reported to the American Museum of Natural History in New York. There it was said the scarlet lobster was a "sport," or a divergence from the usual, and that another lobster which was blue was in possession of the Aquarium. Steiner gave the scarlet lobster to the museum.

Humbert Alone at Time of Crash.

George Humbert of 63 Euclid Avenue, Brooklyn, was driving alone when the collision occurred in Montclair, N. J., Tuesday, that resulted in the death of Jack Doyle of that town. In the report of the accident printed in The Times of June 10, it was stated that Mr. Humbert was making an automobile trip through New Jersey with others. He was unaccompanied and on his way to Caldwell to see a friend. Paul Steiner, who was reported to have sustained a fractured skull in the accident was found not to be seriously injured when taken to the South Mountainside Hospital and was able to go to his home at 488 South Nineteenth Street, Newark.

Representative Langley Indicted.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., June 12 (AP).—Representative John W. Langley, Republican, was indicted in the Pike Circuit Court here today on a charge of drunkenness. The bill was returned by the Grand Jury after that body took the evidence of Mrs. W. P. Henritzie, who obtained a warrant against the Representative earlier in the week that ended in Mr. Langley being fined $10 and serving a jail sentence of four hours for contempt of court. The case will be tried at the October term of the Circuit Court.

HARRY THAW PROTESTS HE'S MISREPRESENTED

Hasn't Done Anything to Warrant Sensational Headlines, He Says, and He'll Sue if It Continues.

Benjamin F. Spellman, special counsel for Harry K. Thaw, issued a statement for his client yesterday threatening legal proceedings against certain newspapers if Thaw continued to be presented in the rôle of a Broadway wastrel. Thaw's statement said:

"I purpose to prosecute any false accounts published against me in the future. I will not submit to any further hounding or pounding. The public in general has been giving me the same fair and square chance which every American is entitled to. There is no reason why I should be treated differently by the press.

"I protest against being exploited in the newspapers in sensational headlines and news items when I have done nothing to give warrant to such spreads. I have a right to go about my business as long as my conduct is not different from that of any other man.

"I refuse to be made the target any longer for false reports and cartoons, or to be the victim of press agents whose accounts are swallowed whole by newspapers without investigation. The stories recently published about me are utterly false.

"I gave no gifts nor exaggerated tips, nor lavish entertainment. I have been conducting myself in the same manner as any decent citizen. I realize that on account of my having been so much in the public print I am in the public eye wherever I go.

"At times I have found it difficult to escape intrusion, and whenever I have been approached by the management of any public place and have been introduced to different people, I have considered it a good policy not to be rude, but to accept these courtesies. This gentleman's conduct on my part ought not to be the basis of a lot of stories made out of whole cloth and sheer imagination to create a sensation."

Mr. Spellman added to the statement: "I have been retained by Mr. Thaw to protect his interests in this matter. I was retained to begin libel actions against the newspapers which published these recent unjust attacks, but there will be no actions launched unless this warning is disregarded and the unjust stories continue."

Thaw returned to Pittsburgh on Thursday night. The purpose of his most recent visit, like that of the two others that preceded it, according to his lawyers, was to attend to business matters.

RICH MAN DISAPPEARS, CAUSING SEA MYSTERY

Leaves Cash and Valuable Papers on Vessel—Reported Alive in Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The Danish steamship Sierra Leona arrived at this port today with a cargo of sugar and a strange tale of the disappearance of an apparently wealthy and well-educated man, believed to be a former German nobleman, who joined the crew as a common sailor when the vessel left here two months ago.

The "gentleman sailor," an accomplished linguist, was swallowed up in the Delaware Bay a few hours after the Sierra Leona cleared this port. Among the effects found in his bunk were papers that indicated he was a member of a titled family in Germany.

A trunk in which the papers were found also contained $200 in cash, a bank book showing $10,000 on deposit in a Middletown, N. Y., bank, deeds to three buildings in the same city, 250 shares of Standard Oil stock and a $245,000 mortgage on Middletown property.

Captain Esdensen, Master of the Sierra Leona, said there was also a passport in the box issued to a Middletown man named Nichols——. He has forgotten the first name.

This clue led to word from Middletown that tended to identify the man as Ernest Nickle, a former steward of the Old Orchard Club at that place. Nickle had been missing since March 11 from Middletown, when he left for Newburgh, ostensibly on a business trip.

Word has been received from the New York town that friends there report Nickle alive in Germany. This information was contained in a letter from Frieda Nickle, believed to be a sister. The letter was mailed from Bautzne, Germany.

A real estate agent in Middletown had a letter from Nickle, asking that his property be cared for and rents collected.

The box containing the man's effects was turned over to Walter Knox, Danish Vice Consul at Norfolk, the Sierra Leona's first port of call after it left here. The Consul learned that "Nichols" shipped on the Sierra Leona under the name of Emil Schultz.

SCANDINAVIANS OPPOSE OUR TREASURY AGENTS

Swedish Press Urges Diplomatic Status Be Refused Those Abroad Seeking Export Data.

COPENHAGEN, June 12 (AP).—It was indicated here today that there is likelihood of all Scandinavian countries refusing the United States' request that diplomatic status be granted to American Treasury agents stationed abroad.

The Swedish press, according to reports received here, has unanimously expressed the hope that the Government will flatly refuse the request. The Stockholm Aftonbladet described these agents as "commercial spies."

The American Treasury agents stationed abroad are to make inquiries for tariff purposes into business affairs of European firms engaged in exporting commodities to the United States. Under the 1922 tariff law foreign firms refusing to give information of costs of production, &c., may have their products excluded from the United States. The impression has been created that European nations generally are preparing to refuse diplomatic status to these agents.

ALIMONY TO MRS. GREGORY.

Broker's Wife, Asking Separation, to Get $700 a Month.

Mrs. Emma Rice Gregory, who is suing George Newton Gregory, member of the New York Stock Exchange, for a separation and is being sued by him on the same ground, got an award yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Tierney of $700 a month alimony and $1,000 counsel fees. Mrs. Gregory asked $1,000 a month for the support of herself and two sons and the broker offered $400.

Mrs. Gregory, who is now living at the Gregory country place at Great Neck, L. I., alleges that her husband abandoned her and her sons last September and went to the Hotel Plaza. Mr. Gregory asserts that his wife failed to devote sufficient attention to her family.

Newspaper Club Warns of Fraud.

Reported solicitations by men claiming to be agents of the Newspaper Club of New York, offering "Business Men's Memberships," were condemned as unauthorized by the directors of the club yesterday. The Newspaper Club is an organization of newspaper men, and writers in allied fields. Business men who may be approached by pretended membership solicitors are asked to detain the visitors long enough to call a policeman.

Vessel Goes to Advent Bay, Shortening the Trip—Amundsen Now Missing Three Weeks.

ON BOARD THE S. S. INGERTRE, BOUND FOR SPITZBERGEN, June 12 (AP)—The captain of the Ingertre, which is carrying airplanes to Spitzbergen, whence a search will be begun for Captain Roald Amundsen and the other members of the missing polar expedition, received instructions from the vessel's owners today to make immediately for Advent Bay, Spitzbergen.

At Advent Bay the planes will be taken off the Ingertre and Lieutenant Lutzow Holm and those who will go with him on the searching flight will disembark. The Ingertre then will proceed to Coles Bay to load coal for Alexandrovsk.

The fliers expect to meet Amundsen's supply ship Farm in Advent Bay tomorrow; the Farm then will return to King's Bay to report on weather conditions there before the airmen start from Advent Bay. It is reckoned that the flight from Advent Bay to King's Bay will take about eighty minutes, whereas the steamer will require at least ten hours to make the journey.

The instructions received by the Ingertre's captain confirmed the wireless message from Oslo, the Norwegian capital, which Lieutenant Holm received yesterday, stating that the Ingertre should proceed to Advent Bay, instead of King's Bay.

At noon today the Ingertre's position was given as 75.8 north, 11.51 east.

Leaving Bear Island and traveling eastward, the Ingertre still had 240 miles to go to reach Advent Bay. The sea was smooth and there were patches of fog, but it was not sufficiently dense to impede the vessel's progress.

The mechanicians of the air party, who constantly go over the machines to keep them in the best possible condition, are Thor Smaal and Fridtjof Walther, both of whom are expert wireless men, and Hans Halvorsen and Rolf Noklegaard. All are attached to the navy yards at Horten, whence the expedition started.

Yesterday, the completion of the third week since Amundsen's hop-off for the Pole, was solemnly commemorated by those aboard the Ingertre.

$6,000 CHECK TO HOSPITAL.

First Installment Paid Toward Medical Centre by Postal Men.

The first instalment of $6,000 for the $60,000 pledged by postal employes of Manhattan and the Bronx to the Presbyterian Columbia Medical Centre Building Fund was paid over yesterday morning by Postmaster John F. Morgan, former Postmaster, and is to be used to endow a four-bed ward for free hospital treatment.

Among those present yesterday in the office of the Postmaster when the $6,000 check was turned over to Mr. Sage were Mrs. William Vaname, Chairman of the Women's Uptown Committee of the Building Fund, and the following heads of postal departments: Thomas B. Randles, Assistant Postmaster; Charles Lubin, Acting Assistant Postmaster; Joseph Willon, Merton E. Allen, Abraham J. Grotker, Peter A. McGurty, Edward P. Russell, J. W. MISREAD TELEGRAPH 'STOP.'

Umpire Magerkurth Thought Himself Suspended.

BALTIMORE, June 12 (AP).—The custom of telegraph operators using the word "stop" to indicate a period led Umpire Magerkurth to believe that he had been suspended by President Toole of the International League for his fight under the grand stand here with Billy Webb, manager of the Buffalo team, last Tuesday. The message read:

"Send full report of trouble with Webb along with Umpire Jones's report stop work today."

How the misunderstanding occurred was discovered during a long-distance telephone conversation between them.

The word "stop" meant to end the first sentence at "report." The massage was not intended to read "stop work today." So Magerkurth again was calling balls and strikes yesterday.

NEARS TOP OF AFRICAN PEAK

Field Museum Explorer Reaches Snow Line on Ruwenzori.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP).—Traveling fast and light, and with only two natives as his aids, Edmund Heller, leader of the Captain Marshall Field expedition to the Belgian Congo for the Field Museum, succeeded in reaching the snow line of Mount Ruwenzori, famous but little explored peak of Central Africa.

A report of the ascent, which reached an altitude of 12,000 feet, was contained in a letter received today from Mr. Heller by Stanley Field, President of the museum. The account was written from an expedition base at Beni, just after the Chicago naturalist and big game hunter had returned from the mountain.

Eight hundred mammal specimens, as well as many reptiles and plants were collected during the trip. Most of them are being sent to the museum here.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, June 13—The matching habit is one of the noteworthy and praiseworthy expressions of current fashion. It lends a most agreeable harmony and uniformity to a man's dress. Handkerchiefs are obtainable in precisely the same color and pattern as either four-in-hand or bow-knot tie or both. This effect shows forethought and care in the "big, little" details of one's appearance and prevents any possible color clash. Exclusive, but not expensive.

CAILLAUX BUDGET TO PASS BY JULY 14

Finance Minister, in Further Conferences, Obtains Necessary Support for His Program.

Their Dissatisfaction With Financial Measures and Morocco Policy Becomes More Marked.

PARIS, June 12.—The French budget, which should have been voted before the end of last year, will be passed with M. Caillaux's additions before July 14, when the Chamber adjourns for the Summer. In the somewhat obscure situation that seems certain.

Today M. Caillaux had interviews with delegations from all the Left majority parties, but the accord which he succeeded in obtaining with the Finance Commission two days ago was not so easy of arrangement with these men and their followers. Léon Blum, for the Socialists, still is insisting on a capital levy. Among the Left Republicans and Radical Socialists there is still resentment against Caillaux for his downright criticism of Herriot's balancing his budget. Nearly all of them still are suspicious of the political soundness of seeking a budget which is better than balanced and will show a surplus. Some still are seeking to know what the rest of the Finance Minister's plans are before they will consent to give him additional revenue.

Throughout today's interviews M. Caillaux stuck stoutly to his determination to have a really balanced budget with a surplus, and have it at once. In that he has the support of a big majority of the Chamber, even if the Socialists there refrain from voting. It is there that complication of the situation begins. Though today they did not force the issue, the Socialists may, it is thought, before Tuesday come out with a decision not to support the Finance Minister's plans. They are willing to postpone that decision until after M. Painlevé returns, and if they break away from the cartel it will be ostensibly because of their disagreement on the financial issue.

But in reality today was spent by them seeking an excuse for breaking away should the decisions which are being taken on Moroccan affairs not accord with their views. News from Morocco has considerably disturbed them during the past three days. The situation has now become such that it is obvious if Abd-el-Krim is to be defeated the war must be carried into his territory with or without Spanish assistance. The weather at this time of the year makes such a campaign almost impossible, but the decision to make preparations for it will have to be taken now and to aiding in that decision the Socialists are strongly opposed.

Their opposition to the finance measures thus is merely serving them as an excuse. In opposing the Government policy on Morocco they would appear to be siding with Communists and might lay themselves open to a charge of being unpatriotic. Their object is to try to have an excuse for cutting away from the majority should Painlevé return with news and proposals of which they do not approve.

Today at the Cabinet meeting M. Caillaux once more urged on his colleagues the necessity of most rigorous economy in each department and obtained unanimous approval. Though he is still facing difficulties of a purely political kind with the Socialist Party, there is no doubt he has won the complete confidence of his colleagues and the country in general by his firmness and determination to carry through his program for economy and realization of a budgetary surplus.

The Dawes plan receipts for 1925, so far as they concern France, were the subject of study by the Chamber Finance Committee today in connection with the work of the committee in drafting its report on the financial bill for presentation to Parliament.

The committee insists that France will receive only 1,000,000,000 francs under the Dawes plan in 1925 instead of 1,239,000,000 francs, as estimated in the original budget prepared by M. Clementel, who preceded M. Caillaux as Finance Minister. The committee decided to ask M. Caillaux for further details as to the exact amounts to be derived from the reparation payments. These details will be furnished by Seymour Parker Gilbert, Agent General for reparation payments.

Cuts in Budget Estimates.

PARIS, June 12 (AP).—Finance Minister Caillaux gave out today an extract from a letter he had sent Cabinet Ministers in which he told them he could not accept their estimates of expenditures for their departments for next year. He wrote that he would reduce all their budget increases to one-third of the requested amounts and would have his own staff revise the estimates he regarded as excessive.

After his fourth successive conference with Parliamentarians regarding his financial measures, M. Caillaux said he would announce details of his financial rehabilitation plan as soon as this year's budget is voted by Parliament.

The only announcement made after the meeting today was that it had been definitely agreed, as had previously been understood would be the case, that 1,200,000,000 francs of the receipts from the Dawes plan payments this year would be used by France as budget receipts, but that next year the Dawes payments would be devoted to payment of French debts, reconstruction and other purposes.

NEW BELGIAN CABINET UPSET BY CATHOLICS

Poullet Is Defeated in Both Houses on Test Vote Involving Coalition.

BRUSSELS, June 12 (AP).—Belgium again is without a Government. Viscount Poullet, who on Thursday announced the formation of a Cabinet, decided today to place squarely before the Catholic parties in the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies the question whether they intended to adhere to his coalition group, which embraced Socialists.

In both houses the Catholic parties decided to decline to give their support to a Ministry in which the Socialist element predominated. In the Senate they voted against the Poullet group 36 to 22 and in the Chamber a caucus of the Catholics by 41 to 24 voted lack of confidence in the Ministry.

Dissolution of Parliament now appears to be the only remedy for the existing situation.

Belgium has been without a Cabinet most of the time since April 5, when the Ministry headed by M. Theunis resigned. Viscount Poullet is the fourth person to attempt since then to establish a Cabinet. Emile Vandervelde, Socialist leader, and Baron Charles de Broqueville both attempted unsuccessfully, and M. van de Vyvere formed a Cabinet May 13 that lasted only nine days. Viscount Poullet made the next attempt.

Ogdensburg Is Tardy With Funds to Repair Memorial to Artist.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., June 12.—The art collection of the late Frederic Remington, sculptor and artist of Western life, may be removed from Ogdensburg to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, the Field Museum in Chicago, or the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, because of the failure of the Ogdensburg citizens to vote $1,200 to cover repairs to the Remington memorial building here, where the collection is housed.

John C. Howard of this city, who paid half the cost of the memorial building, has announced he will contribute $600 toward the expense of repairs provided others raise an equal amount. There has been no response.

Mrs. Cornelia Stilwell Pine, widow of Theodore Pine, portrait painter, has made an appeal for funds to save the collection for this city and suggests that the Mayor designate a "Penny Day," when every school child will have an opportunity to contribute one penny toward a fund for repairing the memorial building.

Wailing Wall Believed Dug Up.

JERUSALEM, June 12 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—An ancient wall with gigantic stones similar in construction and size to those of the western wall, commonly known as the wailing wall, was unearthed here yesterday by the Jewish Archaeological Society. It is near the Musrara quarter. It is believed that this is the wall built by King Agrippa, the construction of which was recorded by Josephus Flavius, high priest and commander of the Galilean Jewish forces in their revolution against the Romans.

PAINLEVE SEES WAR ON MOROCCO FRONT

French Premier on a High Peak Views Panorama of Operations, Explained by Freydenberg.

DECORATES MANY SOLDIERS

Returns to Fez With Marshal Lyautey—Starts Home by Airplane Tomorrow.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FEZ, June 12.—Premier Painlevé, smiling and fresh despite his long voyage by air and automobile, arrived at Fez at the interesting moment when three offensives appeared about to begin—Riff, French and Spanish. The Premier leaves today to inspect with his own eyes conditions at the front. It is surely the only means of understanding why the situation is difficult and serious not only for France but for European prestige with Islam in general. Only by personal observation will he be able to realize the necessity for quick action.

Without understanding the surprising discipline and organization which Abd-el-Krim has been able to develop in a little time among the dissident tribes, without seeing the material which he has at his disposal and the manner of utilizing the natural advantages of terrain, without seeing the possible effect of the present situation on the loyal tribes, it is easy to believe abroad, even in France, that Abd-el-Krim, being a native adversary, is of no importance. Even here the tendency to underestimate the new spirit which moves the whole of Islam since Mustapha Kemal triumphed over European armies and Abd-el-Krim achieved a victory over Spain. It is hoped here that M. Painlevé's visit will accelerate military and diplomatic action.

Abd-el-Krim to all appearances has come to the conclusion that the evacuation of outposts by the French is a prelude to a general French retreat. He is preparing to take advantage of the movement with an offensive from two sides. Simultaneously he is making every effort to procure cooperation of the unsubdued tribes in the Taza district in a march against the French as soon as he arrives himself twenty kilometers from Fez.

The French command's response to this move declares: "It is important to convince Abd-el-Krim and the partisan tribes by a sharp reply that France is determined to see its territorial integrity respected according to the terms of the treaty."

In all probability the offensive which it is contemplated will be launched at the same time as the landing of the Spanish marine force against Ajdir. Impartial well informed observers here attach little importance to the Spanish action. It is probable Abd-el-Krim is well prepared against an attack on Ajdir, of which the bombardment is difficult because he has surrounded it with a living wall of Spanish prisoners and has had hidden there an underground general headquarters and telephone centrals if he has not already transferred them to another locality. It will be difficult to land troops and capture Ajdir, and even if captured, the Spaniards will have nothing in their possession but a miserable village even more difficult to hold.

Some cynical observers here fear the Spaniards, after having armed Abd-el-Krim, are now about to provide him with a fleet.

French Prestige at Stake.

The French in Morocco are a small minority in a potentially enemy country. Like a bank which does business through the credit it enjoys and not through cash on hand, they rule through prestige—the fragile creation of psychology. Their rule has been singularly liberal and enlightened. That has strengthened it enormously, but at the bottom it rests none the less on the fear it inspires among the natives that any attempt to throw it off will be summarily suppressed.

Therefore what the natives behind the lines think is all-important now. Should they revolt the French front becomes two-edged. It is for this purpose that Abd-el-Krim is steadily driving ahead, his army being held thirty miles north of Fez by the French. But twenty miles south, at Taza, it is unsafe for Europeans to go. Here is the "tache de Taza." In English, "the Taza blot," in the middle of the Atlas Mountains, filled with tribes not yet subdued. Other similar areas extend to the hinterland of Agadir.

South of the Grand Atlas there are agents and arms sent by Abd-el-Krim to the unsubdued natives. It was thither German trawlers laden with arms and propagandists captured by the French near Agadir were bound, and it is certain Krim's emissaries are going constantly not only to these regions but all through pacified Morocco as well.

It is impossible to prevent these infiltrations, for his men are blood brothers of loyal Moors and cannot be distinguished from them. This is so true that Abd-el-Krim under cover of night can even pass his troops through the French lines in small groups, assembling them in the Taza "blot" or elsewhere. Propaganda is his aim for the moment, and it is easy for him to spread this.

Premier Receives Loyal Tribes.

FEZ, June 12 (AP).—M. Painlevé, French Premier and Minister of War, spent the entire day along the front which the French have set up in opposition to the tribesmen who invaded the French Zone.

In the course of his inspection M. Painlevé received the Caids of the tribesmen who are faithful to France at Tissa. He had warm words of praise for their loyalty and promised the same loyalty on the part of France. The Premier later visited the aeronautic centre, where he congratulated the pilots for their help in the operations against the Riffians and decorated several of them. He returned to Fez late tonight.

The road which M. Painlevé took to visit the front at Ain Aicha winds for some thirty-five miles along Savage Heights, between which lie well cultivated plains with fields of cereals and groves of olives and figs, where the tribes still faithful to the Sultan were at work garnering the ripe harvests.

As the premier and his companions reached the districts more exposed to enemy raids, an automobile with a machine gun took its place at the head of the line, while another protected the rear. Low-flying planes explored each valley and guarded the sides of the column of automobiles.

A halt was made on arriving at the first crossing place along the River Ouergha, where Colonel Freydenburg, the French commander, dressed in a field uniform and wearing a helmet and linen blouse, saluted the Premier and Minister of War and Marshal Lyautey and other Generals from Fez, among them Jaquemont, Billotte and de Chambrun. To the visitors he gave a general description of the operations, while the routine camp duties were continued all about the official group.

M. Painlevé and the other members of his party got out of the cars. The battalion formed a guard of honor and the Premier passed it in rapid review. Then Colonel Freydenburg ordered the bugler to sound the "assembly." The troops gathered around, and Colonel Freydenburg's Chief of Staff read them the citations earned by the battalion, which has participated in every action since the commencement of hostilities. The Premier pinned the War Cross on the breast of each man as his name was called and shook hands with each officer and private thus honored and asked them to relate the details of their feats.

When the highest point on the mountain was reached, M. Painlevé, seated on a box of cartridges, once more listened to Colonel Freydenburg's descriptions of the operations, the panorama of the Riff mountains being spread before his eyes like a map. The Premier and the war chiefs discussed the situation for an hour in the open and later continued their talk during luncheon served under a tent.

Asked regarding his plans the Premier said:

"We (the Premier and his party) sleep Sunday at Malaga, reach Toulouse on Monday and arrive in Paris on Tuesday in time for the Cabinet's meeting, at which our decisions will be taken for the financial debate beginning on Wednesday in the Chamber of Deputies, which was the cause of my coming to Morocco."

Tribesmen Slip Through the Line.

EL ARAISH, Spanish Morocco, June 12 (AP).—Travelers arriving here from Ouezzan, in the French fighting zone, report that the evacuation of civilians from that city has begun in the direction of Arbaa Kenitras, and that infiltration of rebellious tribesmen is in progress all along the entire sector. An attack by the rebels against the French position at Tuhaer, about fourteen miles from Ouezzan, is told of. The French garrisons at Audar and Achirkanes, it is added, were compelled to retreat and rejoin their respective columns. All the war material was made useless before the retreat.

Heavy Attack on Spaniards.

MADRID, June 12 (AP).—An official statement issued by the War Office late tonight says that the tribesmen in Morocco broke into the Spanish lines near Hozmar today and that a battle of "some importance" developed.

The Spaniards, after fierce fighting, managed to maintain positions, inflicting heavy losses on the rebels. The Spanish losses are given as about fifty, twelve of them Europeans. The rebels were commanded by the principal chiefs of the Yebala tribes and left many dead and wounded on the field.

The battle was preceded by heavy enemy pressure on the Spanish fronts, especially in the festern sector.

SHAW AND SNOWDEN IN 'COMMUNIST TILT'

Author Objects to Ex-Chancellor's "Misuse" of Term in Connection With British Agitators.

Some Are Credulous, Some Anarchistic, He Says, and Some Are Labor Fascisti.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—Philip Snowden and George B. Shaw are at wordy warfare over the use of the epithet "Communists" as applied to certain agitators in this country. The discussion has arisen over a newspaper article by Mr. Snowden, wherein the Ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer denounced the British Communits Party whole-heartedly, accusing it of being a branch of the Moscow Third International and scheming to get affiliation with the British Labor Party with the intention of destroying it.

Mr. Shaw came back today in a letter to The Daily News urging the clearing up of confusion created by the assumption of the term Communist by the extreme Left Wing of the British Labor movement.

"What are the people whom Snowden denounces as Communists?" he asks. He proceeds then to describe them as follows:

"They are a very mixed lot, some of them so ignorant of political etiquette and void of British national self-respect that they take money from Russia without knowing that thereby they place themselves on a footing of our own Secret Service agents abroad whom we should certainly sack if they were silly enough to form societies for the purpose of showing their hands. Why the Russian Government does not sack them if the money is really Government money I cannot imagine. If it is not Government money then they simply are missionaries and should call themselves a society for the propagation of the gospel of Marx, according to the Russian Orthodox Church in partibus infidelium.

"Others, independent of Russia, are Labor Fascisti. Like Signor Mussolini and the King of Spain, they are fed up with parliamentary shuffling and compromising and are for direct action, that is, the seizure of power by a coup d'état by those who, like Mussolini or the Spanish military General Staff, can pull it off, promising to rule by main force in the interests of the proletariat.

"Some of them are simple anarchists, primitive souls, who, having been convinced by their observation and experience that our parliaments and courts of justice are occupied mainly in robbing and oppressing the poor, conclude the world would be a happy place but for our parliaments and policemen. Some of them are free and independent Britons (in theory), who, without reasoning about it, object to be governed at all. Some of them are men and women with intense pity for the suffering and horror of cruelty. No matter what party they support, they turn against it the moment it accepts power and responsibility, because the party in that position finds itself immediately obliged to hang or imprison somebody, and from that moment on they declare it has betrayed the cause of humanity.

"Some are Communists credulous enough to believe that all people who call themselves Communists are Communists, a delusion almost as extravagant as that all people who call themselves Christians are Christians, and even know what Christ taught.

"An then there are the political apprentice lads, always against the political machine because it is so slow and because the capitalist forces have such a knack of making it work their way.

"What sense is there in calling the Left wing, made up in this way, 'Communist'? It is a darkening of counsel by words without wisdom."

Soviet Official Is Wounded.

MOSCOW, June 12 (AP).—An attempt was made yesterday to assassinate M. Vassendin, President of the North Dvina Provincial Executive Committee and a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Soviet Union at Veliky Ustyug. M. Vassendin received a deep cut in the shoulder. His assailant, a man whose identity has not been established, was arrested.

UNDERWOOD URGES DEEP CUT IN TAXES

property can be destroyed through the power to tax.

During the great war, in the high brackets of the revenue bill, taxes were collected as high as 65 per cent. of the revenue derived from the citizens' estates, and even now, seven years after the conflict is over, our taxes against some men and women are as much as 46 per cent. of their entire taxable income. The question naturally arises, Is this taxation or is it confiscation? In war time the Government may take the life of the citizens and, I doubt not, his property, if need be, to preserve the life of the nation, but not so in time of peace. The very fabric of our institution cries out against it. Have we forgotten the immortal tea party in Boston Harbor, or the speech of Patrick Henry, or the ride of Paul Revere, that we should become so callous of other men's rights? Yet if you would follow the school of the anarchist, why dally with the situation? The power to tax is just as potent a factor to use in the destruction of private property as the red flag or the lighted torch.

I am not prepared yet to say that the men possessing the power of government are conscious of a desire to destroy the property of the rich, but I am willing to say that some of our tax gatherers have become very callous of the rights of those who have amassed great fortunes, overlooking the fact that where you unjustly throw the top stones from the monument of our business life one by one the others will inevitably follow until the very foundation is reached.

So it is impossible to consider the task of the reduction of taxation without bearing in mind the motives that may lie behind the cause that produces the levy, and to always remember that there are some who first of all desire high taxation that it may destroy private property, then the home life, and then the very fabric of our natural existence.

So much for one angle of the situation that confronts us. Another angle is the answer to the question, Does it pay to tax until it destroys, or even until it hurts?

Source of Tax Payments.

Let us pause for a minute to adjust our fundamental principles. It is a fundamental canon of taxation that all taxes are paid in the end from the accumulated wealth of the people taxed. Some have said from rent, profit and wages, but in the end all wealth is the accumulation of the asset that grows out of the work of the heads and hands of men and women. So that at the end of the decade or the century the extraordinary burden laid on the body politic must come from the men who toil and the women who reap, or there must be a diminution of the accumulated wealth of the country that existed when the burden was laid.

The tax advocate of communistic tendencies may welcome the dissipation of the wealth of the nation, but when we accept his theories we will come to the dawn of a new era.

The question before us is whether this nation is stronger, safer and more productive with a great store of accumulated wealth or without it.

Russia dissipated her wealth for a theory some years ago. We amassed ours. Russia has a larger territory, a larger population and greater natural resources than we have. Were you outside both countries and choosing a home, which would you move to?

If you would regard men and women as the pawns on a chessboard to be moved as inanimate objects and played with as you please, you might mass them for labor and work out a people's onward progress and development without accumulated wealth. But men and women are human, filled with needs and desires, passions and prejudices, and you cannot herd them like dumb, driven cattle without destroying their liberties and their happiness. The only way you can suit the human equation and master the onward march of your natural development is to pay man a wage for his labor from the accumulated wealth of your country.

Genius of Development.

The genius of our great development has come through the massing of our dollars on some great enterprise and buying the brains and the labor to put it through. This takes idle money looking for investment, and you will not find it at the appointed hour if you tax it to death.

It is manifestly true that the citizens who hold allegiance to, say, the Government ought to contribute from their earnings to its support, and that contribution should be measured by the benefit derived, as well as the ability to pay the tax. The tax when assessed should not be doubtful or arbitrary, but should be certain and reasonable. We should levy our taxes in the form and manner that is most convenient to the taxpayer to meet the demands made upon him, and we should take from the people who pay it as little as possible to meet the governmental exigency that confronts us.

These are either direct or indirect. A direct tax is one that is assessed against the person who is expected to pay it. An indirect tax is one that is demanded from one person with the expectation that he will pass the burden on to another. Taxes on wealth in the main are assessed against property or the income derived therefrom.

We must now consider whether the present tax levies on income and inheritances are within the principles I have just suggested to you. During the great war the American people accepted excessive rates of taxation with patience and without complaint, and are entitled to great credit for the sacrifices they made in order that our armies might win the war. They had the right to believe that after the war was over they would be relieved in large part from the excessive burdens they had borne without complaint.

Many of the war tax burdens have been repealed by the Congress, including the so-called excess profits tax and the small taxes on transfers, sales and the like, that produced more annoyance than they did revenue. The general trend of tax legislation has been downward, but nevertheless the burden resting on the larger accumulation of capital has remained in the confiscatory class.

Problem to Be Decided.

The problem we have to solve is whether it is wise, from the standpoint of the whole people, to allow the conditions to continue. What I have just said applies to the inheritance tax as well as to income tax.

When the constitutional amendment authorizing the levy of an income tax was adopted I was Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives and took an active part in writing the Tariff act of 1913, which contained the provision providing for the first income tax levied since the Supreme Court of the United States declared the income tax law enacted in Grover Cleveland's time was unconstitutional. The tax of 1913 was very low and reasonable compared with what we now have. The normal tax was only 1 per cent., and the surtax added an additional burden of 1 per cent. on incomes ranging from $20,000 to $50,000, and from that bracket gradually increasing until it reached 6 per cent. on incomes in excess of $500,000, with normal tax added making the highest tax on any income 7 per cent.

So it remained until our ordinary revenues were affected by war conditions in Europe in 1916, when a new levy was made against the wealth of the nation. The normal tax went to 2 per cent. and the highest surtax to 13 per cent., and so it stood until we became involved in the war.

During the Summer of 1917 we passed the first war tax bill and increased the normal tax to 4 per cent. and pyramided the surtax until the highest tax levied reached as much as 67 per cent. of the incomes involved. This was war, and only war could justify the confiscation of men's property, for it matters not whether you take the principal or the interest, when the Government absorbs 67 per cent. of either it amounts to confiscation.

After the war was over, in 1919, with the war debts unpaid and not provided for, with an inflamed public sentiment against the war profiteers reflecting itself into the halls of the Congress, an act was passed that it will always be hard to justify except by the desire of the legislator to reach back in the war year of 1918 and take from the profiteer a large part of his war profits. The normal rates were made 12 per cent. for 1918 and slightly lesser rates in 1919 and 1920, but the surtax rate commencing in 1918 was to remain. It started at 1 per cent. on incomes of $5,000 and increased until it reached a maximum of 65 per cent., or a total tax of 77 per cent. on the larger incomes.

Reaction of 1921.

In 1921 a reaction in public sentiment set in and the Congress responded in part in favor of reducing the manifest burdens of taxation. The House of Representatives passed a bill making a general reduction all along the line, bringing the maximum surtax down to 32 per cent., but the Senate would not accept the House bill and adopted amendments providing for higher rates. When the bill came out of conference and was adopted, the Senate had won its contention, and the act provided for a normal tax of 8 per cent. and a maximum surtax rate of 50 per cent., making the total highest tax 58 per cent.

Not grasping the fundamental principle that taxes are paid out of the accumulation of the poor as well as the rich, and can only be amassed by labor, the Congress, fearing criticism if it reduced any tax assessed against wealth, continued its policy of confiscation.

The Revenue act of 1924 should have relieved the country of a large part of the war taxes assessed against it. The Secretary of the Treasury recommended that the existing surtax rate be cut in two and a general reduction be made all along the line. He pointed out that the confiscatory rates of war taxation had driven the great incomes into tax-exempt securities and that the Government had lost rather than gained revenue thereby.

The result was a reduction in some of the lower brackets, but the maximum surtax rate was left at 40 per cent., making a total high tax rate of 46 per cent. when the normal tax was added.

An increase in estate taxes to a maximum of 40 per cent. was carried in the bill without any justification, unless you are an advocate of the confiscation theory.

Again Facing the Problem.

We now face the problem again. Shall we again make an honest effort to reduce the burden of taxation that rests on our country? Seven years after the signing of the armistice shall we continue to levy taxes that only war conditions could justify? What do you want with taxes, except to meet governmental expenses? Who knows most about what money is needed to run the Government, the men who actually run it or the men who make the laws and are not a part of the executive branch, that spends the money? As far back as 1919 Carter Glass, a Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, in his annual report to the Congress, declared that the high surtaxes had already passed the point of productivity and were driving capital from the field of development and stimulating wasteful and non-productive expenditures.

It was in the closing days of the Wilson Administration that Mr. Houston, the then Secretary of the Treasury, called to the attention of the Congress the fact that the surtaxes had long since passed the stage of maximum productivity, on account of the very high rate of the levy, and were becoming a serious menace to the Nation's business.

In 1923 Secretary Mellon called to the attention of the law-making body of the nation the fact that the high rates of the income tax were becoming every year less productive of revenue, that they were depriving the Treasury of revenue that it might obtain under more reasonable rates, and at the same time they were destroying business incentive and slowing down productive development in the country.

Let me illustrate what this means. Under the law of 1916 the maximum surtax on incomes in excess of $300,000 was 13 per cent., and produced, practically speaking, the same revenue as came from similar incomes in 1921, when the maximum surtax was 65 per cent. In five years vast sums of money formerly engaged in productive enterprises had been driven out of active business and had become interned in tax-free securities. It must be manifest to even the casual observer that if the rates of 1916 had remained the Treasury would have received more revenue and business would have been far less embarrassed.

Wealth Created by Labor.

The wealth of a country must be created by the labor of that country. It cannot be manufactured out of nothing. It is limited in quantity and can be invested in non-taxable, low interest rate securities that do not represent productive enterprise, or it may be used in the active development of our fields, our mines, our factories, when new enterprise is making our natural resources the handmaiden of man and giving employment to labor; but in that field of endeavor there is no exemption from taxation, and the tax gatherer is waiting to absorb a large part of the profits if the owner's income falls in the high brackets of the Federal revenue law.

Let me tell you something to remember. Under the law of 1916 nearly 30 per cent. of the revenue was derived from incomes of over $100,000 and in 1921 only 4¼ per cent. came from that source. Your laws had made it more profitable for the citizen of large means to abandon productive enterprise and invest his money where he need not fear confiscation.

The bond broker will tell you that it is more profitable to the man of large income to invest his money in a 4½ per cent. tax-free bond than in an enterprise that will pay him 8 per cent. on his money, where his income is subject to Federal taxation. The loss is really greater to the country than it is to the individual. He contents himself with a safe investment and a limited income, but that community that is seeking capital for new enterprises or money for new development of any kind must pay extraordinary rates of interest to get it, which in the end usually falls on the public to pay.

There is another viewpoint to the situation, and that is where no capital can be had at all for industrial development and industry must remain idle because a great Government lacks wisdom in the writing of its revenue legislation.

Discusses Death Taxes.

There is a field of taxation on which I have barely touched so far, but its exploitation is even more dangerous to business development than the tax on incomes, and that is death taxes—the absorption of the principal of the dead man's estate for the benefit of the Government, known as estate taxes and inheritance taxes. Before the great war the maximum tax on estates was 10 per cent.; now it is 40 per cent. by the Federal Government alone, and when some of the State Governments get through collecting their share of the spoils there is not much left for the wife and children of the dead man.

What happens when a large part of a man's estate must be sold, regardless of price, to pay taxes? We all know. It does not bring its fair value. You force a tremendous sacrifice of values as a death penalty to the man who has toiled and achieved success, and then you take a large part of it to satisfy the maw of the tax gatherer.

Does it pay to do it? I mean does it pay you, not the victim? The best minds among the tax experts regard 20 per cent. as the maximum rate in a graduated estate tax that will produce the largest revenue and at the same time not destroy business. Your enlightened Government fixes the maximum rate at 40 per cent., regardless of what the State Governments may do. Do you blame the man who hides in the cellar to escape the Federal tax barrage if he knows the way?

What Shall Be Done?

Here is where we have arrived. We have levied our taxes so high that we have chased much of the capital of the country into hiding, and have reduced our revenue thereby. We are undoubtedly slowing down the productive energy of the country. We are encouraging violations of the law and making men regard their Government as an evil to be avoided. We have a serious danger to the wage-earners of America ahead of us if our Government continues to pursue a course that jeopardizes the development of our business growth and absorbs the best part of the productive energy of the nation.

What are we to do about it? What are you going to do about it? For, in the last analysis, it is up to you to decide whether you want high taxes to continue. I know what I would do about it if I had the power to write my views into law. I would go back to the tax law of 1916, or something very like it, where the normal tax was 2 per cent. and the highest bracket of the surtax was 13 per cent. and the highest tax on estates was 10 per cent. I think we could get the revenue we need, but if we would not I would give the President blanket authority to abolish Government bureaus—and there are many of them that are mere conveniences and not governmental necessities—until our expenditures did not exceed our revenue. In other words, I would slow down the Government before it slows down the business of the nation.

SECURITY PROPOSAL NEVER SENT TO US

Allies Kept Secret German Suggestion to Have Washington Take Part in Guarantees.

PREFERRED TO USE LEAGUE

Impatience With American Advice Shown by Criticism of Ambassador Houghton.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—The disclosure that the German security offer of last February contained the suggestion that the proposed peace treaties take the form of commitments of the nations concerned toward the Government of the United States is now followed by the declaration in high quarters that the suggestion was at no time communicated to the State Department of the American Ambassadors in Europe. Although allied statesmen discussed the proposal for four months this feature never was put forward and Washington never was asked what it thought about it. Such treatment of Berlin's idea indicates that the Allies found it unwise or undesirable.

Inquiry indicates that the German intention was to have the treaties as finally drafted filed at Washington, meanwhile hoping to have the United States participate in the negotiations on a basis similar to the American part in the reparations settlement.

Perhaps the turn which the security negotiations have now taken indicates why Berlin's American suggestion was not followed. As allied statesmen, particularly the French saw it, perhaps there was a chance of America's agreeing, although to do so would be contrary to America's recent foreign policy. If America had agreed it would naturally have interferred with the French plan now agreed to by the British of a security compact tied up with the League of Nations for to have had Geneva and Washington both guardians of the security treaties would have been, indeed, difficult.

The idea that the German note had an American origin finds no support here. There is no proof in London, but only denials, that Ambassador Houghton when accredited to Berlin had something to do with the business.

The whole attitude with which the Allies treated the proposal to bring in America probably indicates once more the unpopularity in Europe of American advice. The Dawes plan is different. In that case Europe wanted money from America and that is why the reparations scheme bears the name of the present Vice President of the United States. But allied statesmen knew full well America was not going to help guarantee security for any one in Europe and that left only American advice as the net result of involving Washington in the security negotiations, even were that to have been found possible.

The Review of Reviews will publish tomorrow an article by Wickham Steed which throws an interesting light on American advice in European politics and which incidentally takes a hard whack at Ambassador Houghton.

"No greater mistake can be made by those who desire restoration of normal relationship between the Allies and Germany than to imagine or suggest that and can best be attained by wilful blindness to German defaults," says Mr. Steed. Allied policy toward Germany must be marked by equal firmness and friendliness and must be based on the unalterable principle that the peace treaties form the public law of Europe. It is quite useless to hope for a return of international confidence until proof is forthcoming that confidence will not be misplaced.

"In this respect the European Allies are the best judges what is needed. Advice or even financial pressure from the United States or its representatives may defeat its object. For instance, the language attributed to the new American Ambassador in London on the subject of Germany and the union of Germany with Austria has made an unfortunate impression. However much his previous residence in Berlin may have inclined him to take the German rather than the allied standpoint, it would be regrettable were he not to understand that the bulk of public opinion in this country emphatically is not for Germany in the sense of wishing to close its eyes to German shortcomings; that it is for Germany and for Europe in the sense of desiring frank and friendly cooperation with and between European nations, allied and ex-enemy alike.

"As the late Mr. Page discovered, an understanding of English views and instincts has to be acquired by patient observation and sustained intercourse with all classes of Englishmen. Nothing is easier than for a foreign diplomatist who may come here with a predisposition in favor of this policy or that to take for granted the feelings of England are what he may wish them to be. Matters as between Great Britain and France and Great Britain, France and Germany now have been placed on the footing that promises fruitful developments, and real friends of Germany are those who seek to persuade her that firmness of the Franco-British policy is by no means disjoined from fundamental friendliness and a desire to bring Germany back on an equal footing into the family of European nations."

WARNS GERMANY ON LEAGUE.

Soviet to Change Policy if Berlin Accepts Membership.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 12.—Speaking of the Geneva decision on the guarantee compact, Isvestia says incidents accompanying the final stages of Germany's proposal prove the correctness of the Soviets' forecast and showed the Soviet Government was right when it advised Germany to abstain from joining the League of Nations.

"We repeatedly warned Germany as regards the consequences of joining the League," says the paper. "We still consider it very risky. Germany is at liberty to act according to her own interpretation of expediency in such a step, but she should know if she takes the step the Soviet union will have to take measures to safeguard its own interests in a different direction, which lies outside strengthening and developing her economic and political connections with Germany."

The article says that under present conditions, by entering the League of Nations, Germany is heading toward complete political submission to England.

"England needs Germany as a weapon for balancing her policy in Europe and as a base of attacks on the Soviet union," it adds. "Since the Conservatives came into power, England is trying by all means to drag Germany into the League in order to use her as a bulwark for possible attacks on Russia."

BRIAND EXPLAINS ACCORD.

Makes a Distinction Between Coercion and Act of Aggression.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 12.—Before the French Cabinet today M. Briand explained details of the accord reached with Mr. Chamberlain. He made it clear that the French note to Germany in reference to the security compact will continue the understanding that an act of aggression is not to be confused with a measure of "coercion" rendered necessary by violation of the treaty signed or guaranteed by one or more nations participating in the compact.

Difference between an act of coercion and an act of aggression automatically creates a wide field for definition difficult to traverse unless the League of Nations is to have full powers to decide. The French feel that by emphasizing the distinction between coercion and aggression the compact is stronger protection for its allies in Eastern Europe than Poland and Czechoslovakia are inclined to think, because, France in case of a violation of the proposed arbitration treaty would have the right at once, as an act of "coercion" to move forces across the demilitarized zone of the Rhine.

M. Briand admitted it would be necessary in negotiations on the proposed arbitration treaties to create a clear definition of an act of aggression in order to prevent a bellicose State from preparing an attack by an abusive interpretation of the treaty itself.

Before sending the security note to Germany, France is awaiting a reply from Italy, which is expected daily. Belgium has already declared itself in complete accord and the French expect the Italian reply will be equally favorable. In any case France is eager to secure complete cooperation of Italy for the Rhine compact and is entirely disposed, moreover, to conclude with Italy a separate compact of security or arbitration treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of Italy. The French are not inclined to take an active interest in the discussion over the question of the United States participating in any way in the execution of the compact, realizing such intervention in European affairs is wholly contrary to present American policy.

GERMANS WILL SIT IN PARLEY ON ARMS

Will Discuss Demands of the Allied Note With Military Control Commission.

BERLIN, June 12 (AP).—Before the German Government replies to the military clauses of the allied disarmament note German representatives will be asked to sit at the green table with the Interallied Military Control Commission to talk over the whole question. This was intimated in official circles here today.

This round table conference will be sought next week or the following week. The discussion with the control commission will resolve itself into three phases. First, on certain points in the note Germany will say unhesitatingly that the defaults charged will be remedied; second, on certain other points she will ask a further definition and reasons for the demand; third, on still other points Germany will simply say that the allied demands are in contravention of the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and that therefore it is needless to comply with them.

On the question of alleged semi-military organizations, the German Government probably will introduce in the Reichstag a blanket law forbidding all organizations that might be construed as having a military purpose, although the Government concedes it will be difficult to define just what constitutes such an organization. It will ask, for instance, does the republican Reichsbanner organization come under this head?

While concerned about the military clauses of the allied note, there seems little doubt that the officials, even those closely connected with the military wing of the Government, are more concerned about the economic and industrial clauses of the note, like the demand for the destruction of certain of the Krupp plants.

SET WESTMINSTER HEARING.

Duke Will Not Defend Appeal by Duchess for Divorce.

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—The suit for divorce of the Duchess of Westminster, which, it has been stated, will not be defended by the Duke, will be heard next Wednesday, it was learned today when the Court, in view of the fact that the Duke would not appear, discharged a special jury which had been impaneled for the suit.

The Duchess of Westminster filed a petition for divorce in London last June. Her attorney asserted that the Duke of Westminster had been cruel to her.

Last September the Duchess sought an injunction to restrain the Duke from ejecting her from Bourbon House, their residence in the fashionable Mayfair section of London. She failed in that action and upon her return to London from a visit to the United States announced that she was "homeless." The injunction hearing developed that the Duke had offered her £8,000 a year pending the outcome of the divorce proceedings.

HINDENBURG GREETS CLERGY

Tells Alliance Leaders He Favors Religious Tolerance.

BERLIN, June 12 (AP).—President von Hindenburg today promised to foster a spirit of religious tolerance in Germany and conscientiously to respect and protect all creeds.

His declaration was made after he received representatives of the Interdenominational Church Alliance, composed of German Evangelical, Catholic and Jewish delegations, calling to congratulate him on becoming President.

A spokesman for the three faiths assured the President they were ready to place the moral forces of their churches and religions at the disposal of the Fatherland.

In replying, President von Hindenburg said that without a spirit of religious tolerance the future of Germany could not be furthered.

EMPIRE PREFERENCE DIVIDES LABORITES

J. H. Thomas and Others Vote With Baldwin on Tariff, Reversing Former Stand.

CLYDE MEN CHANGING VIEWS

Wembley Exhibition Is Credited With Causing Conversions—Proposals Carry in Commons.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—Twenty members of the Labor Party, including J. H. Thomas and Dr. Haden Guest, voted with the Government today on the question of imperial preference. At least another dozen members of the same party, it is understood, would have been on the same side if present in the House of Commons.

The vote is considered one of the most interesting and significant features of the recent evolution of the Labor Party. Until a year ago it was solid for free trade and was said to be persistently blind to competition from cheap alien labor and the chances of assisting British industry by encouraging inter-imperial trade. Lately, largely through the efforts of the British Commonwealth group, among whose members are several prominent Labor representatives, some changes are occurring on the Labor benches. Then came the Wembley exhibition, with its object lesson of the resources of the Empire.

Mr. Thomas may be cited as a case in point. Last year he was Secretary for the Colonies and did his best to make the Wembley affair a success. This year, when out of office, he accepted an important position in its council. Consequently today, in spite of gibes from his own political friends, he announced he intended to vote for every preferential provision which he had condemned last year.

Just a year ago the Labor Government was in power and imperial preference was before the House. On that occasion, as Ramsay MacDonald did not wish to take responsibility for throwing down an arrangement reached after formal conference with the Dominions, the matter was left to an unfettered vote in the House. Stanley Baldwin, as Premier at the time of the conference, moved a series of resolutions granting preference. Ramsay MacDonald, as Premier actually in office, opposed them. There was a very close vote, a certain number of Labor members supporting the resolutions, but they were lost by a small majority.

Now a considerable section of labor representatives, notably Clyde members, have changed their minds, and politicians are wondering how far the swing away from the strict doctrine of free trade will go. It will take time to develop fully the consequences, but it is believed they will show that labor is trying to evolve a new foreign policy in harmony with their belief in the efficacy of Socialism rather than its acceptance of the old protective theory.

One school of Labor, though, believes much could be accomplished by the regulation of imports in reference to the needs of this country and the power to produce different classes of articles within its own borders, and considers that such regulation would more likely be carried out successfully if the trade of the Dominions were developed to a greater extent.

It will take time for these economic ideas to develop, but it was recognized tonight in the lobbies that, whether they gather support or not, the revolt of so large a proportion of Labor members from the traditional free-trade allegiance is an event of considerable political importance.

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—In the committee stage of the Finance bill in the House of Commons today an attempt to postpone the operation of a clause dealing with imperial preference for tobacco, wines, dried and preserved fruits was defeated by a vote of 277 to 93.

A Labor amendment proposed Jan. 1, 1926, as the date for the imperial preference to be made effective. Later the entire preference clause of the Finance bill was adopted without further division.

SEES HEALTH IN THIN ATTIRE

British Expert Says Girls Thus Get More Violet Rays Than Boys.

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—In view of the low cut neck effect, short skirts and spider-web stockings which are now in the mode, girls have a better chance for health than boys, who usually wear too much clothing, in the opinion of Dr. Leonard Hill of the National Institute of Medical Research.

Because of these fads women and girls permit more of the ultra-violet rays to enter their bodies, and if the fashion continues, he avers, it is probable that statistics will eventually show that they are the healthier of the two sexes.

"I have no doubt," says Dr. Hill, "that in the near future both men's and women's clothing will be designed with a view of allowing the body to receive as plentiful a supply as possible of the sun's rays."

KELLOGG DELIVERS WARNING TO MEXICO

this Government to use its influence and its support in behalf of stability and orderly constitutional procedure, but it should be made clear that this Government will continue to support the Government in Mexico only so long as it protects American lives and American rights and complies with its international engagements and obligations.

The Government of Mexico is now on trial before the world. We have the greatest interest in the stability, prosperity and independence of Mexico. We have been patient and realize, of course, that it takes time to bring about a stable Government, but we cannot countenance violation of her obligations and failure to protect American citizens.

The situation in Mexico is represented by one of those at last night's White House conference as being much worse than pictured in the Kellogg statement. It is stated that while there have not been many recent killings of Americans in Mexico, that American properties have been illegally taken and without indemnification.

"The situation," said this man, "has reached the point where American property fails to command the respect in Mexico that it should have. In plain words, they have grabbed American property, and squat on it and paid little attention to requests for restoration or indemnification."

Coincidental with the arrival of Ambassador Sheffield reports have reached Washington that another revolutionary movement is pending.

Situation Reported Critical.

Information reaching Washington on the situation in Mexico through reliable channels and confirmed in authoritative quarters here is to the effect:

That lands taken for division and distribution are not paid for, even in Government bonds.

That title to parcels of land are vested in peasant proprietors, but withheld by the Government and that this is contrary to the Constitution.

That many local Governments in Mexico have been Sovietized and that the Governors of many of the Mexican States have not been properly elected, some being designated by the Calles régime and many of the elections a farce.

Although President Calles appears to have been considerably sobered by the responsibilities of office, it is declared to be a fact that radical doctrines have been spread in Mexico, and that the labor situation is such that many foreign business men take a very pessimistic view of the situation. Two members of the Cabinet, Leon and Morones, in charge of the Departments of Agriculture and Labor, are declared to be Bolshevist in their tendencies, and when a prominent Soviet official of Russia died recently flags were ordered at half mast in Mexico City for three days. Representatives of the Russian Soviet Government recently went to Mexico on a mission connected with the oil industry.

The truth concerning conditions in Mexico is being suppressed, it is said, and newspapers in opposition to the Government are declared to be afraid to speak out. There has been great depression in business in Mexico, and this has been attributed in some part to lack of confidence in the Government.

Information reaching Washington is to the effect that the Calles Government is weak and that the present situation has all the earmarks of those periodical collapses which have been followed by a revolutionary movement.

While officials refused to admit that they possessed information indicating revolutionary tendencies, and, in fact, Secretary Kellogg said he very much hopes that "this is not true," information has reached Washington through other sources that but for the fear that the United States would support the Calles Administration and supply it with arms, as Obregon was supplied, elements who were sympathetic to the Huertistas would again take the field against the Mexican Government.

Tellez Says Mexico Will Pay.

"I fully concur in the belief expressed by Secretary Kellogg that it is the desire of the Mexican Government to carry out the claims conventions and to indemnify American citizens for losses or injuries," Ambassador Don Manuel C. Tellez declared today when asked to comment on the statement of the Secretary of State.

"In the face of the Mexican Government it is more than a belief, it is a fixed and determined policy, to comply with all its international obligations to the fullest extent and as rapidly as the physical possibilities of the country will permit.

"The claims commissions were first proposed by Mexico in May, 1921, and, after the conventions were signed with the United States, similar conventions were signed with other countries, including France, Germany and Spain. The commissions are set up, and our Commissioner is in Washington at the present time prepared to carry out his part of the functions for which the commissions were created."

Gen. Sladen Congratulates Class—Many Graduates Attend Ceremonies at West Point.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—"If this country is ever again forced into war, it is determined that there shall be no slackers and no profiteers," said Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis today in delivering the Commencement Day address to the graduating class of the United States Military Academy here.

"There are those," he continued, "who apparently believe that because a peace-loving citizen becomes an army officer, he is transformed overnight into a militarist, ardently desiring war. There is no danger of militarism in this country, certainly not among military men. In my close and intimate contact with army officers in recent years, I have never heard one of them make a single remark which could be construed as militaristic. The men who fight do not want wars—it is only those who hope to make a profit out of them. Army officers are strongly for peace to the very limit that peace can be maintained with honor.

"Our military plans at the War Department are based solely on security, not aggression. They are essential for defense, utterly unsuited for attack. They carry out the mandate of the Constitution 'to provide for the common defense.' They are not preparation for war, but preparation against war, in the desire to insure, in so far as possible, peace for this country. Coupled with the duty to defend the nation goes the will for peace with honor."

Secretary Davis, who was introduced by Major Gen. Fred W. Sladen, Superintendent of the Academy, regretted, he said, that illness prevented Secretary of War Weeks from addressing the graduates. He said that, "almost without exception," he had found the officers of the regular army "unselfish and patriotic, hard working and uncomplaining, loyal to their chiefs and devoted to their country."

Education Just Beginning.

"Today, gentlemen," went on Secretary Davis, "you finish your basic military education. That it is the equal of any in the world is conclusively proven by the glorious record of the graduates of West Point. But you must remember that this education, although basic, is elementary—that your real education as an officer is just beginning and will continue throughout your whole military life.

"An army officer's most important qualification—the leadership of men—cannot be learned from books. Leadership of men, whether in the military, political, or business world, is a never-ending, fascinating, but difficult study in applied psychology. While, in my opinion, West Point should give more emphasis to the study of theoretical psychology, yet its practical application can be learned only in the school of experience. Unless you are willing to learn in that school, I fear that your basic military education will be of secondary value because the officer who does not know men is of little value in the modern army.

"This study of applied psychology is particularly important to the officers of the regular army of the United States under our plan of civilian defense. The regular officer must study and understand the regular soldier, a man equal in his own profession to any professional soldier in the world, but having some traits which differentiate him from most civilians.

"He must study and understand the members of the National Guard, a most important link in our chain of national defense, who are unselfishly devoting their spare time to fitting themselves to insure the security of the country. He must study and understand the members of the Officers' Reserve Corps, who are all serving for purely patriotic reasons, and who, in large part, are business men of more mature years than the regular officers who are assigned to duty with them.

"In order to handle this team, each group of which requires a different treatment, it is necessary for the capable soldier to adjust himself to the psychology of the men with whom he is working. By that I do not mean that he should seek to curry favor with them. The men in all components of the army are willing to be led, they are ready and anxious to concede the technical superiority of the regular officer in his own trade. All they need is to be intelligently directed. But the officer of today must know the minds of his men. He must know the minds not only of the professional soldiers in the ranks of the regulars; he must know the National Guard mind and the reserve officer mind, as a large part of his work will be with citizen soldiers and soldier-citizens. Above all, he must know himself, as no man can successfully command others until he can command himself.

Officer Has Civilian Contacts.

"Formerly the regular army officer moved in a restricted sphere, living in isolated posts, associating chiefly with those of his own profession, out of touch with civilian life. Now that situation is completely changed. The National Defense act is based largely on the civilian soldier, and the regular army officer is being brought into much closer contact with the civilian and industrial life of the country.

"Few people realize the vast amount of work done by the War Department in promoting the commercial, social and industrial welfare of the country. In the early days it opened and guarded the way to the West, surveyed the four transcontinental railway routes, built our early highways and lighthouses and established the Geological Survey and the Weather Bureau. It constructed and is operating the Panama Canal and is developing inland waterways.

"The department has taken a conspicuous part in stamping out such diseases as the hookworm, yellow fever, typhoid, and has set a remarkable example of sanitation in our overseas dependencies. It is now experimenting in the eradication of such agricultural pests as the boll weevil and such shipping pests as the marine borer. It is aiding in the development of radio and commercial aviation.

"Most important of all, it is educating our soldiers and raising the low physical standards of our young men through training camps. In fact, 19 9-10 per cent. of our War Department appropriation is being spent, and a large additional amount indirectly, in promoting the social, agricultural and industrial welfare of the country. So every Army officer should take an interest in the civic activities of his local community. The War Department does not exist for war alone; it is an agency of peace and an important factor in the peace-time development of the country.

"As unity between the three components of the army is essential to the national defense, so also is unity between the different branches within the components. The World War showed the vital importance of this close cooperation, as, for example, between infantry and artillery. Of recent years there has grown up a new branch of the service, of the utmost importance, the understanding of which is essential to the successful operation of every other branch. I refer to aviation. Every officer of every combatant branch should understand the powers, the possibilities and the problems of aviation, as well as its limitations.

"Equally important, every aviation officer should understand the functions, scope and limitations of the other arms. The closest possible cooperation and team-work under difficult conditions is essential to the success of the whole team. Accordingly, under a new policy to be adopted probably next week, more time will be devoted to the study of aviation, both theoretical and practical, by all the officers of the army, not only at West Point, but also at the service schools.

Calls For Team-Work.

"Like a football or baseball team, if the various branches work in close harmony, each knowing what the other can do and will do, the teams will be strong. If each thinks it is the only important member of the team, and knows and cares nothing about the others, the result will be failure. Intelligent cooperation, sympathetic understanding and unselfish team-work between all branches of the service, as well as between army and navy, are essential to the security of the country."

General Sladen, in congratulating the class upon its graduation, said that the transition between being a first class man at West Point and a Second Lieutenant in the army was far greater than the cadets thought.

"Out of this class of 244," said he, "forty-six were appointed to the academy from the ranks of the regular army, and sixteen from the National Guard. Watch your careers, for it is through them that the War Department will determine whether the policy of making appointments from the ranks and the National Guard is a wise one or not."

The exercises were held at the Battle Monument and were attended by distinguished graduates. The oldest one present today was General Morris Schaff, who was graduated here in 1862. Others were Major-Gen. Hugh Scott, former Superintendent of the academy and Chief of Staff of the army; Major-Gen. Charles H. Muir, a Division Commander overseas; Major-Gen. John L. Chamberlain, former Inspector-General; Major-Gen. Charles H. Barth, whose son, Charles H. Jr., was graduated at the head of the class today; Major-Gen. C. McKay Saltzman, Chief Signal Officer, whose son, C. E. Saltzman, stood fourth; Major-Gen. Robert L. Howze, whose son, Robert L. Jr., also was a graduate; Major-Gen. George Bell and Major-Gen. J. T. Dickman, Commander of the Third Corps in the A. E. F.

At the conclusion of the exercises the appointments of cadet officers for the coming year was announced at a formation on the parade ground. Cadet I. Maude is the new Regimental Commander; R. E. M. Des Islets, Adjutant, and K. Kammerer, Supply Officer, all with the rank of Captain.

Announce Cadet Captains.

The new cadet captains are Cadets W. C. Baker, R. W. Pearson, C. E. Martin, Brusher, Purcell, Bayer, Ehrgott, Ankenbrandt, R. M. Osborne, Sims, C. R. Smith and Helberg. Those named as Lieutenants are Cadets Booth, Roosma, Baird, Matthias, Reeve, Hickman, Storke, Elliott, Parks, Raney, Barney, Calhoun, Van Meter, Richardson, Anderson, Nelson, Canham, Johnson, Creasy, Toftoy, McNamara, Barbour, Gross and Ennis.

The new first class will go to Fort Wright for two weeks' instruction in aviation, returning here June 28. The new fourth class will report July 1. It is expected to number about 600, which will gradually be weeded to approximately half that number.

ALTER GRADUATION MARCH.

'Negroes' Protest Leads to Separation of Girls and Boys.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 12.—Due to a protest lodged by the negroes of this town, the boy and girl graduaets of the Montclair High School marched in two single lines, the girls in one line and the boys in the other, instead of in one double line, to receive their diplomas at the graduation exercises held tonight.

Last Monday Mrs. Mary Rice Allen, negress and Secretary of the Montclair Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, presented to the Board of Education a petition in which it was charged that the negro students were discriminated against at the annual graduation function.

Mrs. Alein complained that heretofore when the graduates were formed into a double line—each boy marching beside a girl—the negroes had been placed together in a separate part of the line instead of taking their places in alphabetical order according to their names.

INTERNATIONAL GROUP TO PROTECT TONGUE

British Societies Unite and Have 'Encouraging Reply' From American Bodies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—An international association with branches in Great Britain and America for the preservation of the English language is to be formed, it was announced tonight at the English association dinner. It is not infrequently suggested here that more than the Atlantic separates the language of the British and the Americans, but apparently the English association thinks that cooperation can prevent the perpetuation of these divergencies.

It was stated tonight that it has been suggested that an international association for he care and safeguarding of the English language not by academic means but simply by keeping careful watch over its progress should be established. The Royal Society of Literature, the English association, and the British Academy have made a formal alliance to form the English section of such an international association and have suggested that Americans should form out of the American Academy and other bodies a similar association, each branch to endeavor to throw light on the progress, decadence or destruction of the language. An encouraging reply to the proposal has been received from the United States.

The painting is the head of an old patrician, and is identified by the Director of the Vienna Museum of Fine Arts, Dr. Gluck, and Director Friedlander of the Berlin Museum.

RIVERDALE SCHOOL GIVEN TO TRUSTEES

Proprietors Announce Gift of Institution to a Board to Insure Its Perpetuation.

PROPERTY VALUED $1,000,000

Any Earned Surplus to Go to School Uses—$100,000 War Memorial Athletic Field Finished.

The Riverdale Country School for Boys at Riverdale, the Bronx, will be turned over to a Board of Trustees, headed by George McAneny, for the purpose of assuring its perpetuation, it was announced on behalf of the founders and owners, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hackett, yesterday at the school's eighteenth commencement exercises. The buildings and grounds of the institution are valued at $1,000,000.

The school is situated on twelve acres of ground just west of Broadway and Van Cortlandt Park at 253d Street. It enrolled 250 pupils this year. Its development represents the life work of Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, whose purpose in turning the school over to a Board of Trustees was explained by Mr. Hackett as follows:

"Mrs. Hackett and I are just individuals. Anything may happen to us at any time. In the event of our death the Riverdale Country School for Boys would be continued, if at all, by our executors, and we do not feel that executors would be in a position to continue the school with the greatest success.

"So we decided to give the Riverdale Country School for Boys to a Board of Trustees so that they could perpetuate it. The trustees are men who have sent their children to the Riverdale Country School for Boys and they have the welfare and future of the school at heart."

Mr. Hackett further explained that the school no longer would be operated for profit. If there should be any surplus income it will be used in part for increasing scholarships, for expansion of building and equipment and for increases in the compensation of the teaching staff.

The Board of Trustees includes, besides the Chairman, Mr. McAneny, who is Chairman of the Transit Commission, the following: Richard W. Lawrence, Treasurer; Archibald Douglas, Secretary; Edward C. Delafield; Charles Evans Hughes Jr., Henry Greene Hotchkiss, the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick and Mr. Hackett.

In accepting the gift of the school, Mr. Douglas said:

"As Secretary of the Board of Directors of the holding company which owns all of the real estate and personal property and plant, including the good-will, of Riverdale Country School, it becomes my pleasure and duty to make formal announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hackett, founders of Riverdale Country School in 1907 and sole owners of the stock of this holding corporation, have proffered to this Board of Directors a gift without compensation of all of their stock and interest in this corporation, upon condition that the whole will by due process of law be turned over in perpetuity to an educational foundation to be established under the laws of the State of New York. These laws provide that a charter may be granted to such an educational foundation upon due approval and upon the requirement that it will always be administered solely for the advancement of education, and not at any time for the profit of any individual or group of individuals.

"To all of those interested in the school and to the public generally we feel that this great and generous gift by the founders of the school, representing their life work, will be welcomed as evidence of the fact that there are those who set ideals above material gain, and this action on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Hackett will serve as both an example and an inspiration."

It also was announced that the war memorial athletic field, constructed at a cost of more than $100,000, was now complete and would be dedicated in the Fall. Of the funds required for its construction $75,000 was underwritten by Dr. Charles V. Paternò, Mr. Lawrence and Anthony Campagna.

Dr. John H. Finley delivered the commencement address, and Mr. Hackett then announced the awards, in which a large number of students shared. Following are a few of the more important awards: The highest honor of the school, that of Head Boy, "the one who has contributed most to the life of the school," was awarded to Quentin Irving Smith of Yonkers, with honorable mention to Alfred Bernhard Roby and Ernest McAneny, both of New York City. The Scholarship Cup was won by Philip Barbour Bennett of Yonkers, son of Whitman Bennett.

DEGREES AWARDED TODAY

The Rev. Mr. Woelfkin, in Baccalaureate Sermon to Graduates Defends Evolution.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 12.—All hotels, fraternity houses and dormitories in New Brunswick were packed to capacity tonight by graduates of Rutgers University, who have flocked here to attend commencement exercises tomorrow.

Rutgers campus was alive with the returning alumni who arrived early to attend the 1925 class reunion tonight. The number present by far exceeds those of any previous year.

Eleven out of the fourteen living graduates of the class if 1875 were present at the fiftieth annual reunion dinner of the class, held in Wynants Hall. Two of the other living members were unable to attend because of illness. The third is living in Japan. Those present were:

John H. Ackerman, Englewood, N. J.; Howard Gillespy, Saugerties, N. Y.; the Rev. Hendrick A. Hendrickson, Flushing, N. Y.; Walter Kip, Passaic, N. J.; Dr. W. P. Watson, Jersey City, N. J.; Arthur L. Pitsworth, Plainfield, N. J.; Dr. Elan M. Garton, Midland Park, N. J.; Charles L. Washburn, Washington, D. C.; the Rev. V. V. D. Wyckoff of Readington, N. J.; Oliver Walser of Cohoes, N. Warren J. Brodie of the class of '87, of Cleveland, and Irving L. Reed of Asbury Park.

Mr. Reed was elected to fill the unexpired term of S. Parker Gilbert, who resigned last month because he has taken up residence in Germany. Mr. Brodie succeeds Robert S. Parsons, Vice President of the Erie Railroad, whose term expired today.

"Religion is the universal instinct of faith" and "evolution is a chapter of faith in the realm of biology," the graduating class was told today in the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, who recently resigned as pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York.

"Every generation has to win anew its own conquests of faith. A belief in the traditions and doctrines of the past is not faith. They are stories of other men's struggles, not substitutes for our own," said Dr. Woelfkin.

Faith's Battle With Nature.

"Faith has its first battle with nature, that existenc of things with its terrible forces to which we are inevitably related. Nature is beneficient, furnishing us with many comforts, but eventually we outgrow its unconscious nature and find ourselves greater than it. Then we discover its sinister aspects. We struggle against it in an unequal fight.

"The serious consideration of this seemingly unequal struggle causes thinking men to have mental vertigo. Herbert Spencer saw the full sweep of this maelstrom of integration, disintegration, reintegration and so forth, and raised the despairful verdict: 'The horrible thought, what if there be no meaning at all! I do not blame men for taking refuge in dogma.' Religion has been the age-long struggle to understand and overcome the world.

"It seems sometimes as though there were nothing scientific about religion. But there are three things common in all religious quests. They believe in an unseen spiritual world; they believe that our refuge and hope lie in that world; and they believes that in some form, by some sacrifice, ritual, law or works, man can establish contact and overcome the world. Religion is the universal instinct of faith.

"The story of evolution is a chapter of faith in the realm of biology. Life in the lowest forms felt its limitations and by an instinctive urge went forth not knowing whither it went, but as it went found the larger environment, readjusted itself to the churches and overcame its primal world. Evolution is a romance of victory.

"Religion is this urge of divine discontent that goes out, not knowing whither, but seeking a country larger and victorious over a world that imprisons and threatens life. We believe that in the Christian faith we have the power of victory."

LOVING CUP TO ATHLETE.

Homer Hazel Adjudged Man Who Has Done Most for Rutgers.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 12.—At a meeting of the graduating class of Rutgers University today Homer Hazel of New Brunswick, 27 years old, father of three children, all-American football player and four-letter athlete, received the class prize, a silver loving cup, for "the man who has done most for Rutgers."

Hazel, after five years' absence from college, gave up a $5,000 job in Detroit because he found difficulty in increasing his earning capacity, and returned to Rutgers three years ago. Tomorrow he is to receive the degree of Bachelor of Science. He has been appointed Director of Athletics at the University of Mississippi for the coming year.

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP).—Attorney General Sargent will leave here tonight for a trip to New England, during which he will receive the degree of Doctor of Laws from Tufts, June 15; Middlebury, June 16; Norwich, June 18 and Dartmouth June 23. He will deliver the commencement address at Middlebury.

PRINCETON ABOUNDS IN COLORFUL SCENES

ALUMNI SWARM INTO TOWN

Graduates Make Final Preparations for Costume Parade—Four of Class of '65 Will Walk.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 12.—Princeton alumni, returning to witness the 178th annual commencement of their alma mater, will hold the centre of the stage in this little college town tomorrow, when they will march from Nassau Hall to University Field, accompanied by bands and animal mascots, to watch the Tiger and Bulldog clash in the annual commencement game. Thirty classes will hold official reunions, in addition to which four members of the class of '65 will march.

Freshmen and sophomores celebrated their advancement to the two respective higher classes here this afternoon by marching in their colorful parades. Traffic was stopped for several minutes while the sophomores, decked out in the traditional high hats and canes, marched the length of Nassau Street and returned to the steps of the historic debating halls for their annual picture. The tradition marks the day when juniors made a practice of wearing high hats and canes.

Members of the class of 1928 celebrated the completion of their freshman year by donning the white trousers prohibited to yearlings, and by marching the full length of Prospect Street, giving a cheer in front of each of the upper class eating clubs and ending their line of march at Prospect, the home of the President.

Increasing swarms of alumni, already clad in their colorful and distinctive uniforms, rallied round their various class headquarters all evening in final preparation for the parade.

Two events of interest to alumni and graduates alike will feature tomorrow morning's activities, when the cornerstone will be laid for the new university chapel and the Isabella McCosh Infirmary will be officially dedicated. At the same hour as that selected for the annual junior oratorical contest, President John Grier Hibben will deliver the dedicatory address of the new hospital on its site, several yards west of the original structure, dedicated to Mrs. Isabella McCosh, widow of Princeton's former President.

A quartet of well known Princetonians will lead the alumni of the university in the parade, which will culminate the reunion program of the graduates, who represent nearly every State in the Union. Charles A. McClintock, '07, will serve as chief marshal at the head of the procession. William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, class of 1900, will perform his well established duty of carrying the national colors. Edwards achieved the distinction while an undergraduate of captaining two successive championship football teams, those of '98 and '99. Park Davis, class of '93, who, like Edwards, is one of the largest alumni of old Nassau, will bear the university colors.

DRY COMMENCEMENT PROMISED AT YALE

Returning Class Secretaries Say Wishes of University Will Be Respected at All Functions.

2,000 ALUMNI ARE EXPECTED

Dramatic Association Opens the Week With Presentation of Rostand's "L'Aiglon" Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, June 12.—Yale will have a dry commencement week, according to secretaries of the reunion classes, who today began to arrive for the 224th graduating exercises.

They made it clear that the request of President James Rowland Angell, who asked that no liquor be served at the class dinners, would be observed. Among others, the two classes which have been represented as having planned otherwise, '75 and '95, have given the university official assurances that the law will be obeyed. Newell Martin of the class of '75, which has begun to gather here for its semicentennial, wrote to THE NEW YORK TIMES urging the class to go to Montreal, where it could hold a reunion flanked by wine glasses. Samuel R. Betts of New York, the '75 Secretary, has made it clear to Dr. Angell that there was no movement on the part of the class to hold the reunion anywhere else than at New Haven. President Angell himself will probably visit the reunion dinner of the class of '75.

Members of the class of '95, of which George T. Adee, one of the most prominent Yale alumni of New York, is head, stated tonight that several months ago it was definitely decided that there would be no liquor at the class functions. The Rev. Clement Clark of this class heard differently and sent a letter of protest about it. Clark has a son who is on the Yale crew and basketball team. He was himself scholarship leader, intercollegiate debater and prize winner as an undergraduate.

Attacks on Yale Policy.

Indignation at what are termed thoroughly irresponsible attacks on Yale policy and in some cases upon the administration headed by President James Rowland Angell is expressed tonight in the Yale Alumni Weekly editorially, with a demand that it cease, or at least be replaced by sane, honest, accurate and intelligent criticism. The weekly says that the past year has witnessed volumes of criticism in connection with such campus improvements as the so-called "hush hall" and the request to returning classes not to bring liquor to commencement. The Alumni Weekly says:

"The attacks last Fall by Yale writers in the daily papers on the corporation for placing a new dormitory on the campus, the misleading and vicious attacks during the Winter on the dramatic department gift and the equally unfair attacks this Spring on the President and elected representatives of the reunion classes for the latters' effort to set the commencement liquor question right, were all new things in Yale life. We fully concur in the sentiments of a correspondent whose letter we publish this week that it is high time to call a halt on this sort of thing."

Yale alumni, more than 2,000 strong, are expected in New Haven this week-end. Accommodations for the thirty reunion classes have been arranged as far as possible in university dormitories. Others will be taken care of in local hotels and country clubs.

Classes holding reunions this year and their reunion Chairmen are:

Rostand's Play Tonight.

The first scheduled event is the presentation tomorrow of Rostand's "L'Aiglon" by the Yale Dramatic Association, in an original translation by Basil Davenport, '26, of Louisville, Ky. The title rôle will be played by James W. Cooper, '26, of New Britain, Conn.

On Sunday a special service for the class of 1880 will be held at St. John's Episcopal Church at which the Rt. Rev. Sidney Catlin Partridge, Yale '80, Bishop of the Western Diocese of Missouri, will preach. Other alumni will attend the baccalaureate address in Woolsey Hall to be given by President James Rowland Angell. Class luncheons and golf and tennis at various country clubs in and around New Haven will follow.

Monday will be field day for most of the reunion classes. They will have outings at country clubs and seaside hotels in and near New Haven. Many of the alumni will join the members of the class of 1880 and the university in paying respect to Walter Camp, '80, at a memorial service in Battell Chapel.

Tuesday morning will be devoted to a general meeting of the alumni and in the afternoon the reunion classes, temporarily disguised beyond recognition in the usual diversity of commencement regalia, will parade to the blare of many bands to Yale Field for the Harvard-Yale baseball game.

The commencement exercises and luncheon following on Wednesday will be attended by the alumni. These events mark the close of the reunion programs for most classes, but many graduates are expected to stay in New Haven until Friday when they will go to New London for the Harvard-Yale boat races.

Ten Graduate From Nurses' School.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 12.—Ten student nurses were graduated from St. Mary's Training School for Nurses at the commencement exercises in the Knights of Columbus auditorium here this evening. The Rev. Dr. John A. Dillon, former head of the parochial schools of the Newark Diocese, made the principal address. The graduates are the Misses Helen Reilly, Edith Shea, Helen McMahon, Margaret McNamara, Marie Gormley, Rosa Quinn, Margaret Hayes, Mary Burke, Adele Cakall and Cathrine Higgens.

Hankow Killings Resented in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, June 12 (AP).—Fifteen thousand Chinese millworkers, who had struck and later returned to work, walked out tonight. The recrudescence of the strike was considered an immediate result of the sharp disorders at Hankow.

Lesser outbreaks, principally directed against Japanese on the North Szechuen Road were reported to Settlement authorities tonight.

The shipping tie-up, due to the waterside strike, continued almost complete tonight. Thirty-five vessels were idle. Others, which normally would have called at Shanghai, were reported to have been diverted to other ports.

The following foreign war craft are now at Hankow:

The British gunboats Bee, Gnat and Mantis, the American destroyer Stewart, gunboat Monacacy and another American boat, the name of which is not available; three Japanese and one Italian gunboats and one French sloop.

The British sloop Hollyhock is expected to arrive tomorrow.

PEKING, June 12.—An attempt is being made to promote a big strike in Tientsin next week, according to reports today in that city. In Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi, students assisted a mob which wrecked shops selling foreign goods, principally Japanese.

Here in Peking students continue to stop traffic, entering shops and private houses, holding meetings, parading with flags to get subscriptions, urging servants to desert their foreign employ and seek to promote strikes. Part of the native press supports their efforts by publishing distorted reports of the Shanghai troubles.

Envoys Ignore Peking's Demands.

PEKING, June 12 (AP).—Representatives of foreign powers here today replied to the note of the Chinese Foreign Office by saying that the most appropriate means of reestablishing law and order at Shanghai would be to discuss on the spot the best measures to bring about the desired end.

The reply ignored the Chinese stipulation that all foreign forces should leave Shanghai before peace measures are discussed.

The reply adds that legations have told their delegates in Shanghai to consider, together with the Consular Corps there, and representatives of the Chinese Government, the best way out.

After reminding the Chinese Government of a desire for the amicable settlement of the Shanghai situation, the reply says the diplomats "cannot abstain from the recalling to the Chinese Government that it incurs a heavy responsibility in any situation which concerns the maintenance of order in Shanghai, Peking and generally speaking throughout China."

QUITS HUPEH PROVINCE.

Episcopal Mission Withdraws Men, Women and Children.

The abandonment of all schools, hospitals and churches operated by Episcopal missionaries in Hupeh Province is indicated in a cable received here yesterday by Dr. John W. Wood, Executive Secretary of the Department of Missions of the Episcopal Church, from the Rev. Alfred A. Gilman, Suffragan Bishop of Hankow. The dispatch said:

"Situation is serious. Women, children and missionaries have been ordered to this port."

There are about fifty missionaries in Hupeh Province, ti was said at the local office of the Episcopal Board of Missions at 218 Fourth Avenue. Fifteen of them are married and have families.

The Province of Hupeh comprises about 70,000 square miles, and is divided by the Yangtse River. At Wuchang, which is across the river from Hankow, are located Boone University, an Episcopal Church and General Hospital and St. Hilda's School. Bishop Gilman's cable is interpreted as meaning that all of these institutions have been abandoned.

Another cable received two days ago from Bishop Frederick R. Graves at Shanghai told of the abandonment of the Mahan School and St. Faith's School at Yangchow. Still later a second cable said that St. John's University and St. Mary's Hall at Shanghai had both been closed temporarily.

There is no anti-foreigner feeling in Canton, Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, provost of Johns Hopkins University and former President of the Canton Christian College, said yesterday in the office of the trustees of Canton Christian College at 18 East Forty-first Street.

"In Shanghai the situation is different," said Dr. Edmunds. "Here undoubtedly there is a strong anti-foreign feeling, especially against the British. They have tried to handle the strike situation with hard-fisted methods, using rifle fire and other drastic means.

"You can't apply Western methods to the labor situation in China. The labor movement is in its infancy there, and the present trouble is only a symptom of growing pains, accompanying the evolution of Old China into a modern state. The Chinese are sensitive, and it is incumbent on foreigners to act with discretion in dealing with them. Unfortunately, they have taken advantage of their extra-territorial rights and have ruthlessly employed Western methods in dealing with labor. But I am not over-disturbed by the whole situation, although the condition in Shanghai is somewhat serious."

ORANGE, N. J., June 12.—Relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Ogden, formerly of 463 Hammond Avenue, Orange, were informed today that the following cablegram had been received at the New York office of the Canton Christian College:

"No anti-foreign demonstrations. All are safe."

Montgomery Ogden is the Bursar of the College. He and his wife went to China last Spring.

BRITISH ANSWER CHINESE.

Cite Small Casualties and Say Americans Also Fired.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—The protest concerning the Shanghai riots signed by professors in the National University at Peking is in complete variance from the facts as to the disturbance as received from official quarters, it is said here. Officials here say it is a mistake to describe the police of the International Settlement of Shanghai as "British controlled."

It is true that there is a large proportion of British officers, but the police force is international under control of the International Municipal Council, which happens at the present moment, to have an American Chairman—Sterling Fessenden.

Responsibility for police action during the prolonged disturbances, it is argued here, rests upon the council and the chairman.

The manifesto also gives a much higher estimate of casualties—seventy Chinese killed and 300 wounded, with no foreigners injured—than any report received here. A full summary of what occurred has not yet been received, but it is said here that the casualties between May 31 and June 3 were only twenty-one Chinese killed and sixty-one wounded.

Justification for the strong action taken by the police must necessarily be a matter of opinion, but the information received in London suggests that the police were in a very tight corner before they fired.

One incident in the disturbances in which Americans are alleged to be directly concerned has been reported here, but it is not clear what precise connection it has with the previous incident. A platoon of Americans belonging to the International Volunteers was fired upon from buildings held by Chinese students and an American was wounded, with the result, it has been reported, that the platoon returned the fire. Full details of the disturbance, however, have not been received in London.

ASSERTS NAVY NEEDS BATTLESHIP CRUISERS

Captain Earle, Made Head of Worcester Polytechnic, Urges Stronger Defenses.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 12.—"Not until our navy grows weak will any outside war cloud annoy this land," declared Captain Ralph Earle, formerly commander of the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I., in assuming the presidency of Worcester Polytechnic Institute today. In his address, "The Naval Defense of America," to the graduating class, he emphasized "equality with the strongest is the navy's proper size."

Explaining that the four-power treaty of the Washington Arms Limitation Conference prohibited the building of new naval bases, he said the Hawaiian islands must form the nation's only base in the Pacific Ocean, "distant as it is from the Philippines. It must be the base from which our fleet must operate in the Pacific."

"There has been much acrimonious discussion in the press of late as to whether or not our navy is keeping up to the strength allowed," he continued. "It is certainly doing the best possible and will not be found wanting when need comes again. Many say it was not ready in 1917, but that statement is an injustice. Our naval defense was good then, for, even if England had not kept the German fleet from attacking our shores until our army had been training, our fleet was perfectly able to do it."

He deplored the lack of large type battle cruisers banned by the arms limitation treaty, saying, "We are deficient, for in naval battles type must match type."

"Our naval defense is deficient in the fact that we do not possess the battle cruisers which can with impunity hunt down enormous aircraft carriers and destroy them before they can reach a position sufficiently near our big coast cities to enable an air attack to be launched upon them," he added.

Lacking these battle cruisers the navy was forced to rely on its large fleet of destroyers, which were able to make the necessary speed to catch aircraft cruisers only in mild weather.

Stating that light cruisers could be built of not over 10,000-ton displacement with guns less than 8-inch in calibre, he said the navy needed more such vessels "if we are to find a better means than destroyers to insure that no hostile aircraft carrier reaches striking distance of the coast."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Science was conferred on President Earle, who is a native of Worcester, and has distinguished himself in the scientific field in naval work.

Other degrees were conferred as follows:

Electric Engineer—Adam Pen-Tung Sah of Peking, Harold A. Maxfield of Lowell, Roger C. Lawrence of Lakewood, Ohio; Ralph D. Paul of Southbridge, Edward Topanelian of Worcester.

Master of Science in Chemistry—Gaston Morrill and Leon V. Quigley of Worcester.

CREDIT MEN LAUD FEDERAL RESERVE

Declare Doubt of Its Permanence Would Hurt Business and Urge Charter Renewal.

ASK SAFEGUARDS FOR BANKS

Want Protection From Political Influence—Bankruptcy Law Is Endorsed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Voicing their faith in the Federal Reserve System and expressing their belief that any doubt as to its permanence would be harmful to business, the National Association of Credit Men, in session here, unanimously adopted a resolution today stressing the necessity for throwing safeguards around the rechartered banks that would give them "still greater protection against political influence," and recommending that early steps be taken looking to a renewal of the charter of the Federal Reserve System.

Other resolutions adopted include one urging an increase in the compensation of Federal Judges and pointing out that in some districts the number of Judges is inadequate, and another advocating State supervision of companies which lend money on accounts receivable. This class of loans was declared to be strictly banking business and, as such, should be subject to State supervision.

The Legislative Committee was directed to make a report on this problem at the next convention. Compromise settlements with creditors, which, it was charged, have encouraged fraud, were condemned.

The association declared anew its faith in the bankruptcy law and its system of administration. "It is convinced," said a resolution, "that no revolutionary changes in the statute are necessary to remove irregularities which have appeared in the administration of the law and expressly declares itself opposed to any amendment designed to establish a bureaucratic system of official receivers."

Optimistic predictions for the future of agriculture were made by Dr. David Friday of Washington, who discussed commodity prices.

"The acres under cultivation and the people working on them have actually declined since 1910," he said. "The farmers who fed 60,000,000 city folks fifteen years ago must feed 82,000,000 today.

"There is no likelihood that the supply of their products will outrun demand now that surplus stocks have been worked off. Farm prices will rise more rapidly than those of other commodities, or, if the general price level is falling, they will fall less."

William Mather Lewis, President of George Washington University, told the association that the needs of the modern system of credit must be understood if the educational institutions of the country were to be of real service in return to credit enterprise.

This afternoon delegates to the convention went to Arlington, where Major Gen. John A. Lejeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps, laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

New York is among the cities that have made bids for the 1926 convention of the Credit Men. Seattle, Louisville, Duluth and Philadelphia are also after the award. The decision as to where the convention will go in May, 1926, will be made at a meeting of the Board of Directors to be held in September.

HOOVER ADVISES FARMERS.

Says In Penn College Address That They Should Organize.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa, June 12 (AP).—A desire to see the farmer better organized through cooperative marketing in order to bring agriculture into a position of equality with other industries, and to place it on a more firm basis, was expressed by Secretary Hoover in a commencement address prepared for delivery today to the graduating class of Penn College.

"Owing to his widely dispersed calling," Mr. Hoover said, "the farmer has been less able to summon real organization than the others. He has mostly organized himself on a political rather than on an economic basis. It is my feeling that the real goal of his organization must be the cooperative marketing of his products, for, aside from the additional strength it will give to his industry, it has even more importance in the long run in lifting the leadership of his representative into a position to deal with his actual economic problems in relation to other groups."

Agriculture also should be so developed, Mr. Hoover stated, that it might attract and hold people as a calling. He pointed out that agriculture is a strong character builder, and that farm life is without "the artificialities" of urban existence.

"We should build better around our city workers," he added. "We have a great need to develop for them the way to better homes and thus to strengthen family ties and provide better protection to children. Above all, we need to tune our economic machine so that we may give them freedom from great waves of unemployment and insecurity to livelihood."

LEVIATHAN CARRIES 2,100.

Sails at 3 A. M., Giving Passengers Chance for Farewell Parties.

The Leviathan of the United States Lines sailed at 3 A. M. today for Cherbourg and Southampton with 2,100 passengers and a big consignment of mail. The gangways were not lowered until 2:30 A. M., enabling the passengers to attend farewell supper parties before boarding the ship.

Among the first cabin passengers was Mgr. R. Barry-Doyle of the Catholic Near East Association, who is on his way to Athens. He has been lecturing in the United States for two years, and served during the war with the Welsh, Scotch, Irish and English troops.

"No one can see much of America," the Monsignor said, "without being filled admiration. A splendid directness of spirit coupled with generosity is a characteristic, but your publicity is beyond me. I want to get away from that."

Another passenger on the Leviathan was United States Senator William H. King of Utah, who is a member of the Senate Committee on Inheritance Tax. He will go to England and the Near East to study the Lausanne Treaty, he said.

PUBLISHERS TO MEET.

New Jersey Association Will Discuss Dailies and Weeklies.

The New Jersey Press Association will hold its sixty-ninth annual meeting at the Hotel Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass., on June 26 and the three days following. Congressman Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey will be the principal speaker. Officers for the coming year will be elected and there will be discussions by the editors and publishers of daily and weekly newspapers. William B. Bryant, Paterson Press-Guardian, will be in charge of the dailies and F. A. Robertson, Washington Star, of the weeklies.

Professor Alein Sinclair Will of Columbia University will give an outline of the new course in journalism at Rutgers University, of which he has charge and which is sponsored by the association. The committee appointed to care for the arrangements for the meeting includes Frederick L. Crane, Elizabeth Daily Journal; W. B. R. Mason, Bound Brook Chronicle, and John W. Clift, Summit Herald.

EXPECT HORTHY'S FALL AS HUNGARIAN REGENT

Oppositionists Propose Making Bethlen 'Palatine'—Crisis Grows on Royalist Question.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, June 12.—The Regent, Admiral Horthy, is believed to be tottering as the result of a crisis provoked by the recent accusation of former Minister Benizky that Horthy was responsible for the murder of two journalists, Somogyi and Bacso, during the reign of terror after the Red revolution.

The fight of the Hungarian parties for final settlement of the "King question," which has been smoldering for several years, now has reached an acute stage. Admiral Horthy originally assumed the post of Regent as lieutenant or "seat warmer" for King Charles and still is regarded by the Legitimists as a stop-gap.

Since the revolution of 1920 it has often been said that Hungary is a kingdom without a king. Now there is a general desire to dispose of the question. Several new proposals for a final Hungarian constitution have been presented to Parliament. As commander of the "White Troops," Horthy always has been an enemy of the Social Democrats, who propose to replace Horthy by creating a State council of three members.

The Government Party, however, proposes to restore the ancient office of Palatine. The idea is to eliminate Horthy and elect Count Bethlen, the Premier, to the Palatinate. The Bethlen family is one of the oldest in Hungary, dating to the time of King St. Stephen.

Horthy, as representative of the Hungarian King and former adjutant of the King, made countless enemies because he opposed the attempted return of King Charles in 1922. The Legitimists cannot forget that Horthy fought and made prisoner the King, whom he actually represented.

Until recently the questions of the throne and constitution have been adjourned in order to pacify the Little Entente, but now they have resumed an important place in the politics of the country and were violently discussed in the recent stormy sessions of Parliament. Some clarity is expected with the return of Count Bethlen from Geneva, where he is said to have achieved a triumph.

In any event a change may be expected in the near future, with the probability that Count Bethlen will assume the position of Palatine, an office created by the Hungarian line of Hapsburgs prior to 1848. It is hoped that with the disappearance of Horthy the opposition between the parties will be less acute. Nevertheless, it is recognized that this is a stepping stone for the return of the Hapsburgs.

Horthy was not inactive yesterday, with 40,000 of his followers demonstrating before the palace where he resides. Speaking before Parliament, he asserted that he always acted in the interests of the country. Severe measures were unavoidable, he said, and had it been necessary in the interest of the nation to punish culprits, as he was accused, he would have done it again.

The Opposition press regards the statement as an open admission that Horthy allowed the murderers of Somogyi and Basco to go. The Social Democrats, who had planned a huge demonstration at the graves of the two journalists, were prevented by the police from approaching the graves. The police would not even allow the widows of the two men to visit the graves.

LOSING BIDDER GETS YONKERS BUS LINE

Aldermen Expected to Fight the Mayor's Award After Veto of Theirs.

Mayor Ulrich Wiesendanger of Yonkers granted yesterday to the Yonkers Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Third Avenue Railway Company, an "emergency" permit to operate, beginning today, three lines of buses in Yonkers to replace service on five trolley lines. Mayor Wiesendanger's action, it was indicated, would bring about both legal and political complications, for the Yonkers Railroad Company recently was an unsuccessful bidder for the bus lines, which had been voted by the Board of Aldermen to the Westchester Street Railroad Company. The latter proposed to charge a 10-cent fare. Mayor Wiesendanger vetoed the award.

The Yonkers company has announced it will charge a 10-cent fare and give free transfers to its trolley lines. The latter will charge a 5-cent fare and will issue transfers to the bus lines for 5 cents extra. The three lines will be operated on Central Avenue, Bronx River Road and Tuckahoe Road to replace trolley lines on these routes and on Walnut Street and McLean Avenue.

The Board of Aldermen, most of whom, like the Mayor, are Republicans, are said to feel displeased by Mr. Wiesendanger's "going over their heads" to award the bus lines to the Yonkers company as an "emergency" measure, which is taken to indicate there will be antagonism to him within the ranks of his party. Further, the unsuccessful bidders for the lines are expected to contest the Mayor's permit on the ground that no "emergency" exists.

GETS MORE SUBWAY BIDS.

Board Announces Figures on Central Park West Section.

The Board of Transportation announced yesterday that it had received bids for the construction of the section of the Washington Heights subway in Central Park between Eighty-ninth and 100th Streets. The informal totals of the bids were as follows:

T. A. Gillespie, $3,997,000; Rosenthal Engineering and Contracting Company, $4,200,000; Frederick L. Cranford, $4,309,0000; Necaro Company, $4,337,000; Rodgers & Hagerty, $5,047,000, and Coleman Brothers, $5,401,000.

The board next Friday will receive bids for the construction of another section in Central Park West, from 100th to 111th Street. When this contract and the one for which bids were received yesterday are awarded, there will be under construction six sections of the new subway, all the way from Sixty-eighth Street and Central Park West to 133d Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, and two small sections at Broadway and 173d Street and Fort Washington Avenue ard 174th Street.

SAILORS SWIM FROM SHIP.

One Believed to Have Drowned Trying to Escape to Shore.

Four Hindu sailors jumped from the deck of the Hall line steamer Romeo, anchored a mile off Tompkinsville, S. I., yesterday morning and started to swim for shore. Three reached a dock near the Municipal Ferry, where they were picked up by a policeman. It was believed that the fourth was drowned.

The three were arraigned on charges of vagrancy before Magistrate Croak and later sent to Ellis Island. They told the Magistrate that their attempted escape was prompted by desire to get away from conditions on the ship. An officer of the vessel denied that the men had been treated badly. He said that they had signed for a round trip from Calcutta here and evidently wanted to enter this country surreptitiously.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Community Councils, 2240 Municipal Building, has issued an appeal for contributions. The objects of the organization are to carry on in New York that part of the "work of the Councils of National Defense not connected with war activities." It is hoped to raise $12,560.

Former Congressman Martin C. Ansorge, recently elected Chairman of the Washington Heights Division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, will be honored by Felix M. Warburg, Max D. Steuer and other speakers next Thursday night at an inaugural mass meeting in the Great Hall of City College.

TO DEDICATE CHURCH TO A NEW SAINT

SEAMEN'S CHURCH THANKED

Conrad's Widow Approves of a Memorial to the Author—Other News of Religion.

The first church in the United States in honor of St. Terese of Lisieux, commonly called "The Little Flower of Jesus," will be dedicated tomorrow. It is at Creskill, N. J., near Tenafly. St. Terese was cannonized on May 17 last. Pope Pius XI. officiated before more than forty Cardinals, many other high dignitaries of the church and 60,000 Holy Year pilgrims in the basilica. The Creskill church has been erected by the Carmelite Fathers, ground having been broken May 15, 1924, by the Rev. Father Fidelis. The architect was J. K. French of Brooklyn, and the contractors was the M. Weiss Construction Company, Inc. For the last fifty years the Catholics in Creskill have traveled a mile to attend mass in the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Tenafly. The cornerstone of the new church was laid last August by the Right Rev. Father Connely, Dean of Hackensack, in the presence of the Right Rev. Father Mahenis of Rome, provincial of the Carmelite Order, who was in this country touring the Carmelite monasteries. The first mass in the little structure was said on Sept. 24 last, which is the birthday of St. Terese, the celebrant being the Rev. Father Anthony C. Dressel, prior at Tenafly. Last Christmas the Rev. Luke Leinger, who had been appointed pastor, celebrated the first solemn mass in the church proper. During Easter week Father Luke received from Rome a relic of "The Little Flower" and it has been venerated ever since. A shrine of "The Little Flower" ordered a year ago from Austria is due here soon. This is a duplicate of the shrine in the Caremlite Convent in Lisieux, France, where St. Terese spent her years in prayer. She died twenty years ago in the convent of the Carmelite Nuns, Lisieux.

Edmund L. Baylies, President of the Seamen's Church Institute, has received a letter from Mrs. Jessie Conrad, widow of Joseph Conrad, the novelist, thanking the Joseph Conrad Memorial Committee for its plan to dedicate one of the large component units of the $2,000,000 annex to the institute, which is at 25 South Street, now under construction, as a memorial to Mr. Conrad. The letter was written from Canterbury, England, and was as follows: "My sons join me in very deep appreciation of the dedication as a memorial to my husband. He had always a very real liking and sympathy for all seamen and was very proud of being one himself. Will you kindly convey our thanks to those to whom they are due?"

Twenty-eight newly appointed missionaries of the Episcopal Church will be in attendance beginning today and continuing four days at the Church Mission House, 281 Fourth Avenue, at the second annual conference of outgoing missionaries. Problems of the mission field will be discussed. One of the new recruits is Dr. Mabel E. Elliott, a physician, author of "Beginning Again at Ararat," which describes in detail her experiences with relief work in the Near East. She will go to Tokio and join the staff of St. Luke's International Hospital. The Rev. Frederic W. Goodman, until recently on the staff of Trinity Church, is another volunteer. He is going to Point Hope, Alaska, to assume charge of the Archdeaconry of the Arctic, which has just been established under the Right Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe, Episcopal Bishop of Alaska. Twenty-one of the missionaries are women and seven are men. They will go to China, Japan, Alaska, the Philippines and East Africa. They come from thirteen States. Three of the men are graduates this year of the Virginia Episcopal Theological Seminary. There will be addresses this morning by Dr. John W. Wood, Secretary of the Department of Missions; Dr. Arthur R. Gray, of the Latin-American division; the Rev. A. B. Parson, for Africa; the Rev. Lindell Tsen, for the Orient.

Miss Myrtle Lohman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lohman of Mountain View, New Jersey, and a niece of Mrs. E. C. Bischoff, of Newark, left last Thursday night for the Pacific Coast, from where she will sail June 20, next, on the Steamship President Grant for China. She will assist in the administrative offices at Canton Christian College, the local office of which is at 18 East Forty-first Street. Eleven other recruits for the college staff will sail in July and August.

Sam Higginbottom, of India, who is considered one of the most picturesque missionaries in the world, has returned to New York for conferences with the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions concerning future missionary activities in India. Mr. Higginbottom not only preaches the gospel but he works the plow in connection with the Allahabad Agricultural Institute, India, of which he is the Principal. He has accomplished good economic results in India by the introduction of blooded cattle and by the use of American agricultural implements.

The Rev. John Marks Ericsson, rector of St. Paul's Church, Stockbridge, Mass. and formerly rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Yonkers, is acting as precentor until July 1 at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. This office is left vacant due to the fact that the Rev. Henry P. Veazie resigned to become rector of the Episcopal Church at Brockport, N. Y.

Two young men were taken under the care of the Presbytery of New York at its meeting last Monday, both desiring to enter the ministry. One was David Munroe Corey, a member of the Madison Avenue Church, and the other was Oscar Elis Erickson of 150 West Sixty-sixth Street, who is a member of the Rutgers Church. Mr. Erickson will enter Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa.

SAYS POPE WILL CALL ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Rome Newspaper Reports It Will Be Summoned This Year—Will Be World Gathering.

ROME, June 12 (AP).—The newspaper Sereno said today it was reported in well-informed Vatican circles that the Pope intended to convoke an Ecumenical Council in Rome during the latter part of the present holy year.

The last Ecumenical Council was held in 1869 under the Pontificate of Pius IX. The rumor, printed by Sereno, that another council might be called this year probably to continue throughout 1926 and perhaps into 1927 caused great interest here.

All Catholic Bishops throughout the world would be invited to attend such a council, accompanied by secretaries and theologians equipped to discuss in Latin important Church matters.

Twenty Ecumenical Councils already have been held. The first was in Nicaea, Asia Minor, in 325 A. D. The last, which ended in July, 1870, in Rome, was not concluded because of the Franco-Prussian war and the occupation of Rome by Italian troops after disturbances then harassing Italy.

All the Archbishops and Bishops of the world participate in an Ecumenical Council for the general discussion of doctrinal and other matters affecting the Catholic Church.

It has been reported that no hall within the Vatican is large enough to accommodate all those who would attend the council and that it might be possible to hold the meeting outside the Vatican confines.

A difficulty to that suggestion, it has been pointed out, is that the presence of the Pope is desired, though not necessary, at an Ecumenical Council, and that the Popes since the loss of temporal power have not left the Vatican.

BISHOP HUGHES FOR WORK.

He Declares Toilless Eden and Idle Heaven Are Heresy.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP).—Bishop E. H. Hughes of the Chicago area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, speaking today on the subject of "Work," before the Executives' Club, declared "the heresy that life began in a toilless Eden and that its goal is an idel heaven has no religious or biblical warrant."

"Mark Twain's description of the dream of a captain who went to heaven and had nothing to do and so was very uncomfortable, shocked some very good people; but the caricature was deserved," said the Bishop. "Old Stradivari, the greatest violin maker in history, believed that his daily work was a religious service. This high conception of needed daily labor is the only thing that will redeem that labor from drudgery on the one side, and from immoral greed on the other."

EGYPT TO RESTORE MOSQUE

Invites American Architects to Compete for the Contract.

The Royal Consulate of Egypt, 103 Park Avenue, announces in an advertisement in THE NEW YORK TIMES today that the Egyptian Government has made arrangements for a competition for the reconstruction and the restoration of the Mosque of Amrou in Egypt and that the Consulate will put its services at the disposal of American architects who are interested.

The original part of the mosque was built 643 A. D., and additions have been made over a long period of time. The columns and capitals were taken from ancient Egyptian, Roman and Byzantine buildings. It covers an area of 130,000 square feet with an open court 240 feet square. Much of it is in ruins.

EXERCISES FOR DEAF MUTES

247 Pupils Take Part in Ceremonies Closing Year.

Two hundred and forty-seven pupils took part yesterday afternoon in the closing exercises of the Institution for the Improved Instruction of Deaf Mutes in the auditorium of the institution, 904 Lexington Avenue.

Dr. Harris Taylor, Principal of the institution, described the development of the school from 1864, when it was founded as a private agency, to its situation today as a recipient of city and State aid, together with an annual contribution toward its budget of about $25,000 from the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies.

Diplomas were awarded to Miss Dorothy Cobb and Miss Victoria L. Willard on their completion of the normal school course for teaching of the deaf. Twenty-four prizes were distributed for proficiency in studies, Julia Solomon, Pauline Beheller and Annie Burstein winning two each.

RAKOVSKY ON A MISSION.

Visit to Moscow Said to Be Connected With London Negotiations.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 12.—The mystery surrounding the departure of M. Rakovsky, the Soviet Ambassador, from London for Moscow, was cleared up to a certain extent today. A report published this morning intimated he might not return, but it seems his mission to Moscow is connected with attempts of the Soviet Government to renew negotiations with Great Britain for a general and commercial treaty which was turned down by the present British Government as soon as it came into office.

The Soviet Government is disappointed over the British attitude and attempts have been made here to enlist Parliamentary sympathies in favor of reopening new conversations with the Soviet representatives. The British Government definitely laid down conditions, and it is believed Rakovsky is going to Moscow to consult the Government with the idea of discovering some new basis for negotiation.

Billings Gazette Drops Editorials.

BILLINGS, Mont., June 12 (AP).—The Billings Gazette today announced the elimination of the editorial page, as such, beginning Saturday, because of "tight space." The paper expressed the belief that its readers were more interested in the news of the community, State and nation than in perusing editorials.

WRIGHT WELCOMES AIRPLANE INQUIRY

Would Like to Have Academy of Science Investigate His Smithsonian Charges.

WRITES TO LANGLEY PILOT

Reiterates That No Tests Can Now Change Past Facts Nor Have Bearing on Controversy.

Orville Wright welcomed in a correspondence made public here yesterday the suggestion that the National Academy of Science or any other disinterested national body should investigate his charges of misrepresentation and complicity in fraud against the Smithsonian Institution, but disapproved the suggestion that the Langley craft should be taken out for another attempted flight.

Charles M. Manly, the pilot who failed to make the Langley machine fly in two attempts in 1903, sent a formal request to the Smithsonian Institution yesterday for permission to take it out and try to fly it again. Mr. Manly said yesterday that he based his request on the fact that, after the failures of 1903, the late Dr. Langley had given him authority to experiment with the craft again if he ever found himself in a financial position to do so.

Dr. C. D. Walcott, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who was specifically accused by Orville Wright of countenancing a false label and false Smithsonian Institution reports on the performances of the Langley craft, said yesterday over the telephone from his office in Washington that the idea of having the controversy investigated by the National Academy of Science or some such body was a new one to him and that he had not had time to consider it. Dr. Walcott called attention to the fact that Dr. Joseph S. Ames and Rear-Admiral Taylor had just completed an investigation and report which practically sustains his contentions. Asked who had appointed these two investigators, Dr. Walcott said:

"They volunteered."

The correspondence between Mr. Manly and Orville Wright began with a letter from Mr. Manly offering to pay $10,000, if Mr. Wright would pay another $10,000, to defray the expenses of another trial of the old Langley machine. Mr. Wright said that another flight of the Langley machine might be interesting as indicating the exact nature of the fault which caused the failures in 1903, but would not bear on the present controversy. Mr. Manly insisted that it would.

"You do not seem to understand the issues of the controversy between Dr. Walcott and myself," wrote Mr. Wright. "I have made charges that the Smithsonian Institution is not a safe repository for historic relics. I based that charge on the fact that the institution allowed the original Langley machine of 1903 to be taken from the institution and to be mutilated for the purposes of a private party to a lawsuit; that the reports published by the Smithsonian Institution of the so-called tests of that machine, made at Hammondsport, were false and misleading, and that the label now attached to the machine in the museum is untrue.

"The issues of this controversy do not relate to events of the future but to events of the past. I, therefore, see no reason for introducing a discussion of future experiments into this controversy which has to do with experiments of the past. The proposal to do so can only be taken as an admission of the truth of my charges as to the fraudulent nature of the so-called tests of the Langley machine at Hammondsport in 1914.

"The present controversy between Dr. Walcott and myself mostly relates to the treatment given the historic Langley machine in the National Museum and to the truth or falsity of the label now hanging on that reconstructed machine. This label reads:

"'Original Langley flying machine, 1903. The first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world capable of sustained free flight. Invented, built and tested over the Potomac River by Samuel Pierpont Langley in 1903. Successfully flown at Hammondsport, N. Y., June 2, 1914.'

"The Langley machine of 1903 had two trials in that year, in both of which the wings immediately collapsed and the machine fell into the water. On the other hand, there was in 1903 a machine which did have the three requirements necessary to make it capable of sustained free flight. This machine on Dec. 17, 1903, made four sustained free flights. Therefore the statement that the Langley machine was the first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world capable of sustained free flight is clearly not true.

"The second statement 'that the machine exhibited in the museum was invented, built, and tested over the Potomac River by Samuel Pierpont Langley in 1903' is partly but not altogether true. The wings now in the museum are built of new material and have solid instead of hollow ribs and spars, as were used by Langley in 1903.

"The third statement, 'Successfully flown at Hammondsport, N. Y., June 2, 1914,' is not true. The machine tested at Hammondsport on June 2, 1914, was not the same as the machine now hanging in the museum. The machine tested at Hammondsport on June 2, 1914, was not successful in making a sustained free flight. Although flight after flight was attempted between May 28 and June 5, the longest was only of 'approximately five seconds.'

"Your suggestion that the truth or falsity of the label on the Langley machine should be investigated by the National Academy of Science, or some other disinterested national body of standing, meets with my hearty approval. Sincerely yours,

"ORVILLE WRIGHT."

Mr. Manley said yesterday that he proposed a flight with an exact model of the Langley machine used in 1903, with the same launching apparatus. He admitted that another launching system the landing device were substituted at the 1914 experiments at Hammondsport, but said that he had had nothing to do with those tests and that he had nothing to do with the present controversy with the Smithsonian Institution.

"My only contention is," he said, "that the Langley plane was capable of flight in 1903 and will fly now just as it was then. One flight was spoiled then by a collision and another by being attempted in bad weather, when we were at the end of our money resources and it was a question of now or never. I want it tried this time with an inexperienced pilot, having no advantage of the progress of aviation since that time and with all conditions precisely as they were then."

AGAINST BLUE RIBBON JURY.

Judge McLaughlin Says Ordinary Citizens Are Competent to Try Cases

Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin in the Kings County Court yesterday told a panel of jurymen that jury service should not include so-called "blue ribbon" talesmen, but that the ordinary citizen of intelligence should be called upon to try his fellow-men. In recent cases in the Brooklyn courts special panels of jurymen were called to try them. Judge McLaughlin said:

"From time to time we hear criticism of juries from Judges because the judgment of the juries had not coincided with that of the Court. This criticism has frequently embraced a protest that the allegedly superior type of citizen evades jury service, leaving that task to those less qualified to perform it.

"Taught by experience, both at criminal and civil trials, I take serious issue with that criticism and protest. 'Blue ribbon' juries are likely to become obsessed with the notion that they have been called for the return of a particular verdict, and it can be readily realized that the danger is great under the circumstances."

GUIDER AGAIN BOLTS HYLAN TRANSIT PLAN

Commissioner Delaney. It was hurled at us as a surprise and I have not had time yet to go very deeply into some of its suggestions. I came here a week ago Friday, when the Delaney report was presented, knowing nothing of its contents. I was not provided with an advance copy, and only found one at my office on my return from the meeting.

"Look at what Mr. Delaney suggests for Brooklyn. He shows that he does not know his territory very well. His plan does not meet the needs of my borough and is impractical."

"The Brooklyn Borough President is misinformed if he thinks I do not know my Brooklyn," retorted Mr. Delaney. "I have lived there for twenty-seven years and we have selected the best possible route for that borough. As to the financial arrangements, I have shown the way, and the only way, by which the five-cent fare can be preserved.

"Get Busy," Declares Delaney.

"Let me tell you men that if you want subways you've got to get busy and take some action. You can't procrastinate forever. You've got to take some action some time, somehow, and get to work."

"Of course, we have got to act if we want subways," rejoined Mr. Guider, "but I am not going to vote for something that I do not believe is in the best interests of the city. Mr. Delaney says that he knows his Brooklyn. He apparently does not know that borough as well as he thinks he does. I have lived in Brooklyn for twenty-five years, and I know what is needed. I am willing to leave it to a vote of the people of Brooklyn, and I will insist that the desires of the people of the borough be considered."

"Mr. Mayor, I think we might just as well turn the matter back to the Committee of the Whole," said Mr. Delaney. "We might just as well reconcile ourselves to facing obstruction from Brooklyn. There are many obstructionists there. The Borough President of Brooklyn has, of course, an unimpeachable right as a voting member of this board to ask for a postponement.

"Mr. Guider is wrong, however, and I tell you right now that sooner or later, after the foam of controversy has died down, you will adopt my plans. The Board of Transportation plan is the only one that will meet all the conditions. Delay if you want to. That is your prerogative. The Board of Transportation is ready to go ahead and build subways in speedy order. If you hold these things up, be prepared to take the blame and do not attempt to place it on my shoulders or those of my engineers. We are ready."

Mayor Hylan, who had been very uneasy during the verbal altercation between Mr. Guider and Mr. Delaney, then interrupted.

The Mayor Yields to Guider.

"Perhaps Mr. Guider should have more time to study the routes in Brooklyn," he said. "The financial considerations are not up today, so those do not enter into the matters now pending."

"Of course they do," Mr. Guider replied. "The whole thing is tied up together."

"Well, let's vote on the Manhattan routes anyway," the Mayor pleaded. Then he whispered to Mr. Guilder, presumably appealing to him to approve the Manhattan routes.

William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen, said: "Why can't we vote on the Manhattan and Bronx routes without touching those in Brooklyn?"

"Why vote on anything at all," said Mr. Kerrigan. "Your own Chairman of the Board of Transportation said they might as well go back to the committee."

The Manhattan and Bronx routes, with one exception, were then validated, Mr. Kerrigan not voting, and Mr. Guider voting for them on the condition that no money should be appropriated for them and no contracts awarded until the routes for Brooklyn were approved.

Hylan Attacks Kerrigan.

Mayor Hylan issued the following statement on the dispute after the meeting:

"The traction newspapers seem to delight in making deliberate misstatements about the city's independent subway system. They seized upon the statement of Kerrigan, the troublemaker, who is acting for and like Craig in the Board of Estimate today, that the system was a 'piecemeal one' when, as a matter of fact, it is a continuous system of the most comprehensive kind.

"Kerrigan apparently knows nothing about the city's subway plans. He showed complete lack of knowledge that the plans had been submitted by sections; and that to secure an intelligent vote the Board of Estimate took it up by sections. Every section in Manhattan and the Bronx that was recommended was approved except one, and there were some taxpayers who thought a slight change could be made in that section that would be more beneficial, and it went over one week for that purpose. The sections in Brooklyn and Queens were put over until Tuesday of next week to give consideration to some changes that might be made to satisfy the people of Brooklyn and Queens.

"The traction newspapers and the traction fakers do not care to and will not say a kind or truthful word about the city's independent subway system. The subway plans will go through with possibly such modifications as may be found necessary, and the subways will be operated for a five-cent fare. I hereby give this notice to the traction press and their agents, whether in or out of public life."

10 AND 15 CENT FARE ATTACKED BY HYLAN

Blames Transit Commission in Explaining Why Rates Have Gone Up.

Mayor Hylan made public yesterday a letter blaming the Transit Commission for the fact that passengers on surface lines in certain instances have to pay 10 and 15 cents to reach their homes from their places of work or business. The letter was in reply to one from William F. Coster of 28 Baisley Street, Jamaica, who asked the Mayor to tell him how to reply to those who contended that this occasional double and triple fare disproved the Mayor's claim that he had kept the five-cent fare for the people.

Mayor Hylan in his letter gave a long explanation of the contracts between the city and the companies operating the subways and elevated lines, on which, he said, his efforts had kept the fare at five cents. He added that the additional fares on surface lines had been caused by the splitting up of the constituent companies in receiverships, and continued:

"The fact is that even in the case of the surface lines, in the main, I have defeated the efforts of the traction companies to increase fares. The street surface railroad companies strenuously sought to obtain authority to increase the rate of fare for every surface car ride from five to eight cents. They did not succeed in obtaining authority to make this flat increase any more than on the subway or elevated lines. The facts would warrant your saying to your friends that the great bulk of surface car rides have been kept down to five cents.

"In those instances where the surface car ride has been increased to two or three fares of five cents, the fault lies with the Transit Commission and in no way with the city. In fact, as soon as the Transit Commission will be supplanted by a regulatory body that will follow out the steadfast policy of the City Administration, these so-called ten or fifteen cent rides will, I am confident, be promptly reduced and a universal five-cent rate be restored."

STATEN ISLAND PARK IS HELD UP BY HYLAN

WARNED OF REALTY GRAB

Delegation From Richmond Says Speculators Are Planning to Get the Land Involved.

Despite the charge by a delegation of Staten Island bankers, home owners and workingmen that real estate speculators are preparing to realize at least $10,000,000 profit if they can forestall the city in acquiring the land and waterways of a great Staten Island marine park, Mayor Hylan, on the advice of Borough President John A. Lynch of Richmond, refused, in the Board of Estimate meeting yesterday, to approve a tentative map for the proposed park. He said he wanted more time to look into the plan, and it went over for a week.

Daniel Harned, a director of the Community Councils, appeared as chief spokesman for those who favored an immediate approval of the map. Mr. Harned declared he had trustworthy information that large real estate interests were rejoicing in the city's delay and are eagerly preparing to acquire title to all the proposed park lands, in the expectation of making $10,000,000 profit when the city finally was forced to come to their terms. He urged a tentative approval and argued that the actual taking of title and financing could be taken up later.

Borough President Lynch said the proposal involved building a sea wall along the shore line of the proposed marine park which alone would cost the city approximately $573,000. This was a heavier expenditure, he said, than he would care to have made at this time. He would prefer to develop an inland park.

Along a Former Harbor.

The proposed marine park is to be on the shore of the island, midway between Tottenville and St. George. This area was a harbor at one time, capable of accommodating vessels of twelve-foot draught. Mr. Harned explained that the park could be laid out in an area of about 443 acres and could be increased eventually to about 1,000 acres. Though comparatively easy improvements here would make an admirable harbor, he said, State and Federal Government officials apparently had failed to recognize the potential value of the project. The property involved is said to be owned largely at present by a corporation.

The Board of Estimate, in the same meeting, approved action taken by the Sinking Fund Commission on Thursday and voted an appropriation of $270,400 for the advancement of Mayor Hylan's pet Jamaica Bay improvement, including dredging and other harbor work.

Mayor Hylan was less successful in advancing his project for a $67,000,000 supplementary water tunnel to run from the Hillview reservoir near Yonkers and to carry additional Catskills water to the Boroughs of Queens and Brooklyn. It was blocked by the refusal of Deputy Controller Kerrigan, sitting for Controller Craig, to vote for it, and was deferred one week pending further investigation.

Deputy Controller Kerrigan blocked another Hylan project when he refused to vote a $25,000 appropriation asked by William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, "to keep the municipal trolley lines on Staten Island from closing down for lack of funds." The Mayor's anger flamed as the necessary votes of the Controller were withheld, and he reluctantly assented to the motion that the matter go over for a week.

The Most Expensive Way to Purchase Anything Is on the Instalment Plan

The Most Economical Way Is to Pay Cash—as at Macy's

No customer ever "buys credit" at Macy's. He pays for value received in merchandise, and he gets it. An interesting instalment campaign is now under way in the paint industry. Commenting on it, "Printer's Ink", the advertising trade organ, raises two pertinent questions:

1. "Will the instalment plan so revolutionize the trade that the instalment price will become the regular price, and the buyer say to himself: There is no reason to pay cash; I save nothing?"
2. "Will it be up to the cash buyer to 'beware' lest he be made to pay the cost of financing that he doesn't need or want?"

"He Who Pays Cash Pays Less"

For 67 years Macy's has found cash buying and cash selling the soundest, safest, most economical method of doing business. It has proved the potent power of cash in procuring new sources of merchandise and in securing lower prices. It has eliminated the expense, the risks and losses due to part-paying, slow-paying, and non-paying customers.

Macy's does not offer the doubtful privilege of "credit" and "easy terms." It does offer the opportunity of purchasing good, guaranteed merchandise for at least 6% less than elsewhere.

The way to make your buying dollar least effective is to bury it in an instalment purchase.

The way to make it most effective is to pay cash at a cash store, like Macy's.

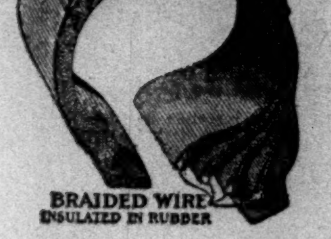
Kelly
Flexible Cord

The best tire Kelly ever built



The New Kelly Way

The drawing shows how the bead of the new Kelly Cord is formed by enclosing strips of braided wire in the loops of the cord fabric. The cords which form these loops are continuous from the beginning of the inmost ply to the end of the outer. The whole tire thus has a flexibility and "give" that is necessarily lacking in tires made by the ordinary method.

The Kelly Flexible Cord is sturdier than the former Kelly Cord and at the same time is more pliable. To the car owner this means a combination of mileage and easy riding that hitherto never has been equaled, either by our own tires, or so far as we know, by any others.

'POLLY PREFERRED' CALLED PLAGIARISM

Guy Bolton "Unconsciously" Got Idea From "Personality," Court Finds.

OSSIP DYMOW THE AUTHOR

Complaint Says Bolton Kept Russian's Play Eleven Months and Liked It.

Guy Bolton, playwright, was guilty of "unconscious plagiarism" in the plot of "Polly Preferred," according to a decision handed down yesterday by Judge Edwin L. Garvin in the United States District Court. While the decision did not state the amount of compensation to be awarded Ossip Dymow, the plaintiff, it held that he was entitled to the relief sought, and directed a decree accordingly. The decision said further that a master would be appointed, if a reference was required, to take proof of damage on an accounting.

Dymow, in his suit against Bolton and the producers of "Polly Preferred," F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, charged that the play was taken from his own play, "Personality." He asked the Court for an injunction forbidding the defendants from presenting the play, and demanded an accounting of the profits accruing from its production thus far.

"Polly Preferred" opened at the Little Theatre on Jan. 11, 1923, and had a run of twenty-four weeks. It is still being played in stock. Dymow testified that his own play, "Personality," had been written prior to April 26, 1920, when it was copyrighted, and that during October of that year a copy of "Personality" was delivered to Bolton to be adapted to the American stage. The reason given by Dymow for delivering his play to Bolton was that he was a playwright of prominence, while Dymow, a Russian by birth, had not the same familiarity with the American theatre-going public.

Dymow charged that Bolton kept the play for nearly eleven months, spoke of it in high terms, and took the manuscript with him on a trip to Europe in order to study the play with care. Three months after the manuscript was returned, Dymow charged, "Polly Preferred" appeared.

"Personality" is the story of a girl, Nevada Devet, who has come out of the West into the home of a distant relative, Mrs. Hughes, who has two daughters of marriageable age, and several friends, whose daughters are likewise looking forward hopefully to matrimony. Much of the early dialogue is devoted to a subject of marriage, with little regard to the character of the men considered, so long as they are wealthy. The purpose of the play, as defined by Dymow, is to portray, through the medium of Nevada, his conception of the possibility of commercializing the personality of a woman.

"I do not find any instance in literature or drama where such a theme for a play has appeared," Judge Garvin said in his decision. "The same idea is clearly in the mind of the defendant Bolton in 'Polly Preferred,' which is the story of another young girl whose personality was commercialized as was Nevada's, except in a somewhat different fashion. Many similar expressions appear in both productions under consideration, and after taking into account the fact that the defendant kept the plaintiff's play so long, from time to time indicated his appreciation of its merits, and shortly after produced 'Polly Preferred,' I cannot escape the conclusion that, perhaps unconsciously, the defendant took the theme for his play after he had read 'Personality,' and received the suggestion therefrom. I have said unconsciously with a purpose, for Mr. Bolton testified during the trial and impressed me as being careful and conscientious, as he was apparently a gentleman of culture, education and refinement. I prefer to base my judgment on an unconscious plagiarism rather than upon a deliberate and willful piracy. This is immaterial, however, so far as the plaintiff's rights are concerned. I find that he is entitled to relief sought, and I direct a decree accordingly. A master will be appointed if a reference to take proof of damage on an accounting is required, who will be named in the decree entered hereon."

EVA LE GALLIENNE SCORES IN PARIS

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 12.—Eva Le Gallienne, as Jehanne d'Arc in Mercedes de Acosta's play, was enthusiastically received this evening at the Théâtre Porte Saint Martin. The play was translated into French at the author's wish in order to give the first presentation in this country before opening in New York. This was not a terrific task, however, as the dialogue is relatively unimportant, the play depending for its success on the magnificent pageantry, color, lighting effects and pantomime. The extreme simplicity of Miss Le Gallienne's interpretation was made more effective by contrast with the brilliant medieval settings. Norman-Bel Geddes, under whose direction the play was produced, was congratulated for his fine use of modern stage effects, notably in the coronation scene.

GLEASON WOULD GIVE HIS SANITARIUM AWAY

Head of Drake Colleges Says He Wants Guarantee It Will Continue Its Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., June 12.—Albert J. Gleason, President of the nineteen Drake business colleges in New York and New Jersey, whose offer a year ago to turn his residence into a sanatorium was prevented by his wife, Mrs. Emma Gleason, announced today that he would turn over the equipment of the Gleason Sanatorium at 577 South Centre Street to "any individual or organization that will guarantee that it will permanently continue the work." He said that the equipment was worth at least $10,000, and gave as a reason his financial embarrassment following his insanity hearing, his separate maintenance suit with Mrs. Gleason, and a third suit, as yet unsettled, to show cause why two of the Drake institutions in Hudson County should not be put into the hands of a receiver.

Gleason made his original offer in a statement to the Orange Rotary Club last Summer. His wife objected to this offer. Following her objection he constructed the sanaterium. Later she attempted to prove him insane. At the trial she testified that he had offered to obtain her appointment as Postmistress of East Orange, and that he became angry and swore at her. Other evidence included the testimony of a dentist, who said that Gleason had refused to pay for two sets of teeth furnished to him, on the ground that with one set he could eat, but could not talk properly, and that with the other he could talk but could not eat.

On Feb. 10 he was pronounced sane by a jury of twenty-four men, but on the same day a sanity commission of three pronounced him mentally unsound. On March 31 he was finally declared sane. On April 30 his wife brought suit against him for separation. She charged that since the lunacy proceedings he had refused to admit her to his home.

BRADY WILL REVIVE 'A GOOD BAD WOMAN'

Producer Who Withdrew Play as Indecent Announces Its Opening June 22.

OFFICIAL ACTION HINTED

Mr. Brady Is Taking a Risk, Says Assistant Prosecutor Pecora—Banton Cannot Be Reached.

William A. Brady, who withdrew the play, "A Good Bad Woman," at the Comedy Theatre last February after a two weeks' run, following a protest against indecent drama in the city, announced last night that he would revive the play on Monday, June 22, for a Summer run at the Playhouse.

When Mr. Brady, after a conference with District Attorney Joab H. Banton, agreed to withdraw the play, he explained that he had staged it two weeks before to shock the theatregoing public into a reforming zeal that would purify New York's stage. Many protests had been made to the prosecutor against plays which were declared to be objectionable. Besides the Brady play, "Desire Under the Elms," "They Knew What They Wanted" and "The Firebrand," came under criticism. The pressure against the production of what were termed indecent plays became so great that the citizens' play jury was revived by the prosecutor after a conference with Police Commissioner Enright.

A list of 300 "jurymen" was prepared. Juries from this panel were tolled off to witness performances of the plays reported as objectionable. They gave a clean bill of health to "Desire Under the Elms," "They Knew What They Wanted," and "The Firebrand."

When District Attorney Banton made the announcement in February that Mr. Brady had voluntarily agreed to withdraw "A Good Bad Woman," he said, "Mr. Brady's action is a commendable display of good citizenship. It will help greatly to achieve the reform we are seeking."

Mr. Brady's comment on his move at the time, however, was that while there was "a load off my soul," in giving up the play, he didn't feel so good about it financially. He added: "I never feel comfortable about giving $26,000 back," referring to payments for advance sales of seats for the play. On the night before the visit of the theatrical producer to the Prosecutor's office speculators were gettting as high as $20 for a seat for "A Good Bad Woman."

Mr. Banton could not be reached last night when the announcement was made by Mr. Brady that the play would be revived. That there is a possibility of official action was indicated by Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who said:

"Mr. Brady, I presume, is fully aware of the risk he takes in putting on that production. I will not discuss the matter any further. Mr. Banton is the proper official to see about it."

Josephine Evans will head the cast of the new production, which will contain some members of the original company.

"PINAFORE" REVIVAL.

Municipal Opera Performance at Polo Grounds July 22.

The Municipal Opera Company of New York City will begin its season in the Polo Grounds, Wednesday evening, July 22, with a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera "H. M. S. Pinafore." The stage will be the deck of an old English warship, the rest of the field representing Portsmouth Harbor. The ship will be one hundred and thirty feet long and sixty feet wide, with practical masts, rigging, &c.

R. H. Burnside will direct the revival and will also provide the equipment, scenery, costumes and effects. There will be one hundred choristers and sixty musicians in the orchestra. Tom Burke, director of the enterprise, is arranging a cast of singers and comedians from grand opera organizations and from Broadway stages.

"Pinafore" will fill the first week of the season and as much longer as the demand will indicate; after which, comic and grand opera will be staged for one week each.

Mountain Climbing.

PEAK OF FATE, with Hannes Schneider, an Olympic champion skidor; Frieda Richard, Erna Morena, Luis Trenker, Gustav Oberg, Hertha Stern von Walther and others; produced by an Alpine mountain climber; arranged and titled by Eugene Walter; special music score by James Bradford. At the Central.

The irresistible desire in human hearts to conquer the defying pinnacles of great mountains and the thrills and perils encountered by skilled climbers who dwell within the shadows of these natural skyscrapers of the Tyrolese Alps is graphically told in a unique German film, "Peak of Fate," which was presented last night in the Central Theatre. This picture is unquestionably interesting and stirring in certain sequences, but as one ponders over the feats of the mountaineers one is apt to remember that no matter how perilous may be the predicament of the climbers in some scenes, the camera man and his apparatus were there, too. Through the studied suspense showing close-ups of booted feet picking out a tiny support, this picture is not always convincing so far as danger is concerned. You realize that it has been staged, even if it was photographed under the direction of a former mountain climber.

An effort has been made to sketch a romance around the mountain climbing. First there is a mountaineer, then his little son, his wife and his mother. In his effort to climb the peak known as the Devil's Needle, Hannes loses his life. Young Ludwig becomes a man, and his mother insists that he never attempt to climb the Devil's Peak.

There is the old Count and his daughter, Hertha, who loves Ludwig, which gives a faint romance to the narrative, as what his father was unable to do Ludwig accomplishes in his search for the girl in the white-clad heights.

Another excellent touch is in having two rivals almost successful in their efforts to get to the top of the Devil's Needle. This sequence is remarkably well illustrated, but has a strong movie note in the climax. The bolt which had been hammered into the great rock gradually gives way and one of the rivals plunges to his death, as had Ludwig's father.

As the scenes were pictured in the mountains there are some glorious effects, with filmy white clouds caressing the grim peaks, and "shots" taken from a dizzy altitude. To give an idea of the height at which the climbers are, the camera is gradually brought down and down along the line of a chasm. When in one of the last scenes Ludwig slips and falls, there burst from the audience a gasp of fright, which was quickly followed by applause when it became known that the intrepid Ludwig had been saved from death by dropping into a kindly snowbank.

While watching this picture one is inclined to wonder what these climbers do for their daily bread. One does not see them working, and apparently their sole ambition—so far as this story is concerned—is merely to stand forth with swelled chest and declare that they have climbed the Devil's Needle.

It seems as if one hour and a half of this mountain climbing is too long to hold the interest, as there are no throngs, no signs of a village and the inhabitants. Naturally this film was presented at this season of the year because mountains, and especially snow and ice, are a welcome sight even in shadow form. A good deal more human interest could have been worked up in this picture, which was made about a year ago. As it is, one can only say that if you like climbing mountains some of the stretches of this picture will prove unusually interesting.

YANKEES GET 3 HITS AND AGAIN LOSE, 5-2

HOME RUNS AID IN DEFEAT

Jamieson Gets One Off Shawkey in 7th and Speaker Follows With Another in 8th.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

The Indians played another home-run obbligato at the Stadium yesterday and the Yankees didn't care for it at all. Their losing streak was enlarged to two straight, while the Red Sox were winning. The Yankees are not yet in the basement, but they are loitering in the vicinity.

Joseph Shaute, the portly Polish pitcher of the Indians, allowed only three hits, which will explain to any fair-minded man why the Yanks lost, 5 to 2. While Joe was fanning eight enemy batters, the Indians were stroking home runs to distant points. Charley Jamieson lifted a happy liner into the right field bleachers in the seventh, and "Spoke" Speaker slammed one over the grass to left centre in the eighth.

Speaker is now one of the mellow antiques of baseball, but he lifted his aged legs around the bases like a Helffrich. He touched all the bases and came in without going through the formality of sliding.

It was a jolly day for everybody but the Yanks. The Indian boys rolled up an early lead and Shaute protected it with some very nifty pitching. In a sense, Joseph was running behind schedule time. He won a game in the first week of the season and hasn't won any since. Just why he should pick on the Yanks is not clear to a close student of the national pastime.

Yanks Hitless After Fourth.

The Shamokin coal miner must have had something up his sleeve besides muscle, for the Yanks went down with ridiculous ease. They bunched two singles in the second for one run, rang up another hit in the fourth and then laid off for the rest of the day. After the fourth inning the Yanks knew where first base was, but had mislaid their road map.

Shaute fanned Combs to close the first and Ruth and Meusel to open the second, making three in a row. He got warmed up again in the fourth and whiffed Meusel and Gehrig consecutively. Pinch Hitter Paschal succumbed in the seventh, Meusel went down for the third time in the ninth and Schang ended the game with a rather sightly bit of Indian club swinging.

Bob Shawkey pitched seven innings until the official undertaker, Mr. Ferguson, was called in to take charge in the eighth and ninth. Bob was more to be pitied than scorned. On his own hook he struck out five Forest City gents, but he was poorly supported by the outfielders, who let several critical flies drop between them for safe hits.

The Yanks shot their bolt in the second when they burst out into a one-run lead. Following the demise of Ruth and Meusel on strikes, Gehrig walked and went to third after Ward's single. Benny Bengough, the sawed-off catcher, spun a single off Shaute's glove, and Gehrig scored while Joe was searching for the ball.

In the fourth Cleveland tied it up on Myatt's double and Spurgeon's single, both with two down. On the Myatt bingle Ruth and Combs did a modified Alphonse and Gaston.

Now that the ice was cracked, the Speakerites began to peel off runs one at a time. It was slow work, but they finally had an ironclad lead that even the Indian fielders couldn't throw away with their bad fielding.

Score Again in Fifth.

Jumping to the fifth, we find Southpaw Shaute tripling to right centre—another case of the hesitation glide by Combs and Ruth. Jamieson struck out with emphasis, but McNulty shot a single through the box that accounted for the run on third.

In the sixth Shawkey continued to melt away by degrees. He shed another run when Joey Sewell doubled to left centre, moved to third after Myatt's long fly and scored on Spurgeon's sacrifice hoist to Meusel.

Shawkey twirled his home run ball to Jamieson in the seventh, and Charles punched the cash register out in the sun section. This was a liner which played tag with the foul line. Speaker greeted Ferguson in the eighth with his homer inside the grounds.

Oh, yes, the Yanks scored a run in the ninth. Amid laughter Meusel struck out. Gehrig raised a long fly to left, which Jamieson dropped after a run for a two-base error. The Indians ignored Mr. Gehrig completely. They let him run to third unimpeded, and Lou was able to score while Ward was being chucked out.

Three Runs in the Second Inning Clinch Victory Over Phils.

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—Led by Bill Sherdel's pitching, the Cardinals defeated the Phillies here today, 4 to 1, winning in the second inning when three runs were scored. It was the first skirmish of a five-game series for fifth place. Jimmy Ring, who opposed Sherdel, allowed three walks that helped lose the game.

ATHLETICS ROUTED BY WHITE SOX, 15-1

Faber Effective While Chicago Batters Clout Mack's Hurlers —Heimach Back in Game.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The Chicago White Sox slaughtered the Philadelphia Athletics here today to take the third game of the series, 15 to 1. While Faber was exercising his usual spell over the Mackmen, the Chicago batters were taking all kinds of liberty with Walberg and a recruit pitcher named Andrews, whose wildness was responsible for the six runs in the eighth.

Heimach pitched his first ball of the season and held the Sox in check, but left after four innings.

RED SOX SOCK BROWNS, 5-2.

Ehmke Drives In Two Runs and Works Well on the Mound.

BOSTON, June 12 (AP).—Ehmke's pitching and hitting, abetted by Joe Bush's wildness in the sixth inning, gave the Boston Red Sox their first victory of the series over the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2, today. Ehmke's single in the fifth scored one run and his sacrifice hit in the sixth another. Boston clinched the game in the sixth, largely due to Bush's wildness and Todt's triple, Flagstead's double and Ehmke's sacrifice.

PIRATE CREW LOOTS FIRST FROM GIANTS

A TRIPLE PLAY WITH FRILLS

Three Buccaneers Tagged Out in Killing by Jackson, Gowdy, Groh, Kelly and Terry.

By HARRY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 12.—The Pirates took the first game of this important series this afternoon, embarrassing the Giants before a big crowd of 20,000 by a 6-to-2 score. Inasmuch as the town is on the verge of a highly nervous form of pennantitis, the afternoon's proceedings met with the hilarious approval of the home populace, especially as the Pirates replaced the Robins in second place.

Vic Aldridge, the pitcher who beat the Giants in New York, did it again. After two days of restrained batting the Giants are becalmed by something akin to a hitting slump. Vic refused to let the New York hitters toy with his slants when there were runners aboard, while the Pirate bats nicked Zeke Barnes at moments when runs closely tagged the timely slams.

Pittsburgh is highly wrought up over this victory over the Giants. Baseball is the chief topic of conversation. They talk of nothing else and when the subject is exhausted they start all over again. Chief Pirate Barney Dreyfuss is building a large extension on the right arm of his big stand. There is no question that Mr. Dreyfuss and all the other Pittsburghers are smitten with pennant ambitions.

A Rare Triple Killing Thrill.

The Giants, while they did not win the game, entertained the populace with much unusual ball playing. In the first inning they inaugurated a triple play in which a line ball or fly ball played no part. They did it by running down three Pirates on the base lines. The ball changed hands so often that the Pirates could not keep up with the quick thinking of the New Yorkers. The ball must have changed hands at least thirty times during the triple killing. The hectic details are flashed just below. Glance them over.

Barnes walked Carey for a starter and Johnny Rawlings whanged a double to the deep corner of right, which planted Carey on third. Kiki Cuyler bounced an infield tap off Jackson's index finger. Carey was on his way home. Jack tossed to Gowdy, who flipped back to Groh, Heinie tagging Carey.

Rawlings was on his way to third and turned back to second. Groh shot the ball to Kelly and Rawlings was exterminated. The whole infield was in a turmoil. The crowd was on its toes trying to diagnose what the Giants were trying to do. Confusion was rampant. Cuyler had rounded first during the excitement and was on his way to second. He was trapped between first and second, Kelly chasing him back, while Terry made the third demise of the triple killing. It will be many a day before baseball fans will see another one like that.

Grantham Makes a Homer.

Still somewhat bewildered, the Pirates went to the bat in their half of the second, and with two out Wright hopped a single past short, Grantham poled a home run in the new section of the right field stand, and Wright scampered home in front.

The Giants made their first threat in the third, but their dangerous gesture did not register. With one out Gowdy walked and Barnes skied to Wright. Southworth singled to centre, the ball slipping through Carey, Gowdy going to third and South to second. It was plainly up to Ross Young, but the curtain fell on the act when Pep ballooned to Barnhart.

Please pass the Buccaneers another run in their third. Carey bounced a single off Terry's shapely ankle and Rawlings hoisted to Jackson. Cuyler slashed a single to right, Carey going to third. South raced in to short centre to gobble up Barnhart's high lob. No one imagined that Carey would try to score, least of all Southworth, but Max outthought everybody and raced home with a run.

The Giants got started in the fourth. Terry larruped a double off the centre field score board and went to third when Kelly died at first. Meusel's sacrifice fly to Carey sent Terry home. Groh singled to left and Jackson ambled. A stinging single through second by Gowdy sent Groh over the plate and Barnes closed the chapter by rocketing to Earl Smith.

Carey Clever on the Bases.

The talented Carey scored another run for the Pirates in the fifth by his matchless base running. Max singled to centre and went along on Rawlings's sacrifice. Meusel romped into deep left centre to haul down Cuyler's fly. Carey raced to third after the catch and kept right on until he had crossed the plate. Barnhart singled and Traynor walked, the inning ending when Barnes chucked Wright out at first.

Still another Pirate run in the sixth. Grantham singled to right, and when the former Giant, Earl Smith, jarred a double to right, George romped home.

With one gone in the seventh, Traynor got an infield hit and went to third on Wright's slash to centre. Grantham's sacrifice fly to Meusel coaxed Traynor over.

Add one more casualty to the list of Giants' cripples. Wayland Dean, the promising young pitcher, was hit by a pitched ball on the left knee during the batting practice before the game and fell in a heap. When he fell his left ankle buckled under him, and the ankle is badly sprained. The knee is also badly bruised, and the pitcher will be laid up for some time.

Pickups and Putouts

The Indians were guilty of three muffs that caused Shaute no end of embarrassment and chagrin. McNulty and Jamieson dropped outfield flies and Lutzke played hide and seek with an infield lift.

Mr. Lutzke's misplay seemed to be caused by sun blindness. He raised his hands carefully above his head and the ball landed back of him. Rube wasn't even close.

Dugan is having an intermittent vacation—one day on, the next day off. Yesterday was Shanks's turn to play third, but Joe pinch-hit in the seventh without adding to his reputation or his batting average.

In a few days the Yanks expect to import some talent from the colleges. The names are being kept a secret until the boys get their sheepskins.

It was reported last night that the Yanks have signed Eddie Onslow, the Toronto first baseman, but it could not be confirmed.

Ruth did a falling leaf to catch Speaker's liner in the fourth. Babe rushed back to the grassy slope, but fell flat. While reclining like a Roman Emperor he reached up and dragged the ball out of the ozone.

George showed more speed than usual. He tore in to short right for a running catch of Knode's fly.

PENN PILES UP RUNS ON CORNELL ERRORS

One of Ithaca's Eight Misplays Lets In Four Tallies in 12-1 Commencement Day Defeat.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 12.—Penn pummeled Cornell unmercifully in their annual Cornell commencement week ball game here today, winning by the score of 12 to 1. Up to the eighth inning the Ithacans faced a shut-out; but three hits, one of them an infield scratch, saved them.

The Red and White went to pieces in the fourth and eighth innings. Penn knocked Brown from the box in the fourth, after they had hit him safely for five hits and scored three runs. Vitale, who replaced Brown, was more effective, but his support wilted in the eighth and six runs came across the plate on two hits, one a double by Schuff, and four errors. A muff by Baker permitted Tremper's single to go to the fence and allowed four men to cross the plate.

Long pitched fine ball for Penn, allowing but three hits, one of them a double by Baker. He struck out nine batters and always had the situation in his control. Penn had but two errors, while Cornell was guilty of eight. The Quaker got eleven hits off the two Cornell pitchers.

ROBINS DRAW BLANK AT REDS' BIG PARTY

Eppa Rixey Shuts Them Out While Cincinnati Celebrates Jubilee With Six Runs.

GALA PARADE BEFORE GAME

Robbie's Men Lose Second Place in League Race to Pirates Amid the Festivities.

By M. W. CORUM.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 12.—The Robins were the cipher in the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the National League held at Redland Field this afternoon. In the course of the most elaborate ceremonies yet contrived for the old league's golden jubilee the Reds and their cohorts marched all over Cincinnati and the prostrate forms of Uncle Robbie's boys, 6 to 0.

It was a grand, glorious day for the Rhinelanders, marking as it did their eighth straight victory, but it was all very sad for the Dodgers, and when it was over they were looking up at and not down on the Pirates in the pennant scale.

Barnum and Ringling together couldn't have put on a bigger and better parade than that which preceded today's game. Space will not permit a recounting of all its glories, but, led by K. M. Landis, John Heydler, Garry Herrmann and six (count 'em) brass bands, a score of baseball titans of other days and 3,000 baseball players of tomorrow, the procession marched from the heart of the city to the field.

There they formed in hollow squares, tottering white-haired oldtimers and toddling kids in their first uniforms, to see the Stars and Stripes and the jubilee flag run to the mast head, and they enjoyed it, too. So did the crowd of 10,000, and so did the Robins, except what came afterward.

Rixey Celebrates Also.

When the schoolboys, Rotarians, Kiwanians and Turn Vereins had broken ranks and rushed to their seats, knocking down in the process most of the fences that bound the playing field, Eppa Jeptha Rixey went to the centre of the diamond and held a little celebration all his own.

Eppa is a Cincinnati insurance man as well as a pitcher, but the Robins do not recommend his policies. They are not liberal enough.

He held them to eight scattered hits and nary a run, while his mates were thumping the shoots of towering Tiny Osborne. Somewhere in this thumping was a home run by Rube Bressler, with a man on base, which rolled clear to the flagstaff in centre. The way it kept bouncing along it looked as if the ball were curious to find out what the new banner was all about.

At any rate, it didn't stop until it was at the foot of the pole, and Bressler was almost to the plate before Brown could retrieve it. The hit did not set any records, but it was quite a smash at that.

The Reds got four other runs, but one of the six was all they needed, so it is not much use to waste time telling about them. Wheat, Fournier and the rest of the Flatbush flock could never do more than threaten Rixey.

Critz Cuts Off Rallies.

They did do that on various occasions, but just when it would seem that they were, at least, going to escape a shut-out, Hugh Critz, a promising young man from Chicago, would bob up with some crisp fielding and put them right back where they started.

The Brooklyns also fielded well, notably Milton Stock, but good defensive play alone has never earned a team more than a tie score in all the National League's fifty years.

The Reds believe they have broken the jinx that Osborne has always held over them. Today was the fourth time they have beaten him in some twelve starts.

Uncle Robbie got a big bouquet from his Cincinnati admirers before the game. There was also one for that good burgomeister Garry Herrmann, but he had disappeared before the presentation could be made. Mr. Herrmann is a timid man. Besides he was all worn out with trying to keep step with Landis and Heydler.

It was all just old times except the buffet luncheon served in the club offices after the game. It was a fine luncheon at that, with sausages and sauerkraut and pretzels and nearly everything.

Among the old-timers introduced to the crowd were Long John Riley, Dobby Mitchell, first curve ball pitcher, and George Miller, his catcher; Jimmie Peitz, Bob Ewing, Algy McBride, Dummy Hoy, Jack Sudhoff, Jesse Tannehill, Charley Sweasey, Still Bill Hill, and last and oldest of all, Charley Keith of the famous Live Oaks of 1866. There's one for the other golden jubilee celebrations to match.

With 3,000 kids in the stands, the competition for foul balls was brisk and free for all.

It was hot, and even Judge Landis's judicial collar felt it.

Lord Wodehouse Predicts Close Battle in Army Polo

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—The international military polo matches between the United States and Great Britain to be played on June 20, 24 and 27 should be closely fought, with a very high standard of play, Lord John Wodehouse, who is a polo expert, writes in this week's Spectator. Lord Wodehouse was particularly impressed by Major Louis A. Beard, captain of the American team, whom he describes as a "fine hitter on both sides of the pony and a tactician of no mean order."

DUNDEE IS BEATEN AGAIN BY TERRIS

VETERAN BADLY BATTERED

Outclassed Throughout the Battle but Makes Courageous Stand in Closing Session.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Another old-timer of the ring heard the call of age last night at the opening of the Coney Island Stadium, where, before a crowd of more than 15,000, Sid Terris, rising young lad from the east side, pounded his way to victory over Johnny Dundee, battle scarred hero of about 400 ring encounters in a career of fourteen years, in their fifteen round bout.

Terris didn't knock Dundee out. Willie Jackson, now retired, still can boast of being the only man ever to knock the doughty little Italian warrior off his feet and keep him down for the fatal ten seconds. But Terris did about everything else to Dundee without actually adding the crushing humiliation of a knockout, and came within one well directed blow of duplicating the feat of Jackson.

When the final bell ended the encounter, Terris was in possession of fourteen rounds. One, the seventh, was even. The action of Judges Harold Barnes and George Partrich, and Referee Eddie Purdy, in awarding the decision to Terris was a formality, nothing more.

Dundee weighed 129 pounds and Terris 131 pounds. The gross receipts were $32,675.

The fight was a crucial one for Dundee, but his most trying moments came in the ninth round. This round, the greatest of the fight and one of the greatest between lightweights ever seen here, came near witnessing Dundee's Waterloo. After outboxing his rival through half of the round Terris suddenly crashed over a right to the jaw which staggered Dundee. A left hook and a right to the jaw followed and Dundee's knees sagged.

Then, with the crowd in an uproar and Dundee in desperate straits, Terris ripped rights and lefts in a furious attack. Terris tired himself trying to score a knockout against the veteran who refused to go down. Then Dundee, falling into a clinch, held until his head cleared and retreated steadily for the rest of the round until the danger had passed, after one of the greatest exhibitions of courage and gameness even Dundee has furnished.

In the tenth and throughout each round to the fourteenth, Dundee was cautious. He had felt of the power in Terris's blows and had been convinced. He courted no knockout. He wanted to survive fifteen rounds with his tormenter. He boxed accordingly through the five succeeding rounds after the ninth, hooking wildly and inaccurately, always in retreat.

But in the fifteenth round Dundee went out with the desperation that is characteristic of him. Battered and bruised, his mouth bleeding, a cut on the right eye, with crimson coming from his nose, and a body that was a mass of red welts, Dundee turned to make his last stand and thrilled the crowd by fighting savagely every step.

Harry Felix, east side lightweight who is a stable mate of Terris, added Mickey Travis, New Haven Italian with the build of Rocky Kansas and something of Rocky's style about him, to his list of vanquished rivals in the ten-round semi-final. Felix carried off the decision after easily outboxing and outhitting Travis through nine of the ten rounds. Travis substituted for Babe Herman, California featherweight who was forced to cancel the bout because of a boil on his arm. Mickey was at a further disadvantage in height and reach and, added to all this, he was outclassed by Felix.

Eddie Notarbartolo and George Smith, light heavyweights, fought in the opening four-round preliminary, Notarbartolo winning the decision. In the second four-rounder, Mike Reilly, Bronx welterweight, won the decision from Pete Scarano of Brooklyn. Rene De Vos, Belgian middleweight, showed impressively in a six-round bout, in which he captured the verdict from Eddie Bitzel of Washington Heights.

KERR BEATS WHITE AT THE 21ST HOLE

Gains Semi-Final in Long Island Amateur Title Tourney at Garden City.

DRIGGS ALSO ADVANCES

Kramer and Livingston Are Other Survivors—Bingham and Tippett Meet Defeat.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 12.—What a knockdown and drag-out affair the Long Island amateur championship at the Garden City Golf Club has turned out to be! After the carnage of yesterday, when the toll of lost reputations reached such a high point, a lull was expected today. But no lull came; the fighting was as hot as ever, and yet, in spite of the heavy casualties on all sides, there remain for the final struggles tomorrow four pretty representative knights from whom to choose a leader for 1925.

Two of them are well known to those who follow the fortunes of golfers; one is a youngster who has been coming along at breakneck speed, and the other, while he seldom ventures forth in pursuit of conquests, is no man's fool when it comes to playing the game of golf. One of the first two men alluded to above is Eddie Driggs Jr. of Cherry Valley, who used to kick a football quite a long way for dear old Princeton, and who lately has taken his vent out on a golf ball. The other is Hamilton K. Kerr of the home club, who, in 1915, was a semi-finalist in the national championship. The oncomer is young Jake Kramer of Brookville, and the fourth is John Livingston of the home club, who plays seldom, but almost always plays well. It's Driggs and Livingston in one match and Kerr and Kramer in the other tomorrow morning.

Among those whose epitaphs were carved for them today were such illustrious linksmen as Harry Payne Bingham, the 1924 champion, who tied with Kramer for the medal in yesterday's qualifying round; P. S. P. Randolph, who had the North and South title in his grasp up to four or five holes from the finish two seasons ago; H. C. C. Tippett, W. Neal Fulkerson and—say it with flowers—Gardiner White of Nassau.

Randolph Defeats Bingham.

Randolph put out Bingham in the second round only to be himself effaced by Livingston in the afternoon. White crushed Tippett and then fell prey to Kerr in a twenty-one-hole battle, and Fulkerson was rather harshly treated by H. H. Wiel of Nassau.

It was the match between White and Kerr that carried off today's palms. That it went three extra holes is proof of its closeness, but that doesn't describe the half of it; no, not even a third of it. That the golf wasn't up to par makes little difference. It was a real match.

The first nine holes can be dismissed entirely, for they proved nothing, the honors being all even at that point. Perhaps it is just as well to say a word about the ninth, for had White won it, or even halved it, there might have been no story to tell. But he did neither. He murdered the hole, slicing into a bunker on the right, misjudging his distance on his attempted recovery and plunked his ball into the cross-bunker guarding the green, dubbing his third, strong on his fourth and so on to a 6. That enabled Kerr to get an easy win in 4.

Two holes on White sliced into the single and lost the hole, 5 to 4, to become 1 down. The short twelfth was halved in 3s, but Kerr won the thirteenth, 5 to 6, on a stymie. That made him 2 up with five holes to play. By all the canons of golf he never should have won the match. There is popularly supposed to be a jinx in having a two-hole lead going to the fourteenth.

Kerr Defies Jinx.

Perhaps Kerr is a non-believer in nonsense. Anyway, he refused to permit the ogre to disturb him and proceeded to win the next hole, 4 to 5. He was now 3 up with only four holes to play. He was sitting pretty, as they say in locker-room ballads. Then he must have recalled the fact that he had defied fate. As he began to slip White began to gather his scattered strength.

Three holes in a row went to White. He won the fifteenth, 4 to 5, when Kerr was short on his second, strong on his chip and took two more to get down. White was home in two on the sixteenth, while Kerr took three to get on. Now it was 1-up for Kerr. One hole more and the match was square, White holing a putt for a birdie 4 and Kerr taking a 5.

Kerr made a mistake at the home hole by cutting the pin too fine after he saw his opponent in trouble by attempting to do the same thing. Kerr pulled to the gravel road, from where he had no possible chance to hold his ball anywhere near the pin, and took a 4. White, whose ball stopped short of a trap, played the shot perfectly, but not strong enough.

Chances Tossed Aaway.

He had chances to win the first two extra holes, being inside of Kerr on both greens. But he failed to improve his opportunities, and Kerr didn't give his ball a chance either time, twice putting short when a foot or so more would have sufficed. After looking at the two drives on the finishing hole, no sane person would have said that Kerr had one chance in a hundred. His ball was trapped within a foot of the face of the bunker, from where he did well to extricate himself at all. White's was just a foot or so in the rough, but lying on a bald spot, which made pitching impossible. There was a shallow trap ahead and a cavern in front of that. The ball jumped along, toadlike, through the shallow hazard and disappeared, rabbit-like, into the deep bunker, into which White disappeared to play it.

When he descended the match went with him for he just got out with his third, chipped wide of the hole on his fourth and then missed a somewhat holeable putt for his 5. So that Kerr, who was on in three, putted short and then in and won the match.

WALSH IS BEATEN IN APAWAMIS GOLF

Medalist Bows to Carr While Upson Also Loses—Wattles and Sturges Get 69s.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 12.—Elimination of the medalist, Dick Walsh, former public links champion, of Lauren Upson, the golfer from out of the Golden West, and of F. B. Geddes, the 1924 Westchester champion, and a sparkling 69 by Frank Wattles Jr. of Yale and Buffalo were the features of the first and second rounds of match play in the annual Apawamis Club invitation tourney here today. As a result of these and other events the four who have survived for the semi-final and final rounds of play tomorrow are Wattles, Donald Carr of Ardsley, Ellis Knowles of the home club and E. E. Sturges of Scarsdale, the former Westchester County amateur champion.

Perhaps the most astonishing was the elimination of Walsh, whose 70 in the qualifying round yesterday and his hole-in-one shortly afterward stamped him as one who might travel quite a distance toward the winner's trophy. But today Carr, his conqueror, was just as hot as Walsh was yesterday, and his sizzling round of 70 proved Walsh's undoing.

The man who rendered Upson's long trip null and void, except for what he may get out of the intercollegiate championship week after next, was Sturges, who turned in a scorching 69 to accomplish the trick. A duplication of Sturges's feat by Wattles in the second round made the going too hot for Geddes, who fell out of the ranks on the fifteenth green.

Upson and Sturges, between them, gave par a sound thrashing. The Californian was only a stroke over par at the end of nine holes, and yet found himself 2 down. Five holes in par figures left Upson still trailing by two holes, the last of them being a wonder. At this one, the fifteenth, an eagle fell, shot down by Sturges, who chipped into the hole from off the green.

The card with par:

Out—
Par	4	4	4	4	3	4	4	3	5—35
Sturges	3	4	3	4	4	4	4	3	5—34
Upson	4	4	4	4	3	5	3	5	6—36
In—
Par	4	4	3	4	5	4	3	5	4—36—71
Sturges	4	4	3	4	5	3	3	5	4—35—69
Upson	4	4	3	3	6	5	3	5	4—37—73

Upson's experience was also that of Walsh, who shot a normal round of 73 at a time when a normal round of golf wasn't worth the shooting. It wasn't worth a red cent against a man who was shooting 70 as Carr was. For the first nine holes Walsh managed to keep in the running, and with his 3 on the tenth hole squared the match, but after two halves he made two errors on consecutive holes, which were costly, for Carr jumped at the chance and immediately had a 2-hole lead, which he let go of once and then regained.

The cards:

Out—
Carr	3	4	3	4	3	4	5	3	4—33
Walsh	4	4	4	3	3	4	4	3	6—35
In—
Carr	4	4	3	4	5	5	3	5	4—37—70
Walsh	4	3	3	5	6	4	4	5	4—38—73

Wattles's 69 against Geddes was made up of a 35 out and a 34 back, the Yale golfing ace having no less than eight 3's in his card. Geddes managed to keep on even terms against him until the turn, when Wattles began winning every even hole. His card:

Out	4	3	6	4	3	4	3	3	5—35

KEARNS INFORMED BAN STILL STANDS

Board Will Not Recognize Him as Walker's Manager Until Dempsey Matter Is Settled.

Jack Kearns is not recognized here as the manager of Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, since he does not possess a manager's license and is disqualified from obtaining one until either he or Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, recognizes the challenge of Harry Wills, negro contender for the world's heavyweight crown.

That is what the New York State Athletic Commission, through its chairman, James A. Farley, yesterday told Kearns at the regular week-end meeting of the board. Kearns, refused an audience with the Commission last Tuesday because he had made no appointment, visited the Commission yesterday morning by appointment. He sought enlightenment on the status of Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, whose management Kearns recently assumed. Kearns wanted information from the board as to its attitude toward Walker, who has declined to date to recognize the challenge hurled at him by Dave Shade.

Incidentally, Kearns was in quest of a license as manager of Walker, that he might second the Elizabeth favorite in a bout with Harry Greb, world's middleweight champoon, scheduled as one of the features of the Italian Hospital Fund fistic carnival to be held next month. Kearns got his hearing and his enlightenment, but he got no license.

NEW YORK WOMEN WIN GRISCOM CUP

Wrest Trophy From Boston Golfers by Beating Them in Final Match, 10 to 5.

MISS ORCUTT IS A LOSER

Falters at Tees and Bows to Mrs. White—Miss Jenney Also Defeated at Greenwich.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 12.—Fortunately for all metropolitan women concerned there were only two title-holding golfers to put into the line-up against Boston today in the final match of the series for the Griscom Cup. Had there been a few more champions on the New York team there is no telling what might have happened; but since there were only two everything came out all right and New York again won the trophy which it loaned temporarily to the Boston women last year. The final score of today's match was New York 10 and Boston 5. Having defeated Philadelphia 8 to 7 yesterday the metropolitan ladies finished the series with a clean slate, while the other two teams broke even in matches.

The supposedly weaker half of the metropolitan team came into its own today. Yesterday they did their level best to swing the verdict in Philadelphia's favor and came mighty near doing so, only the valiant efforts on the part of the players with titles preventing.

Today the No. 8 and downward players were responsible for the victory. From Mrs. J. E. Davis, the No. 8 player on the metropolitan team, down to Mrs. Walter MacGowan of Glen Ridge, who played the No. 15 position, the tail-enders on the team did nobly, and seven of New York's ten points came through their prowess. There was only one break in the solid string of victories, that being when Mrs. W. S. Bird, the Sleepy Hollow champion, lost her match to Mrs. George W. Roope of Boston by the narrow margin of 2 to 1.

Champions Fare Badly.

The appearance of a champion in New York's ranks made a peculiar effect on whatever Boston woman happened to be her opponent. There were two and each was beaten. Miss Marie Jenney of North Hempstead, who only a short time ago succeeded Miss Marion Hollins as the metropolitan queen, was defeated and so was Miss Maureen Orcutt of White Beeches who took Miss Glenna Collett's place as the eastern champion. In each case the margin was close, 1 up, but no points were distributed among the losers. To win a point one had to win the match and neither won a match. Miss Jenney went down before the attack of Mrs. E. H. Baker Jr., while Miss Maureen Orcutt succumbed to Mrs. L. Q. White.

There was no earthly reason for Miss Orcutt's defeat for she was 5 up in the first eight holes and to be beaten after that required either superhuman shotmaking on the part of Mrs. White or a series of calamities on Miss Orcutt's part. The calamities had it unanimously. Miss Orcutt began missing her tee shots. They were all good-as-mile misses, too, and nearly each miss cost a hole. Hole by hole her lead vanished and by the time that the sixteenth green was reached, Mrs. White was all-even. By winning the seventeenth hole and halving the eighteenth, the Boston No. 2 player achieved the distinction of beating the champion.

Mrs. Toerge Shines.

The scoring feature of the day was Mrs. Norman K. Toerge's 81 in defeating Mrs. R. M. Knowles by the one-sided margin of 8 and 6, the largest win of the day. The Long Island woman's score was the lowest that has been registered during the week's play. She was out in 40 with 6s at the fourth and sixth holes and back in 41 with a 6 and 7 in her card.

The card with par:

TANGERINE JUDGED BEST LARGE PONY

Championship in Small Class Is Awarded to Bunny Rabbit in Westchester Show.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 12.—The lion's share of honors was divided among the horses of five stables, and two championships were awarded here on the second day of the Westchester County Horse Show in progress on the grounds of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club. Another large and fashionable gallery turned out to see twenty-four classes judged—eleven for saddle classes, seven for breeding groups and three each for hunters and jumpers.

The Rolling Hill Farm, principally due to its Rolling Hill First One and Rolling Hill Sandpiper, took greatest honors with three blues, two reds and a yellow. The farm is owned jointly by H. E. Manville and G. D. F. Leith. Mrs. Richard J. Goodman and John McE. Bowman were close behind Rolling Hill, the former with three blues, all won by her Happy Choice, and Mr. Bowman with two firsts and two seconds. Robert Leland's Tangerine was judged best in two classes, as was Copper Queen, owned by Miss Elizabeth M. Douglas.

One of Tangerine's firsts was won in the champion saddle pony class, which was divided into two parts. Tangerine won the championship rosette for large size ponies. The Fernbrook Farm's Bunny Rabbit took the championship for small size ponies. The reserves were respectively J. Rich Steers's Winsome Jean and Miss Barbara Drury's Brownie.

The first accident of the show occurred in the morning when Miss Becky Lanier, riding Dixie in the class for handy hunters, was thrown and painfully injured. The condition of this class provided that the horse should come up to a swinging gate showing pace and stand while the rider opens it without dismounting, pass through and wait until the gate is closed. When Miss Lanier unlatched the gate Dixie attempted to jump instead of passing through and unseated her rider. Miss Lanier retired from further competition.

Post and Paddock

This is one of the most important days of the racing season and a tremendous outpouring of followers of the thoroughbreds is expected at Belmont Park to witness the running of the Belmont Stakes, the Cherry Malotte Steeplechase, the Keene Memorial and the Rock Sand Handicap.

American Flag is certain to have a host of admirers for the $50,000 classic. He stretched his legs yesterday morning, going a half handily in 0:48 2-5, with the quarter in 0:22 1-5.

By Hisself, another son of Man o' War, will dispute with the favorite for the rich prize and is sure to have a following all his own. Mr. Jeffords and Trainer Bob Smith contend he is just as good as American Flag over a distance.

Earl Sande will have the mount on Prince of Bourbon, which means that the Sims colt will carry the money of those who always follow his crack rider.

There was a claim of foul in the seventh race against Episode. It was not allowed, but the delay kept the crowds on the lawn long after the usual hour.

Sting will work the mile and a furlong of the Brooklyn Handicap distance this morning in final preparation for the classic which opens the Aqueduct meeting on Monday. He will have his weight up and Benny Breuning will be in the saddle.

Escapader, which was brought East with Kentucky Cardinal, was claimed out of the second race from G. F. Croissant yesterday for $3,000 by W. G. Stadler. Mrs. A. Swenke claimed Everglade out of the same race from Clarence Buxton for $3,500.

Contributions will be asked at Belmont Park this afternoon by the New York Women's League for Animals for the free watering station for work horses maintained by the league.

AGA KHAN GALLOPS HOME AT BELMONT

Finishes Three Lengths Ahead of Flames, a Stablemate, in Hillside Handicap.

RIDING HONORS ARE DIVIDED

Sande, Ambrose and Maiben Each Pilot Two Winners—David Harum in Front.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

It was bargain day at Belmont Park yesterday afternoon, with a card of seven races headed by the Hillside Handicap at a mile and a furlong. While it was only an overnight event it drew a field of six first-class handicap horses and they made a finish of it that would be acclaimed in a big stake. The winner was Aga Khan of the Belair Stud entry, which took up top weight of 110 pounds and ran the distance in 1:50 2-5, with Johnny Maiben in the saddle. He had a margin of three lengths at the finish over his stable companion, Flames, but the next four horses finished heads apart. The entry was the 8 to 5 equal choice with J. B. Smith's King Solomon's Seal.

Delightful weather for an afternoon of sport brought out an unusually large end-of-the-week attendance. One favorite and two equal choices finished in front. Ambrose, Sande and Maiben divided the riding honors, each landing two winners. Ambrose took the first with Shampoo and the second with Dream of the Valley. Maiben won the Handicap with Aga Khan and was first home with Ethereal in the fifth. Sande's victories were with Patroon in the third and Franconia in the sixth.

Five of the six starters in the handicap were played and it appeared an open contest. The half dozen were off to a good start, H. C. Fisher's Cartoonist, with Kellum up, going into the lead soon after they were under way. Cartoonist ran a first-class race, Flames forcing the pace and being lapped on him. H. P. Whitney's Klondyke showed a flash of early speed, but Cartoonist raced him into defeat, succumbing only to the determined challenge of Flames, which showed great improvement.

Around the last turn Cartoonist and Flames ran head and head, the latter finally going into the lead. Aga Khan, meantime, last to get going, gradually improved his position. Maiben did not hurry with the son of Omar Khayyam and Lady Carnot. In the stretch drive he came around his field, took the lead and won with comparative ease. Flames and Cartoonist stuck it out together, pounding past the winning post heads apart in that order, the same margin separating them from Klondyke and King Solomon's Seal. The latter was outrun in the early stages but closed fast.

Seven of four years and older took the word in the Linden Purse, a gallop of a mile and a quarter and the winner was D. S. Rouss's eight-year-old gelding David Harum, which took up top weight of 110 pounds and ran the distance in 2:06 4-5 with Wallace in the saddle.

Mrs. Mallory Wins Tennis Final—Tilden Defeats Richards

MRS. MALLORY DROPS 3 GAMES IN 2 SETS

Beats Mrs. Falk in Englewood Final After Losing First Game on Service.

IS HARD PRESSED TO END

Rival Shows Effective Court Strategy, but Is Unable to Cope With Victor's Stinging Drives.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 12.—The viking blood in Mrs. Molla Mallory showed itself today. Stung by the loss of her opening service game at love to Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk in the final round of the invitation tennis tournament at the Englewood Field Club, the former national champion was aroused to a fighting keenness for the fray for the first time this week. There wasn't any blood spilled, but no love was lost either. After one of the shortest and sweetest half hours a tennis gallery has spent here in some time, Mrs. Mallory dropped her racquet and ran to the net to congratulate Mrs. Falk on her plucky fight. The score was 6—1, 6—2. Mrs. Mallory was the winner.

Three games seemed shamefully few to credit to Mrs. Falk after the grand fight she had made. In the early part of the first set she scored more placements on Mrs. Mallory than were made by the former champion's three other opponents here together. The third game was an exhibition of sharpshooting that has had few parallels on these courts. Six of the seven first points went on placements and it was only after Mrs. Falk had twice been within a point of breaking through Mrs. Mallory's service a second time that the New York woman was able to win the game at 8—6.

Mrs. Mallory throve on such opposition as this, and though she always had a smile of appreciation for Mrs. Falk's good shots, there was always a sting to her approval as she whipped one of her powerful forehanders over in return. Mrs. Falk, unfortunately, was not able to stand up under the strain as well as was Mrs. Mallory and gradually gave ground under the pounding of her back court, though she rallied in the second set and broke through Mrs. Mallory's service twice.

Miss Francis Is Beaten.

Miss Alice Francis of Orange made a mistake in starting off against Mrs. Mallory in the semi-finals today. The Jersey girl was so bold as to come to the net at the very outset and volley one of Mrs. Mallory's drives for a beautiful placement. That decided Mrs. Mallory right at the start, and thereafter Miss Francis never got her racquet on the ball when she went forward. The New York woman had her opponent running in circles, always keeping the ball a couple of steps away from her.

The Jersey girl valiantly drove her forehand deep into the opposing court, but she could not match Mrs. Mallory in steadiness from back court and never knew where the ball was coming when she tried to get to the net. In the two sets she was never within a point of taking a game, and the only time she had an opportunity to win one was when she held a lead of 30—0 in the fifth, the only game that went to deuce in the match. In the first set Miss Francis got 12 points and in the second she got 8. The final score was 6—0, 6—0.

The largest gallery of the week was present when Miss Gertrude Hopper, the Chairman of the Tournament Committee, took her seat in the umpire's chair and called "play" for the final. Mrs. Mallory began the service. The first ball she sent over was sent back deep into the corner by Mrs. Falk for a placement. Mrs. Mallory erred in the next two rallies and Mrs. Falk took the opening game at love with another deep forehander. Mrs. Mallory was undisturbed, and set herself to give her opponent a taste of her own medicine in the second, scoring on three placements and breaking through at love. The third game found the two players thoroughly warmed to their task and playing so brilliantly that the applause was almost continuous throughout the game. Mrs. Falk brought the score to deuce with a shot that nicked the line, and had the advantage twice before Mrs. Mallory finally won the game.

Mrs. Falk Loses Control.

Mrs. Falk had a good chance to tie the score at 2 all when she gained a lead of 40—15 in the fourth, but fell off in steadiness as Mrs. Mallory kept her on the run, and dropped the next four points. The former champion swept through the fifth game at love, winning her last two points on drives along the side lines. She increased her lead to 5—1 by breaking through at 4—2 and won the set in the seventh, which went at love, Mrs. Falk hitting out three times in succession.

Mrs. Mallory extended her winning streak to the three first games of the second set, making nine in succession that she had won. But she was not having a walk-over. Mrs. Falk won the fourth at love as Mrs. Mallory lapsed in accuracy. The former champion made six errors in succession and did not regain control until she was trailing at 0—30 in the fifth, when Mrs. Falk weakened and threw away the game with four errors, one a double fault. Mrs. Falk broke through in the sixth, volleying in pretty fashion and forcing her opponent into error-making. Mrs. Mallory turned the tables in the seventh, scoring on three forcing shots, and brought the match to an end in the eighth.

J. ALONSO TO MEET BOWMAN IN FINAL

Spanish Star and North Side Champion Reach Title Round in New Jersey Tennis.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 12.—José Alonso of the Spanish Davis Cup team and Herbert L. Bowman, metropolitan clay court and North Side title holder, will meet in the final round of the New Jersey State tennis championship tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the courts of the Montclair A. C. In the semi-finals this afternoon Alonso defeated W. Dickson Cunningham at 6—4, 6—2, and Bowman eliminated Irving Weinstein of California at 6—0, 6—2. The metropolitan star won a crushing victory that was surprising in view of the battle that Weinstein put up against Bowman in the North Side final. Bowman had him at his mercy and completely broke up his net attack.

Philip and Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield, the defending champions in the doubles, were the unexpected victims of Willard Evans and John Van Ryn of Princeton. The score was 6—4, 3—6, 8—6.

The summaries:

Singles, Semi-Final Round—Herbert L. Bowman defeated Irving Weinstein, 6—0, 6—2; José Alonso defeated W. Dickson Cunningham, 6—4, 6—2.

Spaeth Retires as Princeton Crew Coach After 14 Years' Service; Logg Gets Post

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 12.—The Princeton Board of Athletic Control today announced the retiremnet of Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth from his position of director of rowing, in accordance with a decision made by Dr. Spaeth last year. He will remain intimately connected with Princeton rowing, however, in the capacity of Chairman of the Rowing Committee, in which position he will succeed Henry B. Thompson, retiring head.

Charles P. Logg, who came to Princeton from the University of Washington, where he was captain of the varsity crew in his senior year, was appointed head coach of the Princeton crews for next year.

The following resolution was drawn up by the board in appreciation of Dr. Spaeth's service:

"The Princeton Board of Athletic Control desires to make formal expression of its regret at the retirement as head coach of Princeton crews of Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth of the university Faculty, and its appreciation of the fine-spirited and generous contribution which he has made to the cause of Princeton athletics and high ideals of amateur sport.

"Under Dr. Spaeth's vigorous and inspiring leadership intercollegiate rowing was revived at Princeton in 1911 and has been maintained since that time with constantly increasing prestige. Dr. Spaeth was mainly responsible for the introduction into Eastern rowing of the system of short races on home water during term time, which for many crews have become preliminary to the longer races at Poughkeepsie and New London. This change went far to add new stimulus and color to rowing schedules.

"It is a source of satisfaction to the board that Dr. Spaeth is willing to accept the Chairmanship of the Princeton Advisory Rowing Committee for the coming year, so that in this way his interest and influence will continue effective in Princeton rowing."

Acknowledgment was also made of the fact that Dr. Spaeth's refusal to accept a salary during these fourteen years has been a most substantial financial contribution to the Princeotn Athletic Association.

Mr. Thompson addressed Dr. Spaeth as follows in presenting to him a gold watch as a memento of his years of coaching at Princeton: "It is impossible to express our gratitude in any tangible form for the great service you have rendered to Princeton rowing, but this watch will serve as a memory in the years to come of those who have been associated with you and a token of their high regard and affection."

RICHARDS DEFEATED IN CHURCH CUP PLAY

HUNTER BEATS WILLIAMS

Brings Unexpected Victory at Boston—Dr. King Scores Over Wallace Johnson.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 12.—William T. Tilden 2d, national tennis champion, made amends for his defeat at the hands of Vincent Richards in the Orange Lawn Tennis tournament two weeks ago when he defeated the New York star in the Church Cup matches at the Longwood Tennis Club by the score of 6—1, 6—4, today. New York, however, won the series in spite of Richards's defeat, eliminating Philadelphia, 5 to 4. The metropolitan representatives will face Boston for the cup tomorrow.

Several unexpected results brought about the victory of New York, which took four of the six singles matches and one of the three doubles contests. Francis T. Hunter of Beckley, W. Va., playing for New York, defeated R. Norris Williams 2d, former national champion, at 4—6, 6—4, 6—4. Williams recently carried Tilden to five sets in the Pennsylvania State championship. Dr. George King gained another unlooked for victory for the metropolis when he defeated Wallace F. Johnson, the fifth ranking player in the country, at 11—9, 6—2. Carl Fischer, former intercollegiate champion, scored Philadelphia's only other victory in singles, defeating S. Howard Voshell at 6—3, 6—1.

Rear Commodore Aldrich's Schooner Leads Wildfire to the Finish by 44 Seconds.

PHRYNE A DOUBLE WINNER

Captures Bennett Sloop Cup and the Sparkman Prize—Banshee Is Victor Also.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., June 12.—The seventy-fourth annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club was sailed on Long Island Sound off this harbor today in uncertain breezes, and Rear Commodore Winthrop W. Aldrich's schooner Flying Cloud added to her collection of prizes by winning the New York Yacht Club Course Cup for schooners in a close finish with Charles L. Harding's Wildfire.

Sailing in a fresh breeze from the southwest, the schooners came down to the finish line at a fast clip, Flying Cloud beating the Eastern Yacht Club representative to it by forty-four seconds after sailing a triangular course of fourteen and three-fourths miles.

The New York Yacht Club Course Cups, first donated by the late Commodore James Gordon Bennett in 1871, were the classic prizes of the day, but the James D. Sparkman trophies were also sailed for by the forty-foot and the thirty-foot classes.

Phryne Gains Double Honors.

Phryne, the New York Yacht Club thirty-footer, owned by former Commodore J. P. Morgan, went Flying Cloud one better by not only taking the Bennett Cup for sloops, but also the James D. Sparkman prize in her class. Phryne, sailed by Junius Morgan, was a handy winner in her division, beating Vice Commodore Lang's fast sloop Banzai by almost three minutes.

In the forty-foot class Harry L. Maxwell's Banshee was the winner of the Sparkman trophy, bowling down to the line in a fresh breeze more than twelve minutes ahead of Shawara, sailed by W. H. Hoffman, the only other starter in the class.

The courses were the same as those sailed yesterday, the big boats going over a triangle from the starting line to Bluefish Shoal, then across the Sound to Oak Neck buoy, off the Long Island beach, and back to the finish line, between the committee boat Alacrity and a mark boat two miles off Glen Cove breakwater.

The sailing conditions were an improvement over yesterday's drift, but it was also one of those days on which rather weird changes in breeze take place. When the starts were made at 1 o'clock a light breeze from the southeast was filling the sails of the twenty-six competing yachts and they were sent away in good style, on a beat to the first mark.

Yachts Idle in a Calm.

These were the conditions when the schooners, forty-footers, thirty-footers, six meters, Class R, S and the victory boats were sent on their way. Soon afterward, however, the easterly breeze lightened and an afternoon southerly began to strike in. This wind was fresh and a good sailing breeze off the Long Island shore, but it did not carry very far across the Sound, and those boats that stood to the northward too far found themselves out of luck.

The yachts which landed in the calm belt under the Westchester shore included the schooner Irolita, which had all the best of the start in the large schooner class; the thirty-footers Phantom and Blue Moon and the Seawanhaka schooners Feiseen and Nokomis.

The changed conditions came so quickly that Flying Cloud and Wildfire, further out in the Sound, caught the new breeze and were finishing while Irolita was still in the doldrums off the Westchester Biltmore beach. Flying Cloud was sailed especially well, after getting away poorly. Making a couple of short hitches out to the eastward after the start, she quickly overhauled the others and had a good margin of lead at Blue Fish Shoal.

HARVARD VARSITY WORKOUT IS SHORT

Darlington Still Absent From No. 4 Owing to Boils but Is Expected Back Tonight.

ELI'S FIRST CREW SPURTS

Leader Ends Practice With Mile at Fast Pace—Gives Attention to Junior Eight.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, June 12.—Harvard's varsity crew is still temporarily crippled, Darlington at No. 4, was again kept out of the boat by boils. He is expected back at his regular seat tomorrow, probably in the evening practice. John Hoover, a proctor in camp, is filling in.

The varsity boat did not cover more than four miles this evening, Coach Stevens taking the crew down to the two-mile mark and return. In the coaching launch with Stevens this evening was Jim Wray, who came as a professional coach to Red Top twenty years ago, and for several years was the Crimson crew trainer. Wray arrived from Boston late this afternoon. Also in the launch were Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of Harvard athletics; John Richardson, Chairman of the Graduate Rowing Committee; Arthur H. Hobson, No. 7 in last year's varsity, and Dr. Edward Harding.

The junior varsity and combination crews did about five miles this evening. The freshmen covered about four miles. Harvard's junior varsity and freshman crew had a strenuous race this morning and the juniors beat the 1928 youngsters two boat lengths. This scrap had been eagerly awaited by both crews and all three launches were filled with coaches, managers and several members of the other crews in camp.

Harvard's varsity was late with the early practice and did not go on the river until 12:45 o'clock. Darlington's absence curtailed the practice to three miles.

After Coach Leader gave the Yale junior varsity crew an hour's instruction on the waters above quarters, the varsity eight, which was waiting off the boathouse, was taken on a four-mile round-trip down the river.

On the launch with Leader was James Stillman Rockefeller, Captain of last year's Olympic crew, and Colis Y. Coe, a member of Yale's Advisory Rowing Committee. General W. W. Skiddy of Stamford, a veteran crew enthusiast, arrived too late to board the launch and watched the crews from the pier.

Captain King, in command of the local submarine base, and six other officers from that station, arrived at training quarters just in time to see the varsity crew in action. The coaching launch was placed at the disposal of the naval visitors, and they followed close to the senior oarsmen while they were on the river. Coach Leader had the varsity pull a mile at high speed at the upper end of the course, before sending the men back to the float.

Yale freshmen had a rest from rowing this evening. Coach Murphy said the crew had been working unusually hard the past two days and he believed a lay-off would benefit them most.

Yale's varsity crew was sent on a two-mile paddle down stream early this morning. No attempt was made to speed on the course and the workout wound up with a few racing starts.

The junior varsity men were taken in hand by Leader after the first crew returned and nine miles were covered before the morning's work ended. The juniors paddled down to the railroad bridge and back. A half mile from the boathouse Leader had the crew finish with a sprint.

This year's junior eight is having more than usual attention paid to them by Coach Leader. It was the last crew on the river to be settled and Leader is still working hard in his attempt to make winners of them.

NAVY DROPS ANCHOR ON HUDSON COURSE

REDWAY IN MALLORY'S SEAT

Stricken Penn Oarsman May Have Rowed Last Race—Callow Shifts Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 12.—The Navy crew, with Coach Dick Glendon Jr., is encamped here with the avowed intention of wresting the intercollegiate rowing championship from the University of Washington. The squad reached its quarters on the house-boat Everglades, owned by Colonel H. T. Thompson, shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and after weighing in set the shell afloat for the first spin over the course.

The midshipmen are sharing the Washington boathouse and as the two crews are looked upon as almost equal favorites each gave the other a careful inspection. After watching both crews at work many were convinced that the winner of the varsity race will come out of this house.

Glendon has a very powerful eight. The high rigging and mysterious strength that distinguish his combinations caused much favorable comment even among the Washington squad. Considering rhythm and the smoothness that makes for beautiful rowing, Coach Jim Rice's Penn eights take the medals, but when it comes to power the laurel must be distributed among Washington, the Navy and Wisconsin.

Jim Rice has taken Redway from Don Irmiger's eight to replace Joe Mallory, who was forced out of Doyle's boat by an attack of illness Thursday night. Albert Nyhard, a sub, replaced Redway in the junior varsity shell. Mallory is still at the hospital and it is doubtful whether he will ever row again.

Rusty Callow took Sonju from No. 3 in his varsity boat this morning and replaced him with Hart, who has been rowing at No. ' oar in the junior shell. Menke was lifted from No. 4 in the junior eight to make way for McGuinnes, who stroked last year's freshman boat.

Callow's most sanguinary remarks cannot dampen the enthusiasm that has been raised by the work shown in the workouts of the Washington outfit. The oarsmen are all over six feet tall and only three men in the boat weigh less than 174 pounds. The average is about 176.

THE IMPERFECT DEMAGOGUE.

When a public official sets out to flatter the people to the top of their bent, he ought at least to know what that bent is. To cheapen himself and his office in the attempt to curry favor is a bad blunder. The worst of the Tammany Mayors whom we have had during the past fifty years always knew better than to fall into it. They sought to preserve the dignity of the City Hall. Officially, they bore themselves with due regard to the proprieties of their important position. It never entered the head of GILROY or GRANT or VAN WYCK to indulge publicly in the language of corner loafers, or to try to make unseemly sport for the populace. And in that respect they showed that they had a truer intuition of what the common people want than Mayor HYLAN seems to possess. He has lowered both himself and his office. A few days ago RAMSAY MACDONALD, formerly Labor Prime Minister of Great Britain, said that when he was called upon to form a Government he made two resolves. One was not to do anything to impair the power of the British Empire; the other was in no way to "let down" his great office. Citizens of New York have fresh reason every day to complain that Mr. HYLAN has let down the Mayoralty.

In that very act he has injured himself. He has mistaken the temper of his own following. Starting out to be a perfect and entire demagogue, he has shown that he does not even know how to be that. Deep in the heart of the most rough-and-tumble democracy is an instinct which resents the action of a ruler in bearing himself without decorum, in belittling himself without knowing it. People desire to look up to their higher officials with respect and pride, not to be compelled to look down upon them with a kind of amused pity. They do not like to have their own intelligence insulted by appeals in a form that would provoke the wondering contempt of children. This is the depth, this the huge political mistake, to which the City Hall has now descended in the circulation of the ridiculous pamphlet, "The A B C of Hylanism." The letters seem to require the interpretation, At the Bottom of his Class.

THE WARNING TO MEXICO.

Secretary KELLOGG could not have taken the grave step of issuing a public and official warning to the Mexican Government without having before him information of a more disquieting sort than has appeared in print. His unusual diplomatic action will be taken as giving color to disturbing reports about the condition of affairs in Mexico. Ambassador SHEFFIELD's return on leave had been explained as merely a personal vacation. Now it will be believed that he had matters of serious import to lay before the Department of State. It will be inferred that something like a crisis must exist if the Secretary of State could not wait till our Ambassador to Mexico was again at his post, but thought it necessary to make a formal statement at once for all the world to read. One of the disadvantages of open diplomacy is that it tends to confirm suspicions that might have been left to slumber under the confidential method of intercourse between Governments.

Many stories have been coming out of Mexico relating to internal affairs with which our Government has nothing to do. But if the Mexican Government is not living up to its obligations to us; if, in particular, it is not keeping its agreement to protect the rights of American citizens living in Mexico, our State Department cannot ignore what is going on in the sister republic. Conditions in this respect must be worse than had been suspected when they can lead so little of a Jingo as Secretary KELLOGG to declare that they are not "satisfactory," and that this Government is calling upon the Mexican Government to "restore "properties illegally taken and to in- "demnify American citizens." This at once raises the question to an international status, and constitutes a solemn reminder to President CALLES which he cannot afford to ignore.

A most significant part of Secretary KELLOGG's statement relates to the possibility of another revolution in Mexico. He has heard the rumors that there may be one, as have the newspapers, but hopes that they will not prove accurate. The Secretary reiterates the desire of the United States to help bring about a stable Government in Mexico. He reaffirms the policy of our Government in support of the established and orderly régime in Mexico, but he adds significantly that such support can be expected only by a Government in Mexico that "protects American lives and "American rights and complies with "its international engagements and "obligations." This looks directly back to the time when it was said that the United States furnished arms to President OBREGON to enable him to put down the de la Huerta revolution. The distinct implication is that nothing of that kind will be done in aid of President CALLES unless he shows a willingness to meet our just demands. In any event, it seems unhappily probable that our relations with Mexico are about to enter upon another troubled period.

AN INTROSPECTIVE CONFERENCE.

So many recent conferences have had to do with international affairs that one strictly introspective in nature and intramural in scope, such as the "Commonwealth Conference" to be held in Iowa, beginning at the end of this month, seems at first sight rather provincial. Yet it must be confessed that the absence of all reference to reparations or the Dawes plan, to the Versailles Treaty, or to the Covenant or any related subject, is something of a relief. This conference, which is to be held under the auspices of the University of Iowa and in the "legislative chambers of the old stone Capitol" in Iowa City, will have round tables and symposiums, but the topics for discussion will be such as "The Mounting Costs of Government," "The Expanding Functions of Government," "Federal Aid and States' Rights" and "The Costs of Education."

In connection with the preliminary program, there are published some "queries" and "opinions" intended to stimulate thought, and a provoking collection they are. The list of questions begins:

> Do modern Governments perform any functions for which there is no public need or demand? Have they been so successful that the extension of their functions without question is warranted? Would private initiative undertake to do the things we want done if Governments did not do them? How far has leveling influence been an underlying motive of legislation in modern democracies? Why are taxes lower in China than the United States? Can the Federal system of government in the United States be defended on the basis of economy, efficiency or democracy?

The "opinions" are more careful in their import, except of some no longer amenable to earthly government, as THOMAS PAINE, who reckoned government even in its best state "but a necessary evil," and COLBERT, who defined taxation as the art of so plucking the goose as to produce the largest amount of feathers with the least possible squawking. For the most part, the opinions are so diverse as to give no united answer as to policies which ought to be determined, particularly as to Federal and State functions and as to when and where the activities of the Government become destructive of individual initiative and continued effort. The discussions under the leadership announced should be of more than local interest and give a practical supplement to the conferences on international politics at Williamstown, Chicago, Geneva and elsewhere. Moreover, such a conference should help the public to consider how much we are, after all, indebted to government per se; for few can represent, as these students of government can, "how wretched mankind would be without it."

AMBASSADORS OF TRADE.

Under the title "The Gravest Menace to American Exporting," Mr. JULIUS KLEIN, Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Washington, discussed in a recent number of The Annalist the difficulties resulting from careless selection of agents to represent American business abroad. The subject is hardly new—we have heard many stories in the last half dozen years of the blunders of American salesmen in foreign lands—but Mr. KLEIN has brought to bear upon it the knowledge gained by years of observation from one of the best vantage points in the Government. His charge may be summarized as twofold: First, that Americans employ agents abroad who are often representatives of their competitors, or men whose personal records are unsavory; second, that the importance of using Americans for selling special goods of a distinctly American type is too often overlooked.

Curiously enough, the American, who has developed the art of salesmanship at home to a point approaching mania, frequently falls down completely when he comes to sell abroad. Not only does he fail to understand that different national customs and traditions require different treatment, but he does not realize that many natives of England or Germany whom he hires to work for him often are handling lines rival to his own. Partly owing to the comparatively recent growth of American export business on a large scale and partly owing to the inability of the average American business man to adapt his methods to foreign requirements, Americans have never developed foreign salesmen as have the English and Germans—men who go abroad first to study and then to live, taking with them their families or marrying foreigners. They learn to know all the demands of the people among whom they live, and are able to adjust their wares to foreign needs. It is not uncommon to find English families resident abroad as representatives of big English houses who have been identified with the land of their residence for a generation or more. In South America before the war the Germans were rapidly fitting themselves even more efficiently than the English. Those two nations divided much of the South American trade that should normally go to merchants of the United States.

Until our foreign exporters and bankers better understand the great importance of choosing suitable agents abroad we shall be handicapped in our competition with the English and Germans. The ideal representative not only must know his particular trade, but he must speak the language of the country where he is stationed, and must be thoroughly familiar with its market conditions. He must also have full knowledge of his foreign rivals in the field, and must be able to offer as attractive credit terms to his purchasers as they do. Business men living abroad are in a sense ambassadors. Not only do they serve the special purpose for which they are sent, but they are considered as representatives of the American people. Their actions largely affect the local attitude toward the United States. Any foreign agent who is guilty of sharp practice or even of discourtesy hurts not only his firm but his country. Conversely, those who are wise, tolerant and able enhance American prestige in foreign lands.

OURSELVES ALONE.

It is the time of the year when tired city workers are invited to seek the anodyne of the woods, where the wind sighs through the spruce and the birch, the waves murmur on the shore, the fish leap in the river, and the telephone wire brings to your ear the hum of quotations on the Stock Exchange. Science with mighty strides has attained the point where one may plunge into the Laurentian hills or hide where rolls the Oregon, and yet find it impossible to be alone. The English physicist, FOURNIER D'ALBE, visioning the future of civilization in his little book, "Quo Vadimus," sees the web of world communications ultimately reducing the globe to the dimensions of a parish. But he also suggests that if life is to be at all tolerable under conditions where anybody may get into communication with anybody else at a moment's notice, we must set up safeguards for privacy. "The last proviso is important," says our author. He is right. Where he errs is in his optimistic view of existing conditions. "Civilization not only "makes us more accessible to those "we appreciate, but also makes us "less accessible to those of whom we "disapprove." Does it? Not for anybody who cannot afford the luxury of a private secretary to inform telephone ringers that he is in conference. The telephone companies are right. A wire into the house puts you in touch with the whole world. But it also enables a considerable portion of the world to call you up, not infrequently after you have gone to bed. There is no opportunity for exercising selection. How is one to tell, from the mere whir of the bell, whether it is an important business call, a message of health or sorrow, a dear friend or a book canvasser? Perhaps when television has been grafted on telecution we shall be able to see before lifting the receiver who is calling. Some such defensive armor must be developed if man is to retain the chance of being alone with himself for a minute in the day.

The ultimate defensive, however, will have to be not mechanical but psychologic. When a wireless call breaks in on your vacation on the Homeric you cannot have some one reply that you are out and cannot be found. When the radio, in the near future, overtakes you in your private airplane, you cannot have some one answer that you are tied up in conference. The only remedy will be the very primitive but very simple one of saying that you don't wish to be bothered. Englishmen, who are experts in the preservation of privacy, have not succeeded primarily by turning their homes into castles and drawing the blinds, but by surrounding themselves with an icy zone which renders them inaccessible even in a second-class train compartment. Like European security, we shall have to surround ourselves with a neutralized zone, to cross which is a casus belli. Necessity will compel such mental isolation, as it has already compelled it in the case of the apartment house. The occupants of 5A and 5B on the same floor may treat each other with a degree of aloofness which in the suburbs would stigmatize them as bad neighbors and poor citizens. Sometimes the disease does produce the remedy.

MONTICELLO FOR POSTERITY.

More ballots have been cast for THOMAS JEFFERSON during the last few weeks than he ever received when he ran for office a century and a quarter ago. Each one has netted a dime—more than a million of them so far—to go to the purchase of his home, Monticello. Republicans have joined with Democrats in voting, and for the moment the bitter strife that has been waged between Hamiltonians and Jeffersonians ever since President WASHINGTON's first Cabinet meeting has been forgotten. But more votes are wanted, and wanted in a hurry, as the polls close tonight at midnight. It had been hoped that at least $500,000 would be obtained from these ten-cent contributions, but unless today's final drive nets large gifts it is unlikely that such a sum will be reached. The total cost of the property has been put at about $500,000, of which more than $100,000 has already been paid by the Jefferson Memorial Association. Over and above this another $500,000 is sought to be used as a fund to defray the upkeep of the property.

There has been no opposition to the purchase of Monticello as a national shrine. Yet it has been slow work to arouse sufficient interest in the movement to make it successful. Here in New York The World has done much to stimulate contributions. In other cities also the press has given hearty support. The most encouraging sign is the number who have made small contributions. This testifies to the growing appreciation among our people of the need of preserving for future generations all spots that are intimately connected with our national history. Mount Vernon, of course, is the classic example.

LINCOLN's cabin and JACKSON's home in Tennessee come to every mind. The surprising thing is that JEFFERSON's home should so long have been allowed to remain in private hands. Not only has he always been a great popular hero, but the house which he himself designed is famous as one of the finest examples of American architecture of the early days of the Republic. In its time it was a "show place." Despite the interest of the late Mr. JEFFERSON LEVY, who owned it, and of many other persons, it has been allowed to run down, with the result that the Jefferson Memorial Association has found it necessary to spend large sums on repairs and in order to restore the grounds to their original beauty. Like WASHINGTON, JEFFERSON was a passionate farmer, given to agricultural experiments and particularly fond of gardening. The gentlemen of Virginia in those days were not behind their English relatives in making much of flowers and hedges. Even today the box trees in the garden of GEORGE MASON, JEFFERSON's friend and neighbor, are famous for their beauty, although a century and a half has passed since they were planted.

THE VERY OLD GRADUATE.

Members of the Class of 1924, who are probably the oldest living graduates, have been delivering their minds as to what is wrong with the university. As it happens they are Harvard men, unusually given to teaching their alma mater to suck eggs; but what they say applies to almost any American institution. The club system is all wrong, and with it the entire social life, the university absolutely refusing to be "democratized." The system of teaching by lectures, under which the professor drones out what can be better read in a book, while the proctor notes absences with a view to disciplinary correction, is a survival of the time when a college was a sort of high school—indeed, of the Middle Ages when books were not to be had.

All this has, of course, been said for a generation—not a college generation of four years but a real one of nearer forty. The ancient "class" spirit, which bound every man to his fellows of the same year, has broken down under the weight of numbers, and there is nothing to take its place but a system of clubs or fraternities which tend to be as unrepresentative as they are exclusive. The high school-college "curriculum" has been leavened with the Germanic spirit of science without abandoning its puerile system of instruction. For thirty years graduates no less ancient than this Class of 1924 have been pointing to the residential features of the English colleges as a remedy for "undemocratic" social conditions, to their "honor schools" as educationally somewhat more adult. Yet every graduating class, upon its peak in Darien but far from silent, discovers its own ocean of abuses. The Faculty, meantime, does nothing, or next to nothing—except to oppose athletics, the only phase of its life in which the college is measurably united, and to deprecate the salaries paid to coaches, the only instructors who speak vigorously to the point without droning.

Younger graduates of, say, forty years' standing see signs of hope. The National Research Council has issued a bulletin by President AYDELOTTE of Swarthmore, a former Rhodes scholar, detailing the progress of the honor school idea. Already there are institutions in which able students read intensively, unplagued by disciplinary lectures, and proceed to an honor degree that means something. The idea of residential units within the university is also astir. With her system of Freshman Dormitories Harvard made a good start, but encountered the high cost of building and the superior charm of a School of Business. Definite progress may be expected in a century or two. Meantime, chief reliance must be placed upon the indignation of very old graduates after twelve months away from college.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Again We Hear of Vandals.

About the most discouraging report on Central Park of the many not unlike it in tenor is the one just prepared after careful study of conditions there by the Fifth Avenue Association. First among the troubles of this playground and beauty spot is put the continuous devastation wrought by "vandals"—the people who cannot see a flowering plant or shrub or tree without assaulting it and robbing their fellow-citizens—the people for whom grass is something to be walked upon and destroyed—the people who delight in making the lawns ugly by littering them with rubbish and garbage of all the kinds they can bring into the park and throw away there.

This is an old, sad story. It disgraces the city that it is, and always has been, true, and to stop such conduct only an army of policemen far larger than the city ever is likely to enlist for that purpose could be trusted. Supplication and denunciation have been tried for years, and accomplish next to nothing. The "vandals" continue to be as numerous as ever.

Just who they are nobody seems to know. It usually is assumed that they are newly arrived foreigners, but this seems improbable, for such folk come from countries where for ages they have received the stern training in respect for public property which the "old stock" here always has lacked. Certainly not all of the automobilists who ravage the country even more ruthlessly than do these urban despoilers the parks are of recent importation. They are more of the Colonial type—of those who, once with some excuse, regarded "nature" as an enemy, a tree something to cut down and wild flowers as things to be picked or ignored, according to mood. The representatives of that type are only too wonted to act as if there were no property rights in anything that grows and is not obviously a "crop" of grain or edible vegetables.

But the Fifth Avenue Association found more in Central Park than the work of "vandals." Its investigators made anew the discovery that the trees are dying for lack of water and nutriment in the soil, and concluded with nothing less lugubrious than the prophecy that unless radical measures are taken soon the park will become a barren waste.

How He Will Enjoy His Summer!

Thanks largely to the energetic SAMUEL UNTERMYER, the investigation of ROBERT BRINDELL's recent activities is not to be his immediate vindication from the charge of violating the terms of the parole on which he was let out of prison before the end of his term. One notices, however, that the settlement of what at least seems to be a rather simple case has been postponed to some indefinite time in the Fall, and meanwhile BRINDELL, instead of going back to his cell, as has been the wont of other men under similar charges, has been told, gently, to keep away from New York City for the present.

From his country residence up in the Adirondacks he probably will ask the surrounding forests, "What is exiled but set free?" or words to that effect, and the chances are that he will not forget the possibility of telephoning to the union faction whose members are eager to have him resume the powers of leadership that were so profitable to him and them in the happy past.

It is much to be regretted that Mr. UNTERMYER's engagements were such that he had to give the Parole Board the excuse it has used for delaying action in this troublesome case. The passage of several months certainly will not make easier the discovery of just what BRINDELL has been doing since his release.

Nobody has any suspicion that the members of the Parole Board have had any motive for favoring BRINDELL except the natural and human disinclination to admit that they were too trustful in accepting his promise. That motive sufficiently explains the reluctance with which they began the inquiry which Mr. UNTERMYER forced them to undertake, and it also explains why they started the examination of the witnesses provided for them in a way to give the impression that they wanted to justify their lenience by eluding or minimizing the evidence against BRINDELL. That does leave unexplained, indeed, the decidedly curious episodes that marked the proceedings at the time of his release, but even then there were no signs that the man owed anything to his money.

Will He Get Any Bids?

An advertisement in yesterday's TIMES recorded with emphasis the final and complete passing of a strange infection which swept over this country a few months ago and numbered its victims literally by the hundreds of thousands. The glad news took the form of the announcement that an auctioneer wanted to sell in behalf of a bankrupt firm, for what they would fetch, an enormous number of mah jong sets of the sorts that so recently were bought eagerly at absurdly high prices. With the "assembled" sets were offered the component parts that would make an even greater number, and then on the list came 75,000 mah jong instruction books, 20,000 mah jong dice, 5,000 pung chow racks and 3,500 score meters.

In kindness to a merchant in trouble one can hope that from the proceeds of this sale he will get back for his creditors a good part of his investment, but the hope would be stronger if it were not for the fact that the purveyors of mah jong sets and appurtenances exploited the folly of the public ruthlessly, and that by some mysterious means they gained a temporary popularity for a game which, however it may be in China, as played here was just about the stupidest that human beings ever wasted their time over.

Its futile and irrelevant complexities were an insult to common sense, and the fact that the Chinese are an intelligent people renders it sure that, though they provided us with the implements for what is said to be one of their favorite forms of [illegible] amusement, they cynically kept to themselves the real rules of the game and turned over to the outer barbarians some substitutes the acceptance of which here confirmed the yellow men in their belief in their own superiority.

But if Americans "fell for" mah jong, they very soon recovered their footing and their sanity.

Credibility at Its Very Limit.

A man whose name, ROTHKRUG, indicates a Nordic origin has just been revealed to an astonished world as having withdrawn fifty-four thousand good American dollars in large bills and turned them over to a man to run through a machine which would turn each of the bills into two, the one as easy to "pass" as the other. The result was the one which everybody except a few low-grade village idiots ought to have known it would be—the $54,000, instead of doubling, disappeared, permanently so far as their original owner was concerned.

Yet that owner was not a village idiot of any grade. He was a diamond dealer right here in this city, and in the part of the city where diamond dealers have to be the most sophisticated of their sophisticated class. Yet an old, old trick was played on him with perfect ease. It is impossible really to be sorry for him, but it is possible to wonder how a New Yorker, white and adult, could have been such a particularly easy mark. Did he use, and use up, all of his intelligence in his diamond dealing and have none at all for any other purpose?

CLOSING LINCOLN HOSPITAL.

City Is Criticized for a Neglected Opportunity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The closing of Lincoln Hospital is not only a severe blow to the Bronx, but presents a situation which is of vital interest to all New York taxpayers. The Lincoln Hospital has served the people of New York for eighty years, and for the last thirty years has been located in the southern section of the Bronx, where it last year cared for more than 5,000 patients in its wards and more than 30,000 out-patients at its dispensary. What the loss of these facilities will mean to the Bronx needs no emphasis, but I feel that not enough attention has been called to the way in which this closing affects all the citizens of New York.

The Lincoln Hospital uses annually the income from funds aggregating $1,000,000, and has an active organization which raises additional amounts annually by private subscriptions. The Legislature has empowered the city to take over the hospital, but this the Board of Estimate now refuses to do. Eighty per cent. of the patients in the hospital are city patients, and this means that on all these patients the taxpayers of the city obtain the benefit of this private support. If the city takes over the hospital, the organization and its funds will still serve the people of New York by continuing and extending the present work of training nurses in connection with the hospital.

The hospital for years has cared for city patients at less than cost, but the figures in THE NEW YORK TIMES show that with present high prices the city now pays only 60 per cent. of the cost of each city patient. This results in annual deficits, and the hospital is in addition faced with the necessity for capital expenditures to keep its buildings up to date.

The city's action in refusing to take over and operate the hospital is just one more example of "killing the goose that lays the golden egg." The only possible result of the city's refusal will be that the city will have to go to the delay and expense of providing new hospital facilities, and after these are provided the taxpayer will have to foot the whole bill for their operation, instead of sharing the burden with a private organization, as is the case at present and would be the case if the city took over the existing hospital.

Surely the people in all the boroughs will join with the Bronx in the insistence that hospitals are not places for playing politics, and that fair treatment must be accorded to those who are furnishing hospital service.

Machinery and Vagrants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I pity Mr. Gabriel Wells, who still professes to believe that machinery in ousting man saves money, but makes human beings vagrants. My experience as a police news reporter compels the confession that in the larger cities of the East the recognized vagrant is a rare bird indeed, like unto the dodo of long ago. Yet you will find a veritable flock basking in the golden warmth of the golden sun of the golden West. Machinery or no machinery, work or no work, and a greater labor demand than supply, will never affect our "gentlemen of leisure" and "knights of the road," who have paraphrased the easily recognized, "Work may come and work may go, but we go on forever."

As for the insidious labor-saving devices, will teacher please explain the evil effects of the reaper and harvester, the buttonhole machine, the airplane, the cotton gin, the gas engine, the pressing machine, the steam engine, the automobile, the sewing machine, the printing press, the telephone and telegraph, the radio, the turbine or "white coal," just to mention a few?

It is difficult for the layman to appreciate the benefits of labor-saving devices. Superficially they are evil; the good is rooted deeper than the turbulent surface. For one, there is the element of more efficient production with its attendant greater consumption. This is not apparent to the lay eye. For elucidation, one might suggest a course in elementary economics.

SOVEREIGN.

Catalpa blossoms, fluttering
  To settle on the ground,
Arouse the interest of the hens
  That stir and peck them round.
And Marjory Ann, with gingham frock
  As pink as both her cheeks,
Is sitting on the kitchen steps
  Beside a door that creaks.

Her coppery hair is flying free,
  Her calm eyes, opened wide,
Are signaling their new estate:
  The blue eyes of a bride!
Upon her lap, a shiny pan
  Is packed brim-high with peas
Whose fat, or little, shriveled selves
  She shells and softly frees.

The downy lining of their shells,
  The fresh green of their backs,
She separates, with dainty air,
  In pretty, empty stacks.
The rhythmic fields of fanning corn,
  Beyond the staring fence,
Are rushing ripening of grain
  That she may pluck them hence.

It matters not the age nor clime,
  For sovereignly they rule—
The wholesome Marjory Anns, with youth
  Their scepter and their tool.
To mothers of the future race
  Creation stops to bow—
Unchallenging, unquestioning
  The when and where and how!

SONIA RUTHELE NOVAK.

PHILOSOPHY ON THE FARM.

Plebs Rustica Muses on Editors and Things.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As all questions of the day are thoroughly discussed over at the cross-road grocery store, a crowd is drawn there nightly. And so last evening after supper, as I started for the kitchen door, that good cook of a wife of mine nonchalantly said, "The grocery store for yours tonight?"

And says I, "Yes, dear, to get you that yeast cake." (The good old Ninth Ward produced one gallant at least, didn't it?)

When I reached the store the boys were evidently glad to see me, as some Yorker had them completely flabbergasted by his talk on more wages and shorter hours. As I was introduced to him, says he, "I seen your hollers in THE NEW YORK TIMES and I also seen that that favorite paper of yours slammed the farmers recently by editorially saying that the rustics didn't like daylight saving, principally because the urbanites wanted the extra hour for golf. And also that the rustics should make their help's jobs more attractive."

I blushingly admitted you occasionally inserted one of my hollers when you desired any old kind of miscellaneous matter to fill up some late page, and then getting most gosh-darned warm under the collar I stood up, Mr. Editor, and I sailed into that bird from your village. The assistant postmaster, a bright girl who reads all our postals and is also studying stenography, immortalized these portentous words of mine:

"Gentlemen, this Yorker and his editorial friend speak of rustics. Now, if I recall correctly my ancient history there were four classes of people in Rome centuries ago, divided as follows: The senators or patricians, the knights, the plebeians and the slaves.

"The senators, who are also called patres, or fathers, advised the consul that the patricians were descended from them; the knights consisted of those who could furnish a horse for the wars, and the plebeians or mass of the people were called plebs or populus. Those who lived in the country were plebs rustica and were considered the most respectable; the plebs urbana consisted chiefly of mechanics or poorer citizens who followed no trade and partly maintained themselves from the largesses of corn, &c., distributed among them.

"And, gentlemen, the same condition prevails today, except that the plebs urbana contingent don't receive, but take as a matter of right and by force their daily allowance of foodstuff. And we farmers are the goats, to use a present-day expression.

"And when this unsympathetic editor reminds us we should make our help's jobs more attractive so they won't get peeved at more fortunate city workers, he touches a very sore spot.

"But all of us know full well how unmercifully het up we become at about 4 o'clock, God's time, but 5 o'clock golf time, when we see, while working with indifferent help, the many Government, State, county and township employe contingents gleefully and swiftly sail by in their limousines, knowing we still have two more hours to struggle. And realizing farming is carried on at a loss at that.

"And, gentlemen, when that editor advises us to make the jobs of our help more attractive, what does he mean? Does he intimate loaning them our flivvers after supper for a joy ride, or giving them the farm outright?

"And did you notice, too, gentlemen, I used the significant word indifferent a few moments ago? That's some word, and then some, and I could talk all night on just that one word. And if I was the editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES—well! about the second day I'd be feeding the fishes in the lower bay.

"Gentlemen, if Will Carleton was alive today he'd write another little ballad on 'over the hills,' 'cause that's where we're going. We are being slowly strangled by a protective tariff, extravagant public officials and arrogant combinations of hijackers.

"The tariff does not protect us in the least, but does make us pay more for everything we use. Of course, I am fully aware there are some who might call my attention to the fact that as wheat, for instance, is now over $2 per bushel in New York, we farmers can afford to pay $100 for a mowing machine, whereas years ago they cost but $35. But that is awful bunk. Prices of all grains, for instance, are fixed abroad. That's that.

"Then, too, our public officials are criminally extravagant. Congressmen, well knowing our insistent cry for economy, jacked up their own wages last session. And some chap whom my hired man calls Lafayette (and voted for for President last Fall, besides making his woman do the same, he told me) had a law enacted years ago valuing the railroads, saying it wouldn't cost very much. Now those investigations, with an army of clerks, have spent something like sixty millions of dollars without, as yet, touching one major system.

"At Albany they have a doorkeeper for every opening, including one for the clothes closets, which I admit may be necessary. Then our local supervisors squander about all their time discussing some country bond issue or raising salaries.

"But now, fellow-farmers, we will take up what those urbanites call the pièce de résistance. And its some resistance, I'll tell the entire world. These organized bandits during the war period took or found occasion to jack up their wages, and while we've been deflated they won't listen to such a thing. Consequently, as an example I must give up say ten or twelve bushels of potatoes to a town mechanic for an eight-hour day's work. We can't stand that extortion, as there isn't enough money in this farming game for that.

"These organized bandits are conspiracies against the general public, and I hope the next time some Government Attorney General brings suit against a corporation for restraint of trade the Judge will give him the merry ha-ha and laugh him out of court.

"And before I close, fellow-farmers, I want to inform you, and I know what I'm talking about, that a handful of foreign-born coal miners, many of whom are not naturalized and are sending back to Europe vast sums yearly, are collecting an enormous strike fund to be utilized, may be, after Sept. 1! So cut plenty of wood."

As I resumed my seat on the cracker barrel, Mr. Editor, the whole crowd rose en masse and vociferously cheered me, then Uncle Dan'l read the following gem:

LABOR LABEL LOST.

A labor union member came home quite debonaire;
The doctor had announced to him a healthy son and heir;
The father took the baby boy and placed it on the table,
And then renounced the sonship 'cause it bore no union label.

As Steve and I walked homeward last night that thoroughbred produced a little apple concoction which he somehow manages to make with his ten-gallon contraption, and as he gave it a second wallop says he to me, "Boss, I'm getting more for this apple since the rum fleet was chased away." And says I, quickly, "Don't let go all you have, Stephen, 'cause a little of that stuff occasionally helps one forgive those unsympathetic editors and temporarily forget those organized bandits."

DRAFT BILL TO WEED UNFIT FROM NAVY

WOULD SPEED RETIREMENTS

Dropping of Officers Not Promoted After Reaching Certain Ages Provided—Wilbur Studies Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—A radical change in the regulations governing promotions in the Navy, affecting officers in every branch of the service, is proposed in the tentative draft of a bill made public today at the Navy Department. The measure is designed to accelerate advancement for officers regarded as fit and to bring about the speedy retirement of those who for any reason have failed to be selected for promotion.

The bill, which has not yet been approved by Secretary Wilbur, is criticized by younger officers on the ground that if passed by Congress it would lead to more retirements below the grade of Commander than above that rank, and work to the disadvantage of men in the lower grades.

It is proposed that officers who have not been designated for promotion in specified ranks before reaching certain ages shall be automatically retired. The bill may be summarized as follows:

1. It substitutes years of service since graduation for age in grade in determining eligibility for promotion and extends the provisions for ineligibility for promotion downward to include Lieutenants and Lieutenants (junior grade) instead of Lieutenant Commanders as before, by providing for retirement in the grades of Captain, Commander, Lieutenant Commander, Lieutenant and Lieutenant (junior grade) after a total service of thirty-five, twenty-eight, twenty-one, fourteen and seven years, respectively.

2. Establishes a common point from which service since graduation shall be considered to originate in the case of all officers, namely: The first of July following their graduation from the Naval Academy, considering that all officers have completed a four years' course at the Academy.

3. Provides for the complete separation from the service of Lieutenants and Lieutenants (junior grade) who fail of promotion by selection after having served fourteen and seven years, respectively, since graduation with two years' base pay of their grade.

4. Provides that officers with more than ten years' naval service previous to the date of their permanent commission shall be retired with 2½ per cent. of their base pay for each year of their total service.

5. Extends the existing law for selection for promotion from the rank of Lieutenant to Lieutenant Commander and from Lieutenant (junior grade) to Lieutenant, instead of as at present from the rank of Lieutenant Commander to Commander.

6. Provides that ex-warrant and ex-commissioned and warrant officers holding the rank of Lieutenant and Lieutenant (junior grade), if not selected for promotion shall have the option of reverting to their former permanent warrant status.

7. Provides that not more than 10 per cent. of officers of any grade shall be retired in any one year.

8. Specifically retains the general retirement age of 64 years as in the present law.

9. Provides for the retirement of officers appointed from sources other than from the Naval Academy after they have served seven years in any grade other than that of Lieutenant (junior grade), provided they have been passed over in selection for promotion when the Naval Academy class next junior to them becomes ineligible for promotion.

The provision of the bill barring promotions to all officers below the rank of Captain unless they have had at least two years' sea duty, or unless they have served anywhere from thirty-five to seven years, according to grade, may be waived in the event of a national emergency or in a case where an officer is performing special service for which he is peculiarly qualified. The qualification of sea service is not applied to officers restricted to the performance of engineering duty.

To carry out the provisions of the proposed new law authority is given for the creation of a selection board in addition to the one that now chooses officers for promotion above the rank of Captain.

The bill will be introduced in the House at the December session of Congress by Representative Britten of Illinois, a Republican member of the Committee on Naval Affairs. It was prepared at conferences in which Mr. Britten spoke for members of Congress who approve the extension of the selective system in making promotions in the navy.

In the conferences the navy was represented by Admiral E. W. Eberle, Rear Admiral H. P. Jones, Rear Admiral W. R. Shoemaker, Rear Admiral E. H. Campbell and Commander J. H. McCain. In making public the provisions of this bill the department authorized this statement:

"This draft is but tentative. It has not yet received the approval of the navy and is subject to changes before being submitted for consideration by Congress."

FOR HAWAIIAN DEFENSE.

Umpires Present Final Recommendations to Navy Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Important recommendations for the better safeguarding of the Hawaiian Islands, as one of the vital links in the chain of national defense, are contained in the report of the chief umpires who officiated at the recent joint army and naval manoeuvres in the Pacific.

The report, signed by Admiral Robert E. Coontz and Major Gen. John L. Hines, reached the Navy Department by mail this afternoon and was referred to the Joint Board of the Army and the Navy.

The report, it is learned, contains four major recommendations for strengthening the land defenses of the Island of Oahu, on which are Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, and where all the defenses of the islands are concentrated. These major recommendations are:

First—That the present garrison of Oahu be increased by the addition of 7,000 men to its mobile reserve strength.

Second—That the air forces of the army in the islands be doubled.

Third—That two more 16-inch guns be mounted in the islands in positions calculated to afford better defense for the north coast, where the Blue expeditionary force made its main attack by landing marines.

Fourth—That the communications system of the army in Oahu, especially in telephone wires, be increased.

So far as the naval forces in the island are concerned, the primary recommendations are:

First—That the naval air forces be doubled.

Second—That the complement of submarines based on Pearl Harbor, which is now twenty, be increased to thirty, and that they be of modern type.

The report also contains definite recommendations with respect to the fleet. It points out that the fleet was seriously handicapped in speed by the fact that the vessels used as transports, which were only naval auxiliaries, held down its pace from San Francisco to Oahu to an average of only nine knots. It required thirteen days to make the cruise to Oahu that is negotiated by commercial liners between San Francisco and Honolulu in five and a half days.

While the experimental aircraft carrier Langley was of value to the expedition, and succeeded, when convoyed by a naval force consisting of the scouting fleet, in establishing temporary air bases on the neighboring islands of Molokai and Lanai, and thus assisted the air forces operating with the main expeditionary force landing on the north coast of Oahu, the umpires emphasize that the fleet greatly needs larger and speedier aircraft carriers of the type of the Saratoga and Lexington, which cannot be completed until the Fall of 1926.

DEPEW OPENS WRNY, NEW RADIO STATION

MORE THRILLS LONG AGO

Other Talks and Entertainment Feature Program Atop the Roosevelt.

Chauncey M. Depew was the principal speaker at the opening last night of the new broadcasting station WRNY, atop the Roosevelt Hotel, Forty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue. Mr. Depew talked into the microphone in the library of his residence, 17 West Fifty-fourth Street, and told his invisible audience some of his boyhood recollections.

"I understand that this evening will be distinguished by the number of boys and girls who are listening-in," said Mr. Depew at the beginning of his talk. "Many of them have made their own radio machines in whole or in part. The boys and girls of today have so many opportunities for their mental and spiritual advancement, which never existed before, that we older people wonder how we ever got on at all."

Then he told of the advantages the boys of eighty years ago had over the boy of today, when they were thrilled with battles between the United States soldiers and real Indians. He related how as a boy of 10 he had visited P. T. Barnum's museum in lower Broadway to see a Pawnee and a Sioux Indian chief, whom Mr. Barnum had advertised largely as having participated in some of the then recent Indian battles. Their war whoops, he said, were the most astonishing thing he had ever heard.

He lingered after the crowd had dispersed, he continued, in boyish curiosity, and was much surprised to hear the two chieftains speak to each other in a familiar brogue. He quoted the Pawnee as saying to the Sioux warrior as follows:

"Moike, if it don't let up a little on this heat, I'm thinkin' we'll be nothin' but grease spots."

Comparison of the Times.

Mr. Depew used this episode to illustrate the difference between the boy of yesterday and today. He thought it was quite proper for an Indian to speak with a brogue, but a lad of the present time would know too much about the language, habits and customs of the Indians.

The Boy Scout movement, Mr. Depew went on, matures youngsters, gives them discipline, and a code of honor, and develops them rapidly without their losing any of the pleasures of boyhood and its characteristics. The same, he said, is true of the Campfire Girls.

Speaking of the development of the radio, he said "much as we admire and wonder at these marvels which are the commonplace of our days, one may wonder if they are necessary to greatness or great achievements.

"The greatest thinkers of antiquity, who have been the guides of all ages, were Plato, Socrates and Aristotle. They had none of these modern wonders. The greatest orators of antiquity were Demosthenes and Cicero. They won their everlasting fame without any of these modern assistants. Titian, Michael Angelo and Raphael are still unapproachable by our times.

"Washington created our Republic and placed it firmly upon its feet. Lincoln saved it from destruction and put it upon its pathway to world leadership. Neither of them knew anything, dreamed anything, or had a prophetic suggestion of anything in the way of the wonders which we enjoy. They accomplished all these great and immortal deeds with only such opportunities as their times afforded."

Dr. De Forest On Radio Future.

Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of the modern vacuum tube and the phonofilm, or the talking motion-picture film, who is sailing today for Europe, was another speaker. Mr. De Forest said that the intricate difficulties which must be overcome before moving pictures in the home by radio are an every-night occurrence, are such that "most of us will not live to see this miracle."

He also declared that he knew of no practical method of eliminating static disturbance.

A novel feature introduced by the new station was the staccatone signal, originated by Hugo Gernsback, editor of Radio News, builder of the station, a signal which is used before the station goes on the air, and also used in signing off programs.

Mr. Gernsback in his talk said the keynote of the new station would be novelty, with regular weekly lectures on various scientific topics. He announced for June 22 radio hook-ups, or circuit diagrams, to be broadcast for the first time in the history of radio.

"Bugs" Baer was the master of ceremonies, and there was an interesting musical program given, in which operatic singers and Broadway stars, including Elsie Janis, took part. There was also an hour of jazz and dance music from 1 to 2 A. M. by Ben Bernie's orchestra, direct from the grill room of the Roosevelt.

24 GOVERNORS ISSUE FLAG DAY APPEALS

Six Others Give Movement Official Approval—Set for Tomorrow and Monday.

The Governors of twenty-four States have issued proclamations officially recognizing tomorrow and Monday, June 14 and 15, as Flag Days, it was announced yesterday by Dwight Braman, President of the Allied Patriotic Societies. Governors of six other States have stamped the Flag Day movement with their official approval without, however, going through the formality of issuing proclamations.

"Since the beginning of our Flag Day crusade five years ago," Mr. Braman said "interest in the movement has steadily increased until this year, when we confidently expect that every reputable business house and store in the larger cities and most of the towns and villages throughout the country will appropriately recognize this anniversary. Some Governors have proclaimed June 15, which comes on Monday, as Flag Day because business houses will be closed on the 14th, the anniversary itself. This, however, does not prevent the display of flags on the homes on Sunday, and the net result will be that we will keep two Flag Days this year."

In addition to the country-wide celebration, Mr. Braman has obtained the cooperation of many firms and organizations in the metropolitan district. The Fifth Avenue Coach Company will display flags on all its buses, and the large vessels in the harbor also will fly the national emblem.

"Flag Day will be celebrated outside the States themselves in our insular possessions and Alaska this year," Mr. Braman said yesterday. "In Hawaii, the Philippines and other islands elaborate ceremony will mark the day. I have also received letters from all parts of the country assuring me that the emblem will be conspicuously displayed in all places of worship, and many ministers will use our flag and its significance as a topic in their sermons."

The celebration of the 148th anniversary of the flag will be initiated in New York tonight, when Mr. Braman will broadcast over WEAF a short history of the flag and the meaning of its symbols.

An American flag to be unfurled at sea on Flag Day in memory of all the American men who died at sea in the World War was presented yesterday to Captain W. H. Hassock of the Cunard liner Caronia, sailing today for Liverpool. The flag was given to Captain Hassock by Colonel Pauline Renkel of Liberty Loan fame, who was escorted to the pier by a squad of United States Marines.

COOLIDGE DUBIOUS ON ESTATE TAXES

HAS A TALK WITH SMOOT

Latter Expects Tariff Agitation in Next Congress, but Looks for Few Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Coolidge sees difficulties in Senator Smoot's proposal that the Federal Government withdraw from the field of inheritance taxes if the States abandon income taxes.

Senator Smoot conferred with the President today about taxation and tariff matters, as well as expediting reclamation work in the West. The talk on taxation was informal, and there were no conclusions as to the Administration's attitude on the question of a reduction in the normal taxes. It has been well understood that the Republican leaders in Congress will consent to a reduction of the surtaxes to 25 per cent., while some believe there should be some relief to the small taxpayer, now paying a normal tax of 2 per cent.

Reduction of the normal tax is popular among members of the House who face the 1926 elections. Some of them in the Western States say they cannot well go before the voters unless the small taxpayer gets a lessening of his taxes if the surtaxes are cut.

President Coolidge favors the idea that the Federal Government should abandon the collection of inheritance taxes, but does not see how an agreement could be reached with the States by which they would drop State income taxes in return for the Federal Government abandoning inheritance taxes. He takes the view that Massachusetts could not get along with inheritance taxes alone, and since many States have both taxes there appears to be no reason to suppose the States would accept the inheritance tax proposal. In a speech some months ago the President suggested that the Federal Government should retire from the collection of inheritance taxes when the situation justified giving them up. He is opposed to them on the ground that they are duplicate taxes, as nearly all States collect them.

Senator Smoot admitted today that there is a wide demand for revision of the tariff in the next Congress. It comes from the West and from textile manufacturers of New England. After seeing the President, he said he was positive the Administration had no intention of seeking any changes in the present tariff law. He did not personally see any reason for tariff tinkering.

Other leaders are opposed to tariff legislation in the year before Congressional elections. The opinion prevails that there will be little tariff legislation for years to come if the Republican Party remains in power, since the disposition of Republicans is to make any desirable changes through the operation of the elastic tariff clause of the present law.

Frank W. Mondell, a member of the War Finance Corporation, called on the President today to take up with him a speech Mr. Mondell is to deliver in several Western cities upon the subject of Federal tax reform. His first speech will be before the Hamilton Club of Chicago next week. Other speeches will be in Sioux City, Des Moines, Minneapolis and Brookings, S. D.

According to an official White House source, the President will leave Washington on the night of June 23 for Swampscott, Mass., where he is to spend his vacation. The journey will be made in a special train due at Boston the following morning. The trip from Boston to Swampscott, less than twenty miles, will be made by motor.

If the President leaves here on June 23 he may attend the conference of Governors at Poland Springs on June 28.

BYNG TO LEAVE CANADA.

Won't Stay as Governor General, Premier King Tells Commons.

OTTAWA, June 12 (AP).—Baron Byng of Vimy will not serve a second term as Governor General of Canada, Premier King indicated in a statement today in the House.

Replying to a question by Opposition Leader Meighen, the Premier said he understood Baron Byng had decided that he would not be able to consider extension of his term except in case of unusual public need.

The Opposition spokesman observed that if his Excellency could be persuaded to remain it would meet with almost universal approval, and said a favorable statement to that effect from the Government would be most welcome.

NEW CHARGES MADE AGAINST BRINKMAN

Additional Indictments Found in Alleged Plot to Sell Stolen Securities.

BANK PRESIDENT QUIZZED

Dealings of the Chelsea Exchange With Accused Lawyer Declared to Have Been Proper.

Additional indictments charging grand larceny and criminally receiving stolen securities were returned yesterday against Israel Brinkman, lawyer, of 1,540 Broadway, in connection with an alleged bond plot conspiracy. Two other men, whose identities were withheld by the authorities, also were indicted with Brinkman on charges of helping place stolen securities with banks as collateral for loans. Brinkman, who was released in $25,000 bail on Thursday by Judge Koenig of General Sessions, probably will be arraigned for pleading on the new indictments next Monday. Altogether six persons have been indicted in connection with the bond plot.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and Assistant District Attorney Richard C. Murphy, who prepared the evidence on which the indictments were returned, spent three hours yesterday afternoon questioning Edward S. Rothchild, President of the Chelsea Exchange Bank, which loaned Brinkman $60,000 on about $75,000 in securities, which, Mr. Murphy alleged, had been stolen in recent months from brokerage firms in this city and St. Louis. Mr. Rothchild visited the District Attorney's office with David Brady, a lawyer, who was present during the interrogation of the banker. The banker brought with him some of the bank's books for inspection.

Mr. Murphy earlier in the day had taken issue with Mr. Rothchild about two checks for $180,000 which the banker previously had admitted had been drawn to the order of Brinkman in connection with the contemplated purchase by Brinkman and another man of the Hotel Narragansett, Broadway and Ninety-fourth Street. Mr. Murphy had said that Mr. Rothchild told him that the checks had been drawn without Brinkman delivering collateral for them. The banker said that while collateral for them had not been produced the checks never were in Brinkman's custody.

Bank's Transactions All Proper.

At the close of the conference Mr. Pecora said: "From all the information which Mr. Murphy and I have obtained, there is nothing to indicate that the bank in its transactions with Brinkman acted in any improper manner. It would appear from our examination of Mr. Rothchild and Mr. Brady that those checks were drawn in order to enable Brinkman and other persons associated with him to make a tender of $180,000 to the Morrell Finance Company, which owned the hotel.

"It appears that two corporations, known as the Brinklett Realty Corporation, of which Brinkman was President and Treasurer, and the Tenential Corporation, of which one Joseph Hertzberg was President and Treasurer, had entered into a contract in April of this year to purchase the Narragansett Hotel property from the Morrell Finance Company. The contract called for the payment of $20,000 on account of the purchase price at the signing of the contract of sale and for the payment of $180,000 at the time of closing of title, scheduled for May 15 last. About May 14 Brinkman and Hertzberg requested the Chelsea Exchange Bank to supply them with facilities to enable them to make a formal tender of the $180,000 to the Morrell Company the following day.

"It was stated by Brinkman and Hertzberg that they felt certain the Morrell Company would not be in a position at the time of the tender to accept the same and to give Brinkman and Hertzberg's corporations a title to the hotel property in compliance with the contract and it would not be necessary for them to pay over the $180,000 or the checks therefor.

"The bank on May 15 drew two cashier's checks to the order of Brinkman, each for $90,000. The checks were endorsed in blank by Brinkman, but actually turned over to Mr. Brady, with instructions by the bank that they were not to go out of his possession unless a loan of $180,000 by the bank to Brinkman and Hertzberg's corporations had first been consummated, the loan to be secured by collateral to be submitted to an official of the bank.

Got $900 for Showing Checks.

"Mr. Brady accompanied Brinkman that day to the office of ex-Judge Daniel F. Cohalan and Captain John E. O'Brien, counsel for the Morrell Finance Company, 43 Cedar Street, where the closing of title was to take place. In the course of a long conference some form of tender of the two checks was made by Brinkman. The checks were exhibited by Mr. Brady, but inasmuch as no loan by the bank to Brinkman and Hertzberg had been consummated, Mr. Brady at no time parted with the checks, and he returned them to the bank after leaving the office of Mr. O'Brien."

At this point Mr. Brady was asked: "What if the tender had been accepted?"

"It was purely a gesture," the lawyer replied. "Mr. Rothchild had instructed me not to turn the checks over unless the money was loaned to Brinkman and Hertzberg, and I would not have done so."

Mr. Brady then admitted that Brinkman had paid the bank $900 for the use of the checks, adding: "The $900 was received by Mr. Rothchild at the time he made out the checks for $180,000, and was to be applied as interest if the loan were actually made."

He said that the $900 never was repaid to Brinkman, explaining that "it was used as a service charge that had been agreed to before the checks were drawn."

"For what service?" Mr. Brady was asked.

"For the bank extending the facility to Brinkman and Hertzberg," was the reply. "The Chelsea Exchange Bank has sustained no loss in its transactions with Brinkman. In the cases where loans aggregating $60,000 were made to Brinkman they were fully secured by securities in excess of $75,000. The usual search of records to ascertain whether these securities were stolen was made. In fact, as recently as last week the Federal Reserve Bank had no record of the theft of the Liberty bonds."

Brinkman, Mr. Murphy said, also had pledged stocks and bonds with another uptown bank on a loan. These securities, he added, had been stolen in September, 1924, from Turnbull & Co., brokers, at 29 Broadway, by a messenger. He said that another $32,000 of the St. Louis Liberty bonds and other securities stolen in November from Rhoades & Co., brokers, at 43 Exchange Place, had been pledged for loans by Brinkman in the branch of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company at Broadway and Seventy-third Street.

The new indictments were in connection with the pledging of some of these securities and the complaint of Mark Rothkrug, diamond merchant, at 36 West Forty-seventh Street, that Brinkman and another man had swindled him out of $58,000 last September by means of a "money-making machine."

AMERICAN WAIVER PLAN VOTED AT ARMS PARLEY

Nations Having No Territory in or Near Prohibited Zones Exempt From Control Responsibility.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

GENEVA, June 12.—The sole interesting development today in the Arms Traffic Conference was the acceptance in principle by the General Committee of the United States' amendment which would free contracting parties who have territories neither in the prohibited zones nor contiguous to them from responsibilities of carrying out the control measures laid down for these zones.

The article reads: "The high contracting parties which have no territories under sovereignty jurisdiction, protection or tutelage within or adjacent to the special zones assume no obligation or responsibility for carrying out measures for control provided for in articles concerning the storage and warehouses and maritime zone."

The article makes possible for the United States to waive all responsibilities for all shipments sent to the prohibited zone in the regular manner provided under the convention after such shipments have arrived at the ports of destination and also frees us from responsibility of verifying flags of ships within the special maritime zones.

As the convention stands the right to search ships in the maritime zone is forbidden. The sole right granted to great powers is to verify the flags of ships and arrest those ships flying false colors.

Representative Burton told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent he was satisfied with the convention which should be ready for signature next Wednesday. He feels the conference has done excellent work and that the convention goes far ahead of any control which has yet existed. Mr. Burton expressed doubt whether the United States would attend a conference which might be called to deal with the question of control of private manufacture of arms as recommended in the final act of the convention. If Mr. Burton is right in judgment of the Government's attitude, the recommendation, it is thought, might as well be stricken out of the convention as it is certain that none of the manufacturing powers will attend a conference for the control of private manufacture if the United States is not present. The attitude of other nations toward the United States abstention was shown conclusively when the Saint Germain convention was permitted to go by the boards.

OBJECTS TO THE CENSUS.

Yonkers Man, Fifteen Years Here, Placed on Probation.

John Fraykor of 12 Seymour Street, Yonkers, was arrested there yesterday on the complaint of Howard B. Fielding, Deputy Supervisor of the Census, who said he refused to give a census enumerator information required by law.

Mr. Fielding and Patrolman James McCormack testified in the Yonkers City Court that Faykor also said he "hated all badges" and had "a grudge against all policemen and hated all American uniforms."

Fraykor pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for one year. He has been living in the United States fifteen years.

TO DISCUSS LABOR TRAINING

Educators and Union Officials Will Meet Today.

A meeting of college professors and trade union officials will be held today at the Manumit School, Pawling, N. Y., to discuss the problems of labor education and lay plans for the extension of the work done at Manumit during its first year. Professor Harry A. Overstreet of the College of the City of New York, Dr. Henry Linville of the Teachers' Union, A. J. Muste of the Brookward Labor College, James H. Maurer of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor and Joseph Schlossberg of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers will address the conference.

The institution at Manumit is a residential preparatory school for the children of workers, conducted under trade union auspices. According to William M. Fincke, director, who gave his farm of 177 acres to the labor movement, the object of the school is to develop the individual so that he may become able to meet the many labor problems of today.

Three smart eight-year-old boys

lugging a small raft, evidently their own handiwork, are gleefully on the way to the sea beach, showing their preparedness for safety while learning to swim.

If boys try to think beforehand, the habit will grow upon them and they will count for more than the other boys who have to cry "I did not think" over their mistakes.

A celebrated Englishman advised his son at school: "Be a whole man at everything."

Many a boy so splits himself up to fit into athletics, school societies, glee clubs, etc., that he is not a whole boy at anything and only a middling boy at everything.

How we would hate ourselves to be keeping only a middling good store.

EXPERTS ARE NAMED FOR TRIP TO ARCTIC

National Geographic Society Announces Personnel of MacMillan Expedition.

HE GOES FIRST TO ETAH

If Amundsen Has Not Been Heard From, Navy Planes Will Then Start Search for Him.

CANADA'S CLAIMS DEFINED

Minister of the Interior Explains the Basis on Which She Assumes Sovereignty Over Arctic Islands.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Commander Donald B. MacMillan today informed the National Geographic Society, under whose auspices the MacMillan-Byrd expedition will soon start for the Arctic region, that he would go first to Etah, Greenland, from which base his search for Amundsen would begin if the Norwegian explorer is not heard from in the meantime.

"The expedition's major task," the society announced, "will be to fly out over the great unknown area lying between Alaska and the North Pole. Other scientific work of the expedition will include a study of Norse ruins in Greenland, by permission of the Danish Government; studies of tides, soundings, air currents, glaciers, fishes, birds and wild flowers of the Arctic.

Aboard the Bowdoin, the ship commanded by MacMillan, leader of the expedition, which will carry the scientists sent north by the National Geographic Society and which also will be Radio Station WNP when it reaches Etah, will be:

Ralph Robinson, chief assistant, of Merrimac, Mass.

John Jaynes, chief engineer, of Somerville, Mass.

Martin Vosse, cook, Somerville, Mass.

O. D. Melkon, motion-picture operator, South Weymouth, Mass.

Canada's Claims Are Explained.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 12.—Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, commenting today regarding recent discussions in the United States and Canada as to the title to the islands in the Arctic stated that Canada's northern territory includes all the area bounded on the east by a line passing midway between Greenland and Baffin, Devon and Ellesmere Islands to the 60th meridian of longitude, following this meridian to the Pole, and on the west by the 141st meridian of longitude, following his meridian to the Pole, as indicated, for example, by the official map published in 1904, showing "Explorations in Northern Canada."

R. Stewart declared that no new claims are being advanced on Canada's behalf and that the present policy of the Government was simply a continuation of methods followed for many years past in administering the northern territories of the Dominion. For years, he said, the Canadian Government has been sending out expeditions and at much expense has established posts on Ellesmere, Devon and other islands.

Mr. Stewart also declared that in 1880 Great Britain, by Imperial Order in Council, transferred the Arctic Archipelago to Canada. The order provided that "All British territories and possessions in North America and the islands adjacent to such territories and possessions which are not already included in the Dominion of Canada should (with the exception of the Colony of Newfoundland and its dependencies) be annexed to and form part of the said Dominion."

So far as discoveries go Mr. Stewart contended that the title of Great Britain, and thus of Canada, to the Northern Islands is beyond question. With few exceptions all the known insular areas in the Canadian Arctic were discovered and formally taken possession of by British commissioned navigators for a century to three-quarters of a century ago and such acts of possession were formally announced to the world in British Government Blue Books.

In 1670 King Charles II granted a charter to the Hudson's Bay Company, by virtue of which the company, for two centuries, exercised a proprietary government over the area covered by its charter and established posts throughout the Arctic drainage basin of the mainland.

This was followed up by occupation and control on the part of Great Britain and Canada as regards the natives both of the mainland and of the Arctic islands between Greenland and the 141st meridian. The Canadian Government has sent many expeditions to the archipelago and formal proclamations have been made reaffirming British sovereignty. Police posts and custom houses have been established at various points, detachments of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police make extensive patrols every year and a general administration of the law and of the game regulations has been maintained.

Airedale Returns Home After Year's Strange Absence

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKAWAY, N. J., June 12.—Today was a day of rejoicing here for Charles Vanderbush and for Charles Vanderbush's dog, Sport. Vanderbush moved to a farm near here from Morris Plains more than a year ago. The day before he moved Sport, his faithful Airedale of many years, disappeared. Extensive advertising failed to recover the animal and Vanderbush had months ago become resigned to the loss of his pet.

As he was walking through the main street of this village this morning a brown dog, much the worse for wear, approached him. Recognition was mutual and instantaneous. Vanderbush fell to his knees and embraced the long lost Sport as scores of bystanders looked on. How the terrier had spent his past year and how he found his way to Rockaway, thirty miles from his former home, still remain mysteries.

COURT BANS TAXIS WITH FALSE COLORS

Appellate Division Sustains Action of Commissioner Quigley Against Driver.

TWO JUSTICES DISSENT

License Refused to Chauffeur Because Machine Carried Bogus Emblem of Cab Association.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday decided by a vote of 3 to 2 that owners of taxicabs carrying false emblems could justly be refused licenses by the Commissioner of Licenses. Justice McAvoy in his opinion pointed out the importance of protecting the public, and, with Justices Dowling and Martin concurring, declared that the licensing power carries with it the right to decide whether the owner of a taxi is flying under false colors.

Justice Finch wrote a dissenting opinion, in which Presiding Justice Clarke concurred, stating "the duties of the Commissioner of Licenses are purely ministerial and he is without authority to determine the question of the right of an owner to the use of a particular insignia."

Although authority over taxicabs has been taken from the Commissioner of Licenses since the suit was brought, the minority ruling is important as bearing on the Commissioner's powers in general. It points out the danger of extending the Commissioner's arbitrary powers, saying:

"It requires little stretch of the imagination to foresee the extent of the Commissioner's activities and the far-reaching results of their exercise if he should undertake to make the enjoyment of a license by a theatre or public exhibition depend upon his opinion whether the whole or part of a building, the apparatus or the performance, involved infringements on patents, copyrights, trade-marks or other similar interests."

Charles Fixler, who brought suit against Commissioner Quigley, was formerly a member of the Twentieth Century Taxicab Association, Inc., and had painted the device of the organization on his car. When he applied for a license he was behind in his dues and could not produce a membership card. Commissioner Quigley rejected his application and the suit followed.

Justice McAvoy's decision said further:

"We think there was a reasonable exercise of the power lodged in the Commissioner of Licenses whereby he may refuse to grant a license to an operator of a taxicab under circumstances similar to those exhibited here.

"To permit a person to indicate that he is transacting business under a name other than that of the owner, when, in fact, he has no claim or right to such name, would be a violation of duty on the part of a Commissioner invested with the authority to refuse a license to a vehicle found by him to be unfit for public patronage."

$1,340,000 CLAIM DISMISSED

F. C. Cocheu Was Suing on a Contract Made Twenty Years Ago.

An action by Frederick C. Cocheu against the New Jersey General Securities Company, involving a claim for $1,340,000, was ordered dismissed yesterday by Justice Mitchell May in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, on the ground of improper service of the complaint on the defendant. The Court found that service had been made at 2 Wall Street and that the company's legal office is in New Jersey.

George F. Baker, President of the First National Bank of New York, was named in the complaint as a codefendant, on the allegation that he was the President of the New Jersey General Securities Company at the time the claim originated.

Cocheu contended that he and Patrick H. Flynn, a Kings County politician, invested $2,800,000 and got control of the Jersey City Water Supply Company twenty years ago. They made a contract with Jersey City for a supply of water and for the completion of the water system for $7,590,000. In return for a loan of $3,250,000 from the New Jersey Securities Company Cocheu and Flynn pledged this contract as security and gave their note for $6,250,000.

Cocheu says he and Flynn never received any part of the contract money, but that it was collected by the securities company.

SEE SMITH ON DEFENSE DAY.

Army Officers and Governor Reach No Decision.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12.—Proposals for the observance of National Defense Day were discussed this afternoon at a conference attended by Governor Smith, General C. B. P. Summerall, Commander of the Second Corps Area of the United States Army; Edward J. Westcott, Adjutant General, and Colonel Charles E. Walsh of the Tenth Regiment.

No decision was reached as to the part New York State would play in the national observance. The conferees talked over mobilization of the Guard units in their armories and the inspection of reserve units, but reached no conclusion.

The Governor, according to his advisers, said he would have a statement concerning the observance later.

Under the order for the observance recently issued by President Coolidge, Governors of the various States received latitude to determine just what form the observance of Defense Day would take.

Governor Smith was notified recently that the Federal military authorities wished to confer with him on the subject, and the meeting conducted this afternoon was arranged.

TROOPS GUARD SCENE OF COLLIERY BATTLE

Despite Them, Nova Scotian Miners Resume Plundering of Company Stores.

HUNGRY STRIKERS SULLEN

Hoodlums Stone Soldiers' Trains—Many of Mines Likely to Be Flooded.

Special to The New York Times.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 12.—Though the troops sent from Halifax arrived here today and are quartered at the plant of the British Empire Steel Corporation, disorder broke out again tonight in the Cape Breton Colliery district. Following yesterday's bloody battle at New Waterford mines, when one of their number was killed, the miners today beat and clubbed two score corporation policemen and followed up their victory by destroying the corporation's power house, looting colliery stores and burning colliery property.

More Stores Looted.

The disorder right following the arrival of the militia this afternoon, again took the form of looting, this time in another part of the district near Glace Bay, where Stores Nos. 1, 2 and 4 of the Dominion Coal Company were plundered. The miners, who have been existing for months on short rations are in an ugly mood, and the future is fraught with danger.

As a result of the destruction of the New Waterford power house yesterday all the mines of southern Cape Breton are placed in extreme jeopardy. Practically all of them are dependent on the plant for electrical power to operate fans and pumps. As many are endangered, the chances are that some will be destroyed completely by flooding. The lodgements at No. 6 are reported full with water entering the deeps. The power plant will not operate for months as the strikers tore out switchboards and destroyed complicated machinery which cannot be replaced except from England.

Fully accoutered for battle, the squads from the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal Canadian Engineers ordered here from Halifax arrived this afternoon, detrained and marched to the plant of the Steel Corporation. As the train bearing the troops neared here the cars were stoned by a gang of hoodlums at Scotia, a suburb of Besco. Many windows were smashed, but none of the soldiers was injured.

Many of the soldiers were "buddies" of the strikers in the great war and the hope is expressed by the military that they will not be called on to go into action against the comrades with whom they fought side by side on the fields of Flanders.

Troops Accoutered for War.

Early this morning a detachment of provincial police, mounted and infantry, reached the city and went into barracks. It is understood that both squads will be quartered here until the danger is over. The troops are outfitted with all the paraphernalia of war from steel trench helmets to machine guns.

It was feared tonight that raids might be made on stores operated by merchants as during the afternoon numbers of hungry miners approached the owners of grocery and other shops with requests for supplies. These were refused. Mayor Muise late this evening swore in twenty miners from the United Mine Workers local to act as special police. They are patroling the town.

The regular police force of New Waterford is on duty, but the company squad is entirely out of business. The majority of them are still being treated at the city and other hospitals for the injuries sustained in Thursday's riots.

Additional troops are expected tomorrow.

The rosette of crepe on the door of the company house at 234 Wilson Avenue, where the body of William Davis, shot dead in Thursday's battle, lies at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Annie McPherson, the smashed fronts of the company's stores at No. 12 and No. 14 and the littered condition of the roadway before them, thin wisps of smoke and steam arising from the ruins of No. 12 wash house and the sullen groups of miners congregated at points on Plummer Avenue, bore testimony today to the disorders which have raged the past twenty-four hours. The town seethes with excitement, unparelleled except on the day of the mine disaster in 1917.

SUICIDE COMPACT ADMITTED BY YOUTH

Wellesley Survivor Tells How He and Girl Tested Pistol and Calmly Talked Before Shooting.

WELLESLEY FARMS, Mass., June 12 (AP).—Sterling Mills, eighteen-year-old high school student, admitted to the authorities tonight that he and Priscilla Amidon, his school girl sweetheart, who shot and killed herself here last Tuesday, had made a suicide compact. Mills shot himself at the same time and is now in a serious condition at the Newton Hospital.

Assistant District Attorney Dudley P. Ranney of Norfolk County, said Mills declared that he and the girl had planned for several days to shoot themselves with a revolver belonging to Priscilla's father.

The girl, who was 15 years old, was found dying in the woods with her father's revolver by her side, soon after her companion was picked up wounded at the side of Glen Road, a short distance away.

Young Mills said that he and the girl wanted to die together rather than be separated when he went to Natick to work for the Summer. He said that several hours before the shooting he met the girl on her way from school. They then went to her home to get her father's revolver, she gave it to him and he put it in his coat pocket.

Then, according to his story, they walked to his uncle's drug store in Newton Lower Falls, and from there to the scene of the shooting.

Mills said he and the girl sat side by side in the woods and talked for ten minutes before he tested the revolver by firing a shot at a tree. This done, he handed the gun to the girl. A short conversation followed, and then Miss Amidon lifted the gun with her left hand and fired a shot through her left temple. Mills said he then picked the gun up and sent a bullet through his right temple.

The prosecutor told Chief of Police Kingsbury of Wellesley that he believed Mills's story and that there would be no prosecution in the case unless there were further developments.

CITY PROGRESSIVES MEET.

Plan to Pick Candidates Who Will Please Independent Voters.

Thirty representatives of the Progressive Political League, organized in Feruary, met last night at 405 Lexington Avenue to consider plans for controlling the votes of independent Democrats and Republicans at the municipal elections this Fall. Arrangements were made for a rally soon, and the appointment of a committee of 100 men and women to conduct the Fall campaign. The league also plans to hold a convention after the Democrats and Republicans of the city hold theirs, and a slate of candidates considered suitable to independent voters will be endorsed.

Warren Shaw Fisher, former field secretary of the State Democratic Committee during Governor Smith's second race, who is President of the league, said it expected to muster 600,000 votes, enough, he said, to control the balance of power in the election. He said the league was for the 5-cent fare and endorsed the citizens' primary plan.

Stolen Certificates Held Not Negotiable; Bank Loses Suit Against J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Appellate Division yesterday handed down a decision in favor of J. P. Morgan & Co. in a suit brought by the Bank of Manhattan Company to recover $2,928 as the value of ad interim certificates for Belgian bonds which had been stolen from the original purchaser and had been delivered to the plaintiff bank. The Court ordered the complaint dismissed.

The opinion, written by Justice McAvoy, states that in June, 1920, the Morgan firm issued the ad interim certificates entitling the holders to receive $1,000 bonds of the Kingdom of Belgium as soon as the bonds were delivered to the Morgan firm. The temporary certificates contained a condition that every holder of these certificates agreed that the Morgan firm might treat the bearer as the absolute owner of the certificate, for all purposes. For this reason the Bank of Manhattan Company contended that the certificates were negotiable.

The facts, as stated by Justice McAvoy, showed that the National City Bank in June, 1920, sold three $1,000 certificates to Henry Salomons for $2,928. On the same day they were stolen from him by a burglar. Thereafter the certificates were delivered to the Bank of Manhattan Company to be sold by one Jacobs, and the plaintiff sold them for $2,988 in the open market. This money was placed to the credit of Jacobs in the bank, and he subsequently drew out the money so deposited. The Morgan firm had been notified of the robbery immediately by Salomon to explain why he was unable to deliver the certificates in order to get the bonds. The plaintiff was compelled to make good the loss on the stolen certificates to the brokers to whom they had been sold and thus became the holder of the certificates.

In deciding whether the loss should be borne by Salomons, the owner, from whom they were stolen, or the plaintiff bank, which got title to the stolen securities without knowledge that they had been stolen, Justice McAvoy said that it was necessary to determine whether or not the temporary certificates were negotiable instruments. If they were negotiable, the court said, title could be given to a person who purchased them in good faith for value, and without notice, but if not negotiable, the holder was not entitled to such rights.

Justice McAvoy referred to a previous decision in a similar case, and held that the certificates were not negotiable, and that the plaintiff acquired no title. Justice Burr dissented.

He was at one time President of the New York Produce Exchange.

WOMEN'S PRISONER HELD.

Man Seized in Apartment Accused of Many Burglaries.

Captured by several women when he was found in an apartment at 1,715 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, with a companion on Thursday night, Albert Mallow, 20, of 1,840 Park Place, Brooklyn, was held in $25,000 bail in the New Jersey Avenue Court, Brooklyn, by Magistrate Brown yesterday for further investigation. Police say that Mallow, who has been out of the Marine Corps only a few months, has admitted fifteen recent burglaries in Brownsville and East New York, and that four of the victims have identified property recovered through Mallow's confession.

When Mrs. Elizabeth Eisenberg of the Sterling Place address found two men in her apartment upon her return alone she grappled with both and screamed for help. The intruders broke away and one escaped, but the other was seized in the hallway of the first floor by a group of women living in the building who had been attracted by Mrs. Eisenberg's cries. They clung to him until detectives arrived.

CROW STARTS MANY FIRES.

Buildings Burned and Cattle Killed When It Hits High Voltage Wires.

TOWANDA, Pa., June 12 (AP).—Short circuiting of a high tension 33,000 volt power line, when a crow struck two wires at the same time with its wings, caused heavy damage at Milan, near here, today.

The flour and feed warehouse of the Farmers' Supply Company and a barn belonging to Daniel Reeves were destroyed, with a loss of approximately $9,000. Fires were started in a dozen homes when the power line burned off and fell across a telephone wire. Three cows were killed when they stuck their heads through a wire fence that had also come in contact with the high voltage line; several persons were shocked and telephone and light and power service was interrupted for hours.

When it was seen that the fires were getting beyond control of local firemen, messengers were sent to Sayre by automobile for aid. Communication by telephone was impossible.

ENGINEERS' ACCIDENTS DROP

Decrease of 67 Per Cent. in Mishaps Credited to Education.

Higher education among stationary engineers has produced in the last twenty years so high a standard of efficiency that accidents have been reduced 67 per cent., according to W. W. Downey, chief engineer of the Hotel McAlpin, who spoke yesterday at the opening session of the annual convention of the New York State Association of Stationary Engineers, held at the McAlpin. The convention will end tonight with the annual dinner.

"Men 60 years old are attending night courses at Cornell and New York Universities," said Mr. Downey, "studying advanced engineering to keep abreast of the progress made in their field. There are 40,000 licensed stationary engineers in the United States, of whom 13,000 are in New York State."

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee, whose books for the last campaign were recently reported as balanced, received $90,961 in loans and contributions from Jan. 1 to May 31, it was shown today in its report filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives.

Loans totalling $40,000 were negotiated by Jesse J. Jones, Chairman of the finances of the committee. Among those making contributions were Guy M. Byron, Houston, Texas, $1,038; Thomas B. The amounts were set forth as representing contributions the men had collected.

The outgo during the period, given as $97,594, was listed as having been for expenses of the New York and Washington offices and for publicity work.

Although the Democratic deficit has been reported taken care of, the committee reported outstanding unpaid obligations on May 31 of $226,895.

The Republican National Committee showed expenditures from March 28 to June 5 of $26,493, practically all for office expenses at Washington, Chicago and Denver. Receipts of $300 were shown, $200 from Robert Hnos of San Juan, Porto Rico, and $100 from Antonio Roig of Hermacao, Porto Rico.

Among the contributors were Mrs. E. S. Harkness, New York City, $500; Arthur C. James, New York, $500, and Joseph Leiter, $100.

WIFE BEATEN TO DEATH WITH BOARD; MAN HELD

Husband Said to Have Confessed to Killing—Neighbors Say He Came Home Intoxicated.

Mrs. Rose Carraio, 48 years old, the mother of six children, was beaten to death with a hemlock board yesterday in her home at 265 York Avenue, New Brighton, S. I. The husband was said to have confessed to the crime at Police Headquarters at St. George last night and was held on a charge of homicide.

Although the husband said that he had accidentally killed his wife in a quarrel over her continual drinking, neighbors told the police that the husband himself had come home intoxicated in the afternoon. He said that he had upbraided his wife and in a rage struck her with the board. Neighbors who heard sounds of the quarrel telephoned Police Headquarters and the Staten Island Hospital.

An ambulance doctor arrived first and found the husband seated on the stoop of the house. The doctor was told that no one in the house needed assistance and left. When detectives arrived a short time later the husband was playing in the rear yard with two young daughters and a son just home from school. The body of the woman was found in the bedroom with the board beside her.

Two children, Rose, 6 years old, and Joseph, 9, were held at the Children's Society as material witnesses. They told the police that while they had not seen their mother intoxicated yesterday, she had been in that condition a week ago.

ROBBED OF $2,200 IN HOLDUP

Bronx Auto Dealer Victim of Two Highwaymen in Yonkers.

Yonkers police are investigating a hold-up in which Philip Gerard, an automobile dealer of 1,035 Clay Avenue, the Bronx, reports he was robbed of $2,200 by two men at the point of a revolver on Central Avenue Thursday night.

Gerard was riding with his partner, Charles Kruz, of 1,892 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, when one of the hold-up men stepped out into the road and signaled to him to stop. As Gerard complied the man in the road motioned to his confederate to join him, then both highwaymen drew revolvers and took the money from Gerard's pockets.

The robbers climbed into the automobile, covered Gerard and Kruz and ordered Gerard to drive them down a side street. There they shut off the motor, took away the key and sped off on foot in the darkness.

SHEPHERD DEFENSE LOSES IN CONTEST

Court Permits State to Offer Motive Testimony Before Proving Murder Was Done.

WHITE RETURNS FOR TRIAL

Missing Prosecution Witness Walks Into Court, Saying He Was Intimidated.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 12.—For an hour today State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe resisted efforts by William D. Shepherd's attorneys to direct Shepherd's trial along certain lines. It was a contest of importance in the trial in which the death of William Nelson McClintock by typhoid fever is termed a murder and Shepherd is accused as the murderer.

The contention of Mr. Stewart and Mr. O'Brien of the defense was that the State be required to prove first that a murder was committed. They wanted Judge Thomas J. Lynch to direct the State to call Charles C. Faiman, the confessed procurer of germs for Shepherd, as a witness immediately, preceding all others. Judge Lynch denied the motion after State's Attorney Crowe had intimated that he considered the subject of such importance he might defy the Judge if the ruling were against him.

First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Moran, in arguing against the motion, said it was without precedent in Illinois.

"No Illinois lawyer ever had the gall to try it before," he declared.

Sensation in White's Return.

The outstanding points in the trial today were:

1. The return of Robert White, important State witness, who disappeared after leaving a letter saying he had been threatened. He had been reported in Pittsburgh, but he walked into court this morning and said he had been back a week and was ready to testify for the State.

2. Estelle Gehling, former sweetheart of Shepherd, was a witness, and one of Shepherd's love letters to "Precious Sunshine" was introduced, of which only a portion will be read later to the jury.

3. Dr. Rufus B. Stolp, who attended young McClintock in his last illness, testified that the youth said he had eaten oysters a short time before. This was regarded as a big point for the defense, as they claim the disease was contracted accidentally through infected oysters and not through germs administered by Shepherd. In other ways Dr. Stolp gave testimony regarded as helping the prosecution.

4. Dr. James B. Herrick, a specialist of high standing in the medical profession, said he had been called to McClintock's bedside. This is called another defense point, on the ground that if Shepherd gave McClintock typhoid fever, why call the best physician to cure him?

5. Alexander F. Reichmann, an attorney, who had been co-guardian of young McClintock during his minority, was questioned closely by the defense attorneys today.

Mrs. McClintock's Friend on Stand.

Mrs. W. H. Gransden of Tulsa, Okla., who was called as a witness today, testified that she was the "dearest friend" of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, and that the Shepherds invited themselves to become Mrs. McClintock's guests. She said Shepherd spoke about "a slice of the McClintock fortune."

That was regarded as "motive" testimony, which Mr. Stewart and Mr. O'Brien did not want to go before the jury until after Faiman had testified. They raised the question when Mrs. Gransden walked to the witness stand.

Mr. Crowe's plan in presenting the case is to offer all the circumstantial evidence he has against Shepherd and later to produce Faiman as a sort of climax. He said he wanted to first show that Shepherd had designs on the $1,000,000 estate of the McClintock youth, then to show that the boy made a will leaving it to Shepherd, next to introduce the intended marriage of the boy and finally to prove the "corpus delecti" through Faiman.

The attorneys for Shepherd called this unfair. They said that by the time Faiman was called the jury would be thoroughly prejudiced against Shepherd and ready to believe whatever Faiman should say. They declare they can discredit Faiman's testimony making himself out the accomplice of Shepherd in the murder and that was why they wanted him on the stand first.

Judge Lynch listened to everything the opposing lawyers had to say, then he terminated the controversy and the State had won another battle. Mrs. Gransden was permitted to testify.

Mr. O'Brien cross-examined her. When he asked if she had loved Mrs. McClintock she said, "Yes, but not her money." Mr. O'Brien asked if she had not expected to have been named guardian of Billy, instead of Mrs. Shepherd, and she said she had. She declared she had no resentment against Mrs. Shepherd.

Show Shepherd's Bank Account.

Then William Goyett testified. He had been a friend of Mrs. McClintock. The gist of his testimony was that Shepherd told him Mr. Reichmann, a lawyer, was cheating Mrs. McClintock. On cross-examination he admitted he did not know whether or not Shepherd was then telling the truth. As he left the witness stand Goyett shook hands with Shepherd.

Estelle Gehling came next as a witness. She said nothing about her love affair with Shepherd and the defense lawyers did not ask her a question.

Frank T. Ereldigan, a bacteriologist, was called. He said he lived in Battle Creek, Mich., but formerly was employed in a laboratory here. Shepherd was a frequent visitor there, he testified, and studied germs under a microscope.

Then came L. H. Tolzien, cashier of the Union Bank, who brought with him the records of Shepherd's account. He read the monthly balances, from January, 1921, to January, 1925. There were many month-ends when Shepherd had a dollar or less to his credit. Occasionally he would have a sizable amount, the highest being $5,284.

During the months preceding young McClintock's death the bank account was dwindling, the records showed. This was Prosecutor Crowe's purpose in introducing it. He said the income tax paid by Shepherd would be the first subject of testimony tomorrow, Court having adjourned at the conclusion of Tolzien's testimony.

State's Attorney Crowe then said he would not question White, the prodigal witness, until tomorrow. He intimated, however, that White would be taken before the Grand Jury to tell of his experiences after he had testified for the State.

Shepherd had denied ever having met Faiman, who was head of the National University of Sciences, or John P. Marchand, his solicitor. White had been a student and employe at the Faiman institution and he gave sworn testimony that he saw Shepherd there and had talked with him. Then he disappeared. A letter from him contained the information that he had been threatened. Messrs. Stewart and O'Brien claimed to have had been coerced by the State into identifying Shepherd. Today he said his original story was correct, and that his letter saying he had been threatened also was true.

Grand Jury to Hear White Again.

Grand Jury action, either Saturday or Monday, is to follow a sensational story of intimidation told today by White after he had surrendered voluntarily to the State's Attorney.

White created a sensation when he walked into the court room and reported to Assistant State's Attorney Gorman.

"I'm White—Robert White," he said. "I'm back to tell what I know."

The witness was accompanied by his wife and two children, whom he took with him when he fled from Chicago. Mr. Gorman ordered him taken into custody by Sergeant Loftus, and he was later taken to Assistant State's Attorney Savage for questioning.

"I'm going through with this," White declared to Mr. Savage. "I'll tell it all and there's a whole lot more to it than you think."

The witness denied a story to the effect that he had been in Pittsburgh recently. From the information gathered by the police it appeared that some one tried to represent himself to the authorities there and to the defense here as White.

White said, according to Mr. Savage, that he had been forced to leave the city under threats. Following his disclosures Mr. Crowe sent out detectives to make several arrests in connection with the case. The White family has been in Chicago a week, according to the story.

Another important witness who had been believed to be missing was located today in Indianapolis. He is Jerome Matillo, the contractor, whom Shepherd took to Bay View, Texas, to build the cottage for Mrs. McClintock.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert B. McMillan wired this morning that he had located Matillo and that he would have him in Judge Lynch's Court tomorrow morning.

Impersonated White.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 12 (AP).—Maintaining for several hours that he was Robert White, missing witness in the Shepherd case at Chicago, Frank Laros told Inspector of Detectives John Barry this afternoon that he had lied about it. Laros, held on forgery and false pretense charges, maintained that he was White until he was confronted with news from Chicago to the effect that White had appeared in court there today.

Laros said, however, that he was associated with White while the latter was in Pittsburgh early in June. He said he sent a number of telegrams and made several telephone calls to Chicago for White.

When asked by Inspector Barry why he had claimed to be White, Laros said "these newspaper men were insisting that I was White, and I thought I had better say I was because I feared a beating."

The will of Miss Norah Bogert, daughter of the late Colonel Horatio Bogert of the 267th Regiment, N. Y. S. M., who lived in Hackensack, N. J., for many years, and who died on May 9, leaves legacies to relatives and friends, an antique silver set and some of her father's military effects to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It leaves her entire residuary estate to a home for disabled soldiers. The value of the estate is said to be more than $25,000. The will was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday.

In disposing of the residuary estate the will reads, "It is instructed to turn over the said residue to a home (not hospital) which in their [the executors'] judgment, is most deserving, for the purpose of aiding American soldiers and sailors disabled in the European war."

HYLAN GIVES MEDAL TO MARBLES CHAMPION

Joseph Parks, 12, Wins Final Contest and Prize Awarded by The World.

Joseph Parks, aged 12, of 220 West Sixtieth Street, won the marbles championship for 1925, and the gold medal awarded by The World, at the final marble-shooting contest yesterday afternoon at the foot of the steps leading to City Hall.

A large gallery of spectators witnessed the finals of the tournament, which has been conducted for six weeks in the five boroughs by the Recreation Bureau of Parks Department.

Ten boys, the best two players from each of the five boroughs, participated in the elimination games played before the finals.

Mayor Hylan presented the medal to young Parks, and posed with him for the press photographers atop the mound built especially for the occasion, in the act of shooting a marble.

The winner is the son of W. S. Parks, a foreman in the stock yards at Tenth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. He has been playing marbles three years.

Arthur Schneller, 11, of Mariners Harbor, S. I., won second place in the finals, and Frank Rotundo, 15, of Brooklyn, third place.

Commissioner of Docks Michael Cosgrove and William W. Cohen were referees.

FAIR PLAY CLUB RAIDED.

Five Women, Two Men and Collection of Beverages Taken.

Detectives Gersten, McMahon and Fennetti strolled into the Fair Play Club, in West Fifty-second Street near Fifth Avenue, very early yesterday. They found the atmosphere of the after-theatre club congenial, but arrested five women and two men after spending $14 for what they considered intoxicating beverages.

The club was crowded when the Special Service Division men pinned on their shiny shields and declared everybody under arrest. Some measure of composure returned to the customers, however, when the detectives decided to take only seven of them to the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

The women were charged with vagrancy in Women's Court and their cases were put over until Tuesday. The men were arraigned before Magistrate F. X. McQuade in West Side Court and held in $500 for examination on Monday on disorderly conduct charges. When the prisoners rode in the "wagon" to the station a quantity of what police experts described as champagne, gin and whisky went along.

SHAM AIR BATTLE TONIGHT.

Rival Squadrons Will Manoeuvre Over Times Square District.

Two squadrons of airplanes will engage tonight in a sham battle over New York City as a preliminary to the New York air meet to be held next Saturday at Miller Field, Staten Island, by the Twenty-seventh Division Air Service, New York National Guard.

The defense squadron is expected to appear over the Times Square district at about 6:10 P. M., and the attacking force will make its appearance a few minutes later. Both squadrons will assume battle formation and engage in a realistic demonstration of war time tactics. They will dive, loop, roll and "jockey" for position as in actual combat as one group of planes endeavors to prevent the other from "destroying" the city.

MATCH FACTORY FIRE TRAPS 20; BURNS 12

FLAMES SPREAD RAPIDLY

Neighbors and Police Aid Victims Until the Arrival of Ambulance Surgeons.

NINE ARE SENT TO HOSPITAL

Three Others Are Treated and Sent Home—One-Story Building Is Destroyed.

Twenty employes of the King Book Match Company were trapped in a one-story building at 257 Driggs Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon when fire started and swept rapidly through the place, fed by the paper, wood and sulphur used in the manufacture of the matches.

Twelve persons were burned, nine of them seriously before they could make their escape from the burning building. All the nine seriously injured live in Brooklyn. They were taken to the Greenpoint Hospital. They were:

KELIEW, BOWEH, 30 years old, 3,623 Fifteenth Avenue.

KITAI, SYLVIA, 21 years old, 3,653 Fifteenth Avenue.

LEVINE, MINNIE, 19 years old, 454 Hegeman Avenue.

LEVINE, SYLVIA, 21 years old, 454 Hegeman Avenue.

NOREYKO, ANNIE, 21 years old, 10 Broome Street.

NOREYKO, MILDRED, 23 years old, 10 Broome Street.

SOLER, JAMES, 22 years old, 136 Thirty-third Street.

WAX, TILLIE, 21 years old, 84 Graham Avenue.

WITHERACOSKY, MEYER, 45 years old, 609 Seymour Street.

The others injured, who were attended by ambulance surgeons and then taken to their homes, were:

GUMPEL, ELIZABETH, 8,728 184th Street, Jamaica.

LIEBERMAN, ISRAEL, 249 Hinsdale Street, Brooklyn.

SOEN, FRITZ, 172 Java Street, Brooklyn.

The factory is owned by I. Gleaberman of 257 Driggs Avenue, Brooklyn, and occupies a building that was formerly used as a neighborhood motion-picture theatre. Work had just been resumed after the lunch hour when the fire started in one end of the building. The flames spread with amazing rapidity and before the men and women could get away from their worktables their clothing caught fire. Panic-stricken women rushed to the exits and then to the streets, their clothing ablaze.

The place was well equipped with emergency fire exits and these were thrown open. This caused a strong draught to sweep through the place, with the result that the fire spread all the more rapidly. The exits, however, provided an avenue of escape for the workpeople.

Policeman Hurley of the Greenpoint Station saw the flames and turned in an alarm. With the assistance of persons living in the neighborhood who rushed to the place, the flames on the clothing of the workers were beaten out.

Calls for ambulances were sent to the Bushwick, Greenpoint and St. Catharine's Hospitals. Many of the injured were unconscious from burns and were laid on the sidewalk, where they received first-aid treatment from the ambulance surgeons and then were hurried to the hospital.

Meanwhile the fire had demolished the interior of the factory. The loss was placed at $5,000.

It is believed the fire started from spontaneous combustion among the highly inflammable material used in manufacturing matches.

AWARDS GUFFEY $348,695.

Jury in Oil Suit Decides Against Gulf Production Company.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—A jury in the United States District Court this afternoon returned a verdict in favor of Colonel James M. Guffey for $348,695 and against the Gulf Production Company, a subsidiary of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

Colonel Guffey had sued for $180,000, with interest, from June, 1903, alleging that the money was due him from a transaction in selling his interest in the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company to the defendant company.

This is the case in which the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, appeared on Wednesday as a witness for the defense.

The plaintiff contended that the transaction between the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company and the purchasers did not include a large tract of land in Texas known as the Page tract, which was among other large acreages in oil lands held by Colonel Guffey at the time he sold his interest in the company bearing his name.

The defense sought to show that the Page property was included in the transaction and had been paid for.

A Fire Truck Crashes Head-on Into a Street Car.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, yesterday when a hose truck from Engine Company 60 collided head-on with an eastbound one-man trolley car on 133d Street, between Brown Place and St. Ann's Avenue.

Michael Hanley, operator of the car, saw the truck approaching and jumped inside to warn Mamie Wentling, 38, of 544 East 136th Street, and Rosalie Berwin of 476 West 165th Street, his only passengers, to hold fast. The collision threw all to the floor and rained shattered glass on them. Miss Wentling was sent to Lincoln Hospital with fractures of the ribs and internal injuries. The two others were treated for abrasions and cuts and were sent home.

Neither the police nor the firemen would disclose the name of the truck's driver, but it was intimated that the steering gear of the machine was out of order. The front of the street car was shattered.

TAX RULING AFFECTS MUCH REALTY HERE

Great Interest Aroused by Washington Decision on Loss Due to Neighborhood Changes.

NOT BASED ON LAND VALUE

Deductions on Income May Be Made Even if Ground Appreciates, Says an Attorney.

Real estate owners here were interested yesterday in a decision handed down on Thursday by the United States Board of Tax Appeals in Washington to the effect that the obcolescence of buildings, due to changes in business centres in American communities, constitute a legal deduction from the gross income of the property owners in the matter of income tax paying. Although many property owners have sought such deduction in the past, it has never been allowed because of the difficulty to prove such obcolescence of depreciation on buildings due to the changing character of neighborhoods.

According to tax experts here, the decision is far-reaching in that it shows that the Tax Appeals Board recognizes the value of location to business or industry as an economical factor along with general depreciation such as wear, tear and exhaustion of property. In its decision the board disposed of ten appeals simultaneously, reversed the findings of the Internal Revenue Bureau in certain particulars and ordered a recalculation of the taxes involved on the basis of its rulings as applied to the case under review, which concerned certain property in Chicago.

As a result of the decision it is expected that many property owners in the city whose property has depreciated because of swift neighborhood changes will avail themselves of the privilege of getting a new calculation on the taxes they have been paying and that there will be a consequent loss to the Government in income tax returns. They declared that the decision probably would have a greater application to New York City than to any other community because of the radical changes going on in many localities in the city.

Details of the Case.

Mark Eisner, of the law firm of Olvany, Eisner & Donnelly, former Collector of Internal Revenue and now specialist in taxation, took special interest in the decision of the Appeals Board and got in touch with Washington over the telephone to learn more details regarding it. Mr. Eisner has a number of cases pending before the board and makes weekly trips to Washington to argue them. He said that the decision of the board in this particular case, while not revolutionary was of decided importance to real estate owners here.

"This decision," said Mr. Eisner, "was handed down in connection with the case of property, part of which had been acquired for retail store purposes and the balance for office use. Due to a change in the character of the locality the retail stores moved out and it was necessary to convert that part of the premises theretofore occupied by them into lofts.

"Expert testimony was adduced establishing that because of the changed conditions the probable economic use of the buildings would be thirty-three and one-third years, which would entitle the owners thereof to a deduction by way of exhaustion, wear and tear and also obsolescence, of 3 per cent., which is more than is usually allowed by the Internal Revenue Bureau on buildings other than wood, or on old buildings recently acquired. In other words, the obsolescence deduction recognizes an accelerated loss of value anticipating that due merely to wear and tear.

"There never was any real doubt that an allowance for the economic exhaustion of a building would be allowed if provable, but the method of proving the same has almost invariably been unsatisfactory to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and disallowed by him. Before the Board of Tax Appeals, however, the testimony of an expert as to the amount of loss raises an issue which it is incumbent upon the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to disprove by other competent evidence; and if no experts are placed upon the stand to testify in behalf of the Commissioner it is difficult to see how in a proper case the Board of Tax Appeals can refuse to render its decision in accordance with the only testimony before it.

Many Similar Cases Here.

"Conditions such as those which prevail in the Chicago case just decided exist in New York City, and possibly to a more striking degree. Neighborhoods change and the resultant effect is often an accelerated depreciation of the value of buildings. It is reasonable to suppose that a deduction for obsolescence due to change in character would be permitted even where the land values have increased, because the deduction for depreciation and obsolescence, being based only upon the cost of the building and having no relation to the cost of the land, if the building becomes of less value due to the changes referred to, the deduction based upon the building will be greater even though the value of the land has enhanced greatly.

"It is possible that a great many cases involving obsolescence deductions will now be decided in favor of the taxpayer, especially if they come before the Board of Tax Appeals and competent legal proof of the loss due to obsolescence is presented."

Experts also are awaiting with interest the coming decision by the board in relation to obsolescence of good-will. These cases, and there are a number before the board, apply to breweries, distilleries, hotels, &c., where spirituous liquors were made or sold. The first case to be brought before the board was that of the Standard Brewing Company of Scranton, Pa. It alleged a loss of good-will when its plant was shutdown due to the Volstead act and asked for a consequent deduction in its tax return from March 1, 1913, when the income tax law went into effect, to Jan. 1, 1919, when the Volstead act was applied. It is said that these cases involving obsolescence of good-will will amount to several millions of dollars. A decision in the Standard Brewing Company's case is expected soon.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Pressure is high over the Atlantic States and eastward over the ocean beyond Bermuda and it is relatively high off the North Pacific Coast, while low pressure prevails over practically all other regions. The principal disturbance is centred over Manitoba and another disturbance is over the Southern Rocky Mountain region and Western Texas. This pressure distribution has been attended by showers within the last twenty-four hours in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, the Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys, the upper lake region, the Plains States, Northeastern Colorado and at scattered points in the Northern Rocky Mountain region and the North Pacific States. Galveston, Texas, reports a twelvehour rainfall of 2.36 inches and Mobile, Ala., 3.18 inches. The temperature has risen in the Rocky Mountains and plateau regions, the Dakotas, Minnesota and lake region, the Ohio Valley and in the interior of the Atlantic States, and it has fallen in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Showers are indicated for practically all sections east of the Mississippi River within the next forty-eight hours. The weather will remain generally fair Saturday, however, in the Middle and North Atlantic States, the temperature will continue to rise Saturday in the Atlantic States from Virginia northward, and somewhat lower temperature is probable in the lake region and the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys Saturday and Sunday.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Stronger, Many Sharp Advances in Speculative Shares —Francs Decline Again.

Three markets attracted interest yesterday—the Stock Exchange, in which a number of sharp advances occurred in the more speculative shares; the grain market, in which wheat prices continued the decline that began after the unfavorable Government crop report, and foreign exchange, in which the franc's reaction from the earlier recovery of the week was resumed. The stock market again appeared to be dominated by the assurance of easy money which was inferred from the Treasury's new financing on the basis of 3 per cent. for a twelve-month loan. Beginning with the "oil shares," in which the previous day's demonstration of rising prices had been staged, the bidding-up process presently shifted, after the habit of the recent market, to other groups which moved up while shares of the oil companies were losing part of their own advance.

A few railway shares rose a point or so, and some of the stocks which this year's earlier operations have made familiar for their rapid upward and downward movements, under the auspices of the professional "pools" behind them, went 2 to 6 points higher. On the whole, these were the stocks which dominated a market which, except for reflecting the spirit of relief over easy-money prospects, reflected nothing tangible. The quick taking of the new $50,000,000 Belgian 7 per cent. loan, and the advance of their price on the Stock Exchange "when issued" to a fractionally higher figure than the issue price, gave additional reflection to the financial community's ideas of the season's money rates; so did the rise of several United States bonds to the high figure of the year, or higher.

This money market outlook is in some regards the most unexpected development of the period. It has occurred in the face of almost unprecedentedly large subscription to new securities, of a reasonably heavy export of gold in the past few months, and of a recurrent tendency to use available credit in speculation. All of these seemingly offsetting influences are, however, themselves the effect of the low money rates and abundant credit; the cause is probably to be found in the almost total absence of speculative use of credit in the field of trade and industry. A season in which all trade agencies report "absence of burdensome inventories," "buying by merchants only for immediate needs," and exceptionally rapid distribution of goods from original producer to ultimate consumer, is usually, other things being equal, a season of low money rates.

Before the war, easy money at New York was expected to be accompanied by rise in the foreign exchanges. Prewar rules apply only spasmodically to that market under present conditions, and exchange rates on the European markets still seem to hold only with difficulty. Yesterday sterling sold at a lower price than it has touched in nearly three weeks, and even Belgian exchange, in face of the loan subscription, went to the lowest rate of the week. Presumably, however, the Brussels rate merely followed the day's decline in francs, which, at 4.82½ cents, had lost most of the week's earlier advance, comparing with 4.96 on Tuesday. It is perfectly evident that French exchange is watching, not the "New York credit" but the events at Paris. In so far as the sales of francs are of purely commercial origin, "protective purchases" by the French Government would merely serve to provide a better market for the Paris seller.

The wheat market did not change its attitude. At one time yesterday, the price stood more than 8 cents a bushel below Tuesday's closing price, just before the Government crop estimate was published. With its whimsical way of describing things, the grain market observed that cables "continued discouraging"—meaning that they indicated a larger world's crop than speculators for the rise in wheat found convenient. Yet the actual price still remains nearly 50 per cent. above the price of last June; a comparison which need not be discouraging to the farmer.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1925.

Stock Exchange call loans again loaned at 3¾ per cent., as on Thursday. Demand was not very great, neither was the supply, which was just about enough to go around, as nothing was left unloaned at the close. Time money market was dull and unchanged at 3¾@4 per cent. for all maturities. A little new money at 3¾ per cent. and some renewals at 4 per cent. formed the activity of the day. Call loans against acceptances dropped ¼, to 3¼ per cent., but bank bills and merchants' notes discounted without variation.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

General Recovery in Stock Market Prices; Trading More Active.

The course of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday was again upward, with trading more active. The oil shares continued most of the time the centre of speculative interest, and the upward rise in these stocks imparted strength in other sections of the list. The rise among the industrial and railroad shares, however, was stimulated by the covering of short commitments which were put out a short time ago when the general market gave signs of "running stale." Although gains of 1 to 3 points were numerous, the sharp advances were generally confined to the oils and specialties. Trading in the oil shares made up the greater part of the day's business, although the motor and rubber stocks experienced some of the activity which developed a short time ago. There was little in the day's developments to affect stock market sentiment, and where unfavorable trends were noticeable these were virtually ignored as stock market factors. The decline in grain prices, which was severe for a while, was offset by continued ease in the money market. Railroad shares as a group were higher and a few substantial gains were made.

Identifying the Buyers.

Whenever the market moves as briskly as it has done during the last few days Wall Street examines closely all the signs, portents and indicators in an endeavor to identify the buying and to ascertain whether it is what the Street calls "good buying"; that is, buying which will not be turned into a sale within the next few days. The name of one insurance company has cropped out as a big buyer of the gilt-edged descriptions of the last few days. Yesterday officials of one or two of the big oil companies were asserted to be buyers of the stocks of not only their own companies but of others engaged in the same industry. The names of William C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, and George J. Whalen were most frequently gossiped about in Wall Street yesterday as the largest individual operators in the market at the present, each with his own hand-picked stocks.

The Pools "Get Bullish."

About the most bullish persons in Wall Street when things are going well are the pool managers, and it is not disclosing a secret to say that most of them talk in a particularly bullish fashion about their own stocks. There has been—that is to say, if Wall Street gossip is to be believed—a readjustment of the "objective points" for many stocks. Former objectives of 25 have been moved up to 50. The 75 objectives have been moved up to par, and the number of stocks for which "200 is now talked" is legion. This is the kind of inside information to which Wall Street is always ready to lend its ear.

Movement of the Oil Shares.

While fundamental conditions alone, according to opinion prevalent in Wall Street, were sufficiently sound to warrant the recent movement in the petroleum stocks, the rise in these issues gained impetus yesterday as a result of the may reports industriously circulated relating to further favorable developments ahead of this industry. Advices were received yesterday that the Eastern fields had been virtually cleared of available stocks of both crude and refined oils and that an advance in Pennsylvania crude prices might be expected almost any day. It was also predicted that an advance in the mid-continent territory, to be followed by higher prices in the Wyoming and Texas districts, could not be much longer delayed in view of the statistical position of the industry in these sections. In addition to the talk of higher oil prices, many reports were circulated of pending increases in dividend payments. As a result, oils gained from 1 to 2 points or more, while Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and Refining, Prairie Pipe Line, Salt Creek Producers and Mountain Producers sold up to the highest prices recorded.

Switch to Sterling Securities.

In connection with the movement of funds from New York to London, attracted by the higher interest returns available in the English capital, bankers reported yesterday that considerable amounts of American money were finding their way into the sterling securities of some of the foreign countries whose credit standing is good. It is pointed out, for instance, that Brazilian sterling bonds are selling on a basis equal to $450 for a £200 4 per cent. bond, making a yield better than 9 per cent., and several other issues are available in London yielding something like the same return on securities on which the interest has always been paid. With domestic and some foreign issues in the New York market driven to high levels by the broad demand and the difficulty experienced in placing investment funds, these "switching operations" are reported to be increasing.

St. Paul Deposits.

The reorganization managers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul do not appear to regard the opposition to their plan as particularly serious, and expect its acceptance by the stockholders unless further objection develops. One of the bankers scouted the idea yesterday that the commissions involved were exorbitant and presented a list of former railroad reorganizations in each one of which the financial physicians' compensation was in excess of that allowed by the St. Paul plan. The deposit of securities, it was remarked, is beyond even optimistic estimates. The small stockholders were said to have found the terms of assessment comparatively easy to meet and were depositing their holdings rapidly.

Eliminating Fixed Charges.

One of the happy developments of the present era of easy money is that it has permitted many corporations to get rid of a large amount of their fixed charges. Of the listings of additional common stock on the Stock Exchange this week, in at least three cases it was stated by the corporation that the additional stock was for the purpose of providing funds to pay off either preferred stock or bonds and retire them. It is no secret in the financial district that many other corporations have plans in mind along the same line and that there probably will be as many issues of bonds and preferred stocks called in the last half of the year, given a continuation of easy money, as there were in the first half. In many cases it has been possible for the corporations to eliminate the entire amount of fixed charges so that there is nothing whatever ahead of the common stocks.

The Nickel Plate Decision.

Many railroad men have given up hopes of an easy ratification of the Nickel Plate unification plan by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Conservative opinion at the moment seems to place the first quarter of 1926 as the probable time of announcement of the decision. If the commission were able to devote its entire time to the question, it was pointed out yesterday, some action might be expected within the next few weeks, but so many other vital matters are pending a hearing that all the time cannot be given to the Van Sweringen proposal. The sessions will be resumed next Wednesday in Washington, but the testimony during the remainder of the week, according to current expectations, will be of a routine character and O. P. Van Sweringen will not take the stand again until week after next. About that time the commission will be required to divide its attention between the Nickel Plate and the Harriman application for permission to build a new railroad, and a few days later to conducting an investigation of the St. Paul receivership.

FOREIGN OFFERINGS FEATURE NEW BONDS

They Comprise $55,000,000 of This Week's Total of $86,043,000.

$12,000,000 OF INDUSTRIALS

State and Municipal Issues Aggregate $10,343,000 and Public Utilities $8,700,000.

New bond offerings this week, which totaled $86,043,000, were again dominated by foreign issues, interest centering in the $50,000,000 Belgian loan marketed through J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Company. There were decreases in the total of most of the classifications this week, and the aggregate offerings compared with $134,086,000 of new offerings last week. The offerings by groups of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Industrial	12,000,000	6,000,000
State and municipal	10,343,000	12,911,000
Public utility	8,700,000	33,400,000
Farm loan	....	1,600,000

The increase in industrial offerings was due to the flotation by Dillon, Read & Co. of an issue of Schulte Real Estate Company notes. Public utility offerings were smaller in volume than last week, but they again covered a wide field, as did the State and municipal issues.

A wide range of offerings is expected next week. An issue of $7,500,000 Missouri road bonds, awarded to a syndicate headed by George H. Burr & Co., is expected to be offered to the public early in the week, and several other State and municipal issues are on the way. Among the issues to be awarded next week are a $10,000,000 Philadelphia 4 per cent. issue on Friday, $3,000,000 Kansas City, Mo., bonds, a $2,500,000 Providence, R. I., issue and $1,533,000 of Syracuse, N. Y., bonds.

S. W. Straus & Co. offer an issue of $7,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. serial-coupon gold bonds of the W. A. R. Realty Corporation, headed by W. R. Hearst and Arthur Brisbane, secured by land and five buildings in the Fifty-seventh Street district, New York City. The properties are valued at more than $10,000,000. This is the largest first mortgage bond issue offered on New York real estate this year.

Robert Garrett & Sons, Baltimore, Spencer Trask & Co.; Marshall Field, Glore, Ward & Co. and the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago will soon offer $5,000,000 Commercial Credit Company of Baltimore ten-year 5½ per cent. collateral trust sinking fund gold notes, series A, due 1935.

The Central Illinois Public Service Company, the largest of the Middle West Public Utilities Company's operating companies, has sold a new issue of $4,000,000 first mortgage twenty-five-year 5½ per cent. gold bonds, series D, to Halsey, Stuart & Co., and the bonds will soon be offered to the public.

Dillon, Read & Co. announce that the issue of $5,000,000 New Orleans Public Service, Inc., first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, series B, offered yesterday, has been sold and the subscription books closed.

PITTSBURGH STEEL CO. PLANS A BIG MERGER

Will Issue $20,000,000 New Stock and $2,500,000 Notes to Acquire a Tube Concern.

The Pittsburgh Steel Company notified its stockholders yesterday that a special meeting would be held Aug. 20, to approve an increase of $20,000,000 in the stock and an issue of $2,500,000 unsecured short term notes to finance the acquisition of the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company. Rumors of a merger of the two companies have been current for some time, but there was no confirmation until yesterday.

The new stock will consist of 200,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $100 per share. Proceeds of all of the new notes to be issued and part of the new stock will be used in the purchase of the capital stock of the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company. The balance of the new common stock not used in the transaction will remain unissued.

The Pittsburgh Steel Products Company is a Pennsylvania corporation with a capitalization of $6,000,000. It has plants in Allenport and Monessen, Pa., and is one of the largest manufacturers of seamless tubes in this country. The Pittsburgh Steel Company now has outstanding $17,500,000 common stock and $10,500,000 preferred. The company has no bonded indebtedness.

"Road sales showed a marked increase over the corresponding period last year.

"There were more customers in the market than during the same period in 1924.

"Collections were approximately the same as a year ago for the corresponding week.

"A record volume of retail distribution during the recent hot weather period is reported by merchants everywhere."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Support for French Franc Here Makes Up for Reaction Abroad —Sterling Firm.

Although the French franc lost ground yesterday, this was really at the instance of a reaction abroad which was communicated here in the shape of a lower start, at 4.82¾ cents for checks, but support was soon apparent in this market and the price rose sharply to 4.86½ cents, or within a point of Thursday's final. The market was particularly strong in the forenoon, the activity dropping with the appearance of strong bidding. The success which attended the sale of the Belgian bonds was without effect on the exchange, Brussels checks yielding 2¼ points to 4.75¾ cents. Sterling was steady and practically unchanged at $4.85⅝.

Business in other Continentals was quiet and rates only slightly changed from Thursday. There was a good demand for Yugoslavian dinars which pushed them to a new high for the year at 1.73 cents, an overnight advance of 2 points. The country is in excellent financial shape, bankers said, with exports running at a heavy rate. Foreign capital is expected to go into the country to assist in the extensive developments planned.

Renewed purchases of Japanese yen accounted for a gain of ¼ cent, to 40.50 cents, but other Easterns and South Americans were firm.

BANK STOCKS RISE ON STRONG DEMAND

First National in the Lead as a Result of Its 25 Per Cent. Dividend.

DUE TO PROSPERITY TALK

Business Improvement Is Expected to Be Reflected in Earnings of Banks.

Led by First National Bank shares, which continue in demand because of this week's declaration of 25 per cent. dividend for the last quarter, bank stocks scored general advances yesterday in the unlisted market. First National was quoted at $2,775 bid, $2,850 asked, an advance of $75 in the bid price over Thursday and within $125 of the highest point ever reached by this stock. There were advances of $10 and more in the stocks of several other banks.

Security houses reported that a strong demand for high class bank stocks had been developing throughout the country for the last week or so, and that orders were coming in from many sections. The demand was believed to reflect a general opinion that a season of prosperity was on the way in this country and that bank earnings, now large, were bound to increase. While the First National's dividend has been the most notable one recently, there have been a number of other liberal disbursements to bank stockholders, and more are expected.

The buying of bank stock is also associated in Wall Street with reports that recapitalizations, possibly involving new stock distributions, are being arranged by several big banks and there are reports of several mergers now in the tentative stages.

The bank stock buying is reported to be of a substantial character. Many transactions have been in lots of fifty shares, which is considered unusually large in this field, as the prices are high and sales are made outright rather than on margin. Market observers point out that until recently bank stocks had been neglected while advances were being scored in other classes of shares.

National City Bank stock jumped $20 yesterday, being quoted at $487 bid, $492 asked, against $467 bid, $492 asked on Thursday. Mechanics and Metals Bank stock was quoted at $425 bid, $435 asked, an advance of $10 for the day in the bid price. Chase National Bank stock was $5 higher, being quoted at $450 bid, $455 asked. Equitable Trust stock, $5 higher at $277 bid, was another stock in demand, as was that of the Guaranty Trust Company, which advanced $6, being quoted at $334 bid, $339 asked.

The big banks have been steadily expanding their operations of late, and several have increased the number of their uptown branches. The National City also has just opened a new branch at Osaka, Japan, making thirty-two foreign branches operated by this bank's subsidiary, the International Banking Corporation.

MONEY STOCK REDUCED $32,028,739 DURING MAY

Silver dollars	increased	1,278,000

Substantial increases in holdings of other bonds, stocks and securities reported by banks in the New York and Chicago districts were more than offset by reductions of $9,000,000 and $6,000,000, respectively, for the St. Louis and Cleveland districts.

Net demand deposits increased in all districts except Atlanta, St. Louis and San Francisco, the largest increases being reported by banks in the following districts: New York, $77,000,000; Chicago, $34,000,000, and Cleveland, $11,000,000. The only important changes in time deposits during the week comprise a reduction of $15,000,000 in the New York district and an increase of $7,000,000 in the Philadelphia district.

FOR MORE GRAIN IN ITALY.

Mussolini Will Direct Campaign for Increased Acreage.

ROME, June 12 (AP).—Increase of Italy's grain output is the latest task undertaken by Premier Mussolini. This is one of Italy's major problems, and if it could be solved the necessity for importing grain would be eliminated and one of the principal causes of the low value of the lira would be removed, declared the Fascist leader today.

Mussolini received a group of agriculturists, who asked that provisions be made to increase Italian harvests. The Premier said he would assume personal control as soon as possible of the "grain battle," which, he said, it was necessary to win in order to contribute to the solution of the nation's monetary problem.

It is realized that the extensive use of fertilizers will be necessary to increase Italy's grain yield.

In order to achieve results Premier Mussolini says the campaign for more grain must be organized and carried out on national lines and must assume as extensive proportions as the campaigns that were waged for wartime loans.

American Real Estate Co. Receivers to Pay 5 Per Cent. to Stockholders.

Walter C. Noyes and Alfred E. Marling, receivers for the American Real Estate Company, have been authorized by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York to pay a fourth dividend of 5 per cent. of the amount of the claims filed and approved in the suit covering the bonds of this company.

As a result the receivers, in a notice to bondholders, request them to send their bonds to the receivers at 141 Broadway, as "the order authorizing such payment directs that the fact of such payment be stamped at the time of payment upon the bonds. If such bonds are found in order they will be returned with the notation of the dividend payment thereon, together with the check covering the dividend."

The new corporation will have an authorized capital of 1,000,000 shares of stock without par value.

Under the terms of consolidation the 350,000 shares of the capital stock of the Shattuck Arizona Company, and the 450,000 shares of the Denn-Arizona Company, will be exchanged on a share for share basis for the no par value stock of the new consolidated company. Application will be made to list the stock of the new company on the New York Stock Exchange.

$50,000,000 BONDS OF BELGIUM SOLD

NEW FRENCH LOAN COMING

Bankers See Quick Sale of Belgian Issue as Assuring Favorable Market for France.

Subscription books for the $50,000,000 Kingdom of Belgium loan offered to the public yesterday by a syndicate of about twenty-five banking firms headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Company of New York were closed fifteen minutes after the bonds were placed on sale. There were no figures as to the size of the oversubscription, but it was reported to be large.

The new bonds were listed on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday and immediately sold at a premium over the offering price, which was 98. The opening sale was made at 98⅜, after which the price tapered off to 98. The close was at 98⅛. Transactions in the bonds on the Exchange totaled $50,000 at par value.

Flotation of the Belgian loan is regarded in some New York banking circles as a test of the market in preparation for a French loan, which is now reported to be nearer than had been generally realized. French and Belgian issues have been regarded in the light of sister securities, and the prompt manner in which the new Belgian offering was snapped up is declared to pave the way for a French loan. The apparent uncertainty in some quarters regarding a market here for a French issue has puzzled many bankers, who recall that recently when the French financial crisis caused a selling movement in French bonds all offerings were taken promptly and prices supported by banks and other purchasers.

It was reported at the time that one large bank which desired to get a large block of French bonds for its customers was unable to do so because of a sudden shrinkage in the volume of offerings.

New York bankers now believe that Finance Minister Caillaux's plan to devaluate the franc will be pushed ahead, and that New York financing will be arranged as soon as it appears that stability is assured.

The new Belgian issue consists of thirty-year 7 per cent. gold bonds, which at the offering price of 98 yield an interest of slightly more than 7.15 per cent. to maturity. A cumulative sinking fund will be created to retire the bonds, by purchase or call by lot, at or up to 107½ per cent., in the semi-annual amount of $268,750, plus sums equal to the interest accruing on all bonds acquired for the sinking fund. Payments to the sinking fund will begin on Dec. 1, 1925.

The loan marks a step forward in the Belgian development program, both at home and in the colonial field. Half the proceeds will be used in the Belgian Congo and half for exchange stabilization.

STOCK ASSESSMENT FOR DETROIT RAILWAY

Plan to Get $40 a Share, Covered by New Bonds, Is Part of Reorganization Scheme.

An assessment of $40 a share on $15,375,000 of capital stock of the Detroit United Railway Company, which is to be covered by new general mortgage bonds under the reorganization plan, is proposed as a step to the early termination of the company's receivership, it was reported yesterday. The plan, it is said, probably will be approved by the protective committees next month. It does not contemplate disturbing any of the present outstanding bonds.

There is $9,000,000 outstanding of an authorized issue of $10,000,000 6 per cent. notes, directly and indirectly secured by first mortgage on 226 miles of electric railway between Detroit and Flint, Mich., and Detroit and Pontiac. The bonds were issued to provide for redemption of $3,529,000 Detroit United Railway first collateral 8s of 1941 and divisional bonds now outstanding on property owned; to acquire $3,000,000 first consolidated 4½s of underlying bonds on the city lines, in anticipation of payments by the municipality; for capital requirements and other purposes.

It is said that the engineers retained by the receivers have succeeded in paring down expenses to a point where a fair profit is expected by the end of the year. Application for permission to issue $1,600,000 of receivers' certificates has been made by the Security Trust Company and Joseph W. Simard, receivers.

NORTHERN PACIFIC NET INCOME GAINED

Total of $15,970,244 in 1924 Equal to $6.44 a Share on Stock.

YEAR'S INCREASE $2,988,818

Gross Operating Revenues and Expenses Decreased—Auto Competition Cut Passenger Business.

The twenty-eighth annual report of the Northern Pacific Railway Company for 1924, shows net income of $15,970,244, equivalent to earnings of $6.44 a share on the capital stock and compared with net income of $12,981,425 or earnings of $5.23 a share the year before. Current assets are reported as $33,049,806 and current liabilities as $17,827,751 against $38,257,278 and $19,026,215 respectively in 1923.

"The operation of your property," the stockholders are informed by Howard Elliott, Chairman of the Board, and Charles Donnelly, President, "resulted in net income of $15,970,244, an increase of $2,988,818. As in past years the volume of passenger business shows a large decrease, due chiefly to the competition of the automobile and motor bus. There was a slight decrease in the average rate per passenger mile, but an increase in the average distance traveled, so that while the number of passengers carried shows a decrease of 23.34 per cent., the decrease in number of passengers carried one mile was 13.85 per cent., and the decrease in passenger revenue was 14.71 per cent.

"The freight business, measured in tons, shows a decrease of 142,000 tons, or .59 per cent., but measured in ton miles it shows a decrease of 4.46 per cent. The revenue per ton mile, compared with the average of the three years ended June 30, 1917, increased 42 per cent., while wages increased 120 per cent., the cost of fuel 60 per cent. and the cost of other materials 74 per cent.

"The operating revenues of the company decreased $6,709,656, or 6.58 per cent., compared with 1923, while operating expenses decreased $9,831,745, or 12.23 per cent. The net revenue increased $3,122,089, or 14.43 per cent. The gain in net is principally due to the saving in transportation of $4,345,083, a decreased of 11.28 per cent., while train miles decreased only 5.94 per cent.

The officials present the following table ton, giving the return on property investment and calling attention to the fact that there has been an improvement in the rate since 1920, when Federal control ceased, but that the returns are much less than they were prior to the period of Government operation:

Year.	Property Investment, Including Working Cash, at End of Year.	Net Railway Operating Income.	Return on Investment, P.C.
1918	533,605,992	24,217,342	4.538
1919	534,450,449	14,368,479	2.688
1920	549,775,317	7,949,458	1.446
1921	561,436,950	10,843,828	1.931
1922	560,271,172	19,450,515	3.472
1923	583,882,752	17,100,557	2.929
1924	588,886,578	19,861,077	3.373

Despite the improvement, it is said, the returns are not satisfactory, although the property has been "operated honestly, efficiently and economically." A larger proportion of transcontinental traffic is going each year by way of the Panama Canal, it is explained, and the motor trucks are taking more business each year.

Special attention is called to the strong financial condition of the company as indicated by the addition within the nine years ending with 1924 of $79,908,972 to the property investment, while during the same period the total debt outstanding in the hands of the public decreased $5,583,900.

Moody's Predicts Higher Stocks.

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions says in part: "Whether the security markets will suffer reactions no one can say, but it is logically believed that they will go higher. The economic grounds are that capital plethora, plus trade activity, are more powerful than the former alone. The trade reason is that the large orders to be received by manufacturing concerns in August or September should be stimulating; and the historical reason is that the market usually reaches its high peaks in the Autumn."

TO WITHDRAW $27,000,000.

Treasury to Lower Deposit in This Reserve District June 15.

On June 15 the United States Government will withdraw $27,000,000 of the funds it now has on deposit in this Federal Reserve district, it was announced yesterday. The withdrawal, an unusually large one, is being made in connection with the shift in accounts for interest payments on Government securities, the receipt of income taxes and the issuance of new securities. All these operations take place as of June 15.

Interest payments, due next Monday on Liberty loans and Treasury notes and certificates, will total $82,000,000. Of this, $44,000,000 will be payable at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The June financing of the Treasury consists of a $125,000,000 issue of one-year securities, which was offered this week and heavily oversubscribed.

MEXICO PHONE EXTENSION.

Improvements in the State of Tamaulipas Will Cost $2,000,000.

According to advices received in the financial district yesterday, the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph Company is making headway toward the rehabilitation planned for it some time ago by interests then identified as being affiliated with the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation.

One of the first steps toward modernizing the thirty-seven-year-old system is the construction of automatic telephone systems in Tampico and Victoria, reported yesterday to be assured by a contract recently signed by Governor Portes Gil of the State of Tamaulipas with the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph Company and ratified by the Legislature. Besides providing for the installation of modern automatic telephones in the two larger cities the contract authorizes the company to extend its long distance system to all parts of the State.

The Tamaulipas improvements will cost $2,000,000.

PRICE OF GASOLINE IS ADVANCED HERE

Standard and Sinclair Announce One-Cent Increase in Line With Up-State Quotation.

CRUDE OILS MAY FOLLOW

Enormous Consumption of Motor Fuel Practically Cleans Open Market of High Grade Oil.

The Standard Oil Company of New York yesterday announced an advance of one cent a gallon in the tank-wagon price of gasoline, to take effect in New York City this morning. The advance was immediately met by the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation. This brings the tank-wagon quotation in line with up-State and New England prices, which have been 22 cents a gallon wholesale for some time.

Advances in gasoline and crude oil prices are expected soon in other sections of the country, according to opinion in trade circles yesterday. In the mid-continent district refiners who have been quoting 13 cents a gallon to jobbers for a week or more, have advanced their price to 13¼ cents a gallon.

Predictions were made that an advance in Pennsylvania crude oil would be announced today or early next week. This grade of crude was advanced from 25 to 35 cents a barrel earlier in the week, but since then premiums have appeared above the posted prices. These premiums, it is understood, have been met by the National Transit Company, and higher posted prices are expected. The Eastern States, due to the enormous gasoline consumption, has been virtually cleaned of open market supplies of high-grade crude oil, and many of the Pennsylvania producers who now hold this product in storage, it is stated, are reluctant to dispose of their surplus at current quotations.

Higher prices for crude oil are also expected in the mid-continent territory within the next few days. Premiums ranging from 15 to 25 cents a barrel above the posted price have also appeared in this section during the last week. The advance in Mid-Continent crude, it is stated, will be followed automatically by an advance in the price of Salt Creek, Wyo., crude Oil. When Mid-Continent and Salt Creek crude have been advanced, the trade looks for a general advance in all sections.

According to advices from Omaha yesterday, the Standard Oil Company of Nebraska reduced the tank-wagon price of gasoline two cents a gallon in that city, but prices in other sections of the State remain unchanged. The reduction, it was stated, was due to the fact that other companies failed to meet the Standard's advance of 2¼ cents a gallon on June 6. This price situation, it is understood, is due to purely local conditions.

On the New York Stock Exchange and the Curb Market yesterday the oil shares continued the centre of speculative interest. Trading was unusually active and the aggregate of business in this group made up the greater part of the day's total. Gains of one to four points were added to those made by independent and Standard Oil issues on Thursday and several issues established new high records for all time. Among the latter were Gulf Oil Corporation, Humble Oil and Refining, Mountain Producers, Salt Creek Producers and Prairie Pipe Line.

A dozen or more stocks established new high records for the current year to date, while many issues were quoted only fractionally below the high records for the year. On the Stock Exchange the leader among the independent issues, from the standpoint of gain, was Independent Oil and Gas, which closed at 39½, with a net gain of 4 points.

Standard Oil of New Jersey established a new high for the current movement at 46, but profit-taking sales developed in this and other oil stocks before the close, with the result that Standard of New Jersey gained only one-eighth of a point net for the day. Texas Company, another leader in the independent group, sold at a new high of 54⅛, closing at 53¾, a net gain of one point.

BETTER WEATHER A BOON TO TRADE

Relief From the Hot Wave Helps Both Business and Agriculture.

The commercial reporting agencies lay considerable stress on the improvement in weather conditions for the moderate expansion which has taken place during the last week in trade and business. It is pointed out, however, that spottiness continues in most lines.

In summing up the situation Dun's Review says:

"The breaking of the unprecedented hot spell, which had adversely affected crops and repressed business activities in many directions, brought much-needed relief. Mills that had been forced to suspend or curtail operations were able to resume previous schedules, while the fall in temperature, with rains in some sections, was helpful to agriculture. The Government's June wheat report, however, indicates the smallest harvest in eight years, and in some commercial channels this disappointing prospect has led to greater caution in making forward commitments. Yet present trade conditions do not differ essentially from those of recent weeks, being marked by many irregularities and contrasts, but also by a number of strong points and by confidence in the future.

"Even the further decrease in the unfilled tonnage of the principal steel interest, although larger than was generally expected, left the total fully 10 per cent. above that of a year ago, and current reports show that bookings thus far this month have exceeded the volume early in May."

Bradstreet's thus comments on the situation:

"Industry, like trade, is spotted. Iron and steel, coke, soft coal and the leather industries are quieter. Cotton manufacturing is still active at the South, but slow in New England. Curtailment is still talked of, and acually operative in a few Southern mill centres. Wool is firmer and rather more active, but manufacturing is not especially active, and the silk manufacturing trade is still the best situated of the textiles. May building permitted for was 17 per cent. below April, but 14 per cent. ahead of May a year ago, and the month's total is the fifth largest ever recorded, with the gain over last year 7.6 per cent. at New York, and 16 per cent. outside thereof.

"Steel buying is said to be in steadier volume than recently."

TO GIVE CHESTER CONTROL.

Turkish Concession Directors Will Meet June 17.

The directors of the Ottoman American Development Corporation will meet June 17, Henry Woodhouse announced yesterday, to act on resolutions electing Admiral Colby M. Chester a director to fill a vacancy, and to invest the controlling management of the company in the Admiral and his sons, Colby M. Chester Jr., and Commander Arthur Chester. Another resolution provides for the reelection of Colby M. Chester Jr., who is President of the Postum Cereal Company, as a director and treasurer. He resigned these posts in September, 1923.

The Chesters again became identified with the company recently, following the reported default in payment for the Admiral's holdings by British interests. It was said yesterday that Admiral Chester planned to go to Turkey as soon as the Mosul Committee of the League of Nations confirms Turkish sovereignty over the Mosul territory, in which are the concession's oil fields.

FIND THEY ARE SHORT WHEN OIL STOCK JUMPS

Middle State Holders With Deposit Certificates Forced to Buy Shares for Deliveries.

Many of the stockholders of the Middle States Oil Corporation who had deposited their securities with the stockholders' protective committee, and who sold their holdings on the recent advance from $1 to more than $3 a share, found that they were short of the stock when called upon to make delivery.

This situation caused a considerable flurry in stock market circles yesterday, especially in view of the recent advance in the shares, and it is believed that a fair-sized short interest in the stock is now outstanding. The situation was brought about when many Middle States stockholders deposited their stock with the protective committee and in exchange received certificates of deposit which were subsequently listed on the Exchange.

When the stock advanced sharply a few days ago many of these holders, not familiar with the difference between regular stock and certificates of deposit, gave their brokers orders to sell 100, 200 or more shares of Middle States Oil on the advance. These orders were executed, and brokers awaited the turning over of the securities in order to make deliveries. In many instances the customers produced certificates of deposit, but these are not a good delivery for the regular stock which had been sold. The holders were called upon to either produce regular stock for delivery or purchase it in the open market. Therefore many of them are technically "short of the market" in this stock.

While the certificates of deposit are listed on the Stock Exchange, no market exists for these securities. Since their listing only one transaction has been reported. This was at 1½ on Feb. 13.

LEHIGH NAVIGATION PLANS.

May Purchase Railroad and Power Company Stock.

An officer of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company said yesterday that no announcement would be made at this time regarding the disposition of the company's railroad and public utility holdings.

This decision was reached, it was said, after an all-day session of the board of managers of the company with Samuel D. Warriner, President, when an offer was considered for the purchase of the Lehigh and New England Railroad, control of which is vested in Lehigh Navigation. This road is mentioned in several of the pending consolidation plans and is looked upon as a valuable link in connecting New England with the anthracite coal territory of Pennsylvania.

The company has also had an offer, it is rumored, from the S. Z. Mitchell group of public utility operators for the purchase of its holdings of 61,000 shares in the Lehigh Power Securities Corporation, which have a present market value of approximately $9,150,000.

Curb Seat Brings Record Price.

The New York Curb Exchange membership of Harold N. Raymond has been sold to De Courcy L. Taylor for $13,000, a new high record. The last previous sale was at $12,500.

INSULL GROUP BUYS 6 POWER CONCERNS

Calumet Gas and Electric Co. Takes Over Local Organizations in Indiana.

NOW SERVES 73 LOCALITIES

Plans $1,387,000 Capital Increase to Finance Expansion—Other Mid-Western Mergers Seen.

The Insull interests have added further to their utility holdings, already representing a value of about $800,000,000, by the purchase of six local light and power concerns in Indiana. The Calumet Gas and Electric Company, a subsidiary of the Midland Utilities Company, has acquired the properties and has been authorized to increase its capital $1,387,000 to finance its expansion program.

The companies acquired, and which are to be incorporated in the Insull chain serving a wide area in the Mid-West, are the Indiana Electric Utilities Company, C. F. Cain Power and Light Company, Hawk Brothers Milling Company, Bass Lake Light and Power, Nevada Mills Electric, and the Orland Light and Power Company. Midland Utilities is owned by the People's Gas, Light and Coke Company of Chicago, Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago, Middle-West Utilities Company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, all part of the Insull group of utilities.

The C. F. Cain Company operates two hydroelectric plants near Ontario in La Grange County, Ind.; Hawk Brothers a hydroelectric plant on Pigeon River at Mongo; Bass Lake Light and Power furnishes electric service to Summer residents at Bass Lake, south of Knox, and the Nevada Mills Electric operates a hydroelectric plant at Nevada Mills.

The Indiana Electric Utilities Company serves Angola, Waterloo and other communities in Steuben and De Kalb Counties in the northeastern part of the State, and utility properties in Northern Indiana. The acquisitions by the Calumet Company increase its communities served to seventy-three. Late in 1924, the company acquired fourteen other utility properties operating in Northern Indiana.

Further utility mergers in the Middle West are forecast in the announcement of the incorporation of the Iowa Railway and Light Company of Cedar Rapids, with a capitalization of $35,000,000, William G. Dows is President of the new company, Isaac B. Smith, Vice President, and treasurer, and John A. Reed, Vice President and general counsel. Officers of the corporation say it was organized for the purpose of taking over the assets and business of the old Iowa Railway and Light Company, the Boone Gas Company, Wapsie Power and Light Company, Jefferson Electric Company, and other utilities recently acquired. Negotiations are said to be under way for the purchase of other properties in various localities in Iowa. The present gross income of the companies brought into this merger is more than $6,000,000 a year.

The capitalization of the new Cedar Rapids Company is divided into $20,000,000 of common and $15,000,000 of preferred stock. Eighty thousand farmers are in the territory covered by the consolidations.

RUBBER RISES AGAIN HERE AND IN LONDON

Spot Prices Advance Sharply From 1 to 1½ Cents Over Thursday's Quotations.

STOCKS AT A LOW EBB

Big American Factories Have Less on Hand Than a Year Ago—English Supplies Light.

The market for crude rubber was strong yesterday. There was an especially firm tone in spot prices, which bounded forward on an average from 1 to 1½ cents per pound above Thursday's figures. Dealers and brokers attributed the rally to the receipt of higher London cables, these "coming over" at 38½d, an advance of 1d over the previous day.

Still another reason for the buoyancy was the fact that stocks of rubber are at low ebb and manufacturers have to keep their customers supplied as orders come in. In one quarter of the trade it was reported that arrivals so far this year approximate 140,000 tons, compared with 130,000 tons at this time a year ago. In London, for the same period, 72,000 tons of rubber were available for export, while now no more than 5,000 tons are on hand. The big factories in this country, it was stated, have much less rubber on hand now than a year ago, and the condition of stocks at London prove this point.

Brokers were not inclined to pin much hope on the reported plan of the Rubber Association of America to go to Holland for its supply, since the best that can come from this source is no more than 120,000 tons, and this would have to come by way of Singapore, whence comes the British supply. As consumption of rubber in the United States will run over 300,000 tons, on the basis of 1924, the stock of rubber at the command of the Netherlands Government falls considerably below our needs.

Spot ribbed smoked sheets were quoted at 76½ cents, which was also quoted for June, and 74½ cents for July delivery. Brown crepe thin was quoted at 71 cents for spot, 69½ cents for June and 67½ cents for July. First latex crepe was 75½ cents for spot and June, and 73½ cents for July. Amber No. 3 was quoted 70¼ cents for spot, 69½ cents for June and 69 cents for July. Fine up-river Para was quoted 63½@64 cents for spot, 62½@63 cents for June and 61½ cents for July delivery.

BREAK, THEN RISE, FEATURES COTTON

The Result Is Slight Decline in Prices After Wide Fluctuations.

VISIBLE SUPPLY RECEDES

Heavy Decrease Brings Total to Below 2,000,000 Bales for First Time Since Last Fall.

The cotton market continued nervous but with wider fluctuations than the previous day. An early break of a dollar a bale was followed by a sharp recovery of 30 points and this in turn by a late setback of 20 points, which left final quotations five to ten points lower than Thursday. Action of the July position in New Orleans arrested general attention, with prices a cent and a half over October there and three-quarters of a cent over the July position in New York. As it cost about 75 points to move cotton from one market to the other, differences at the close yesterday were very much out of line with normal relations between the two exchanges.

There was a heavy decrease in visible supply figures, which brought the total below 2,000,000 bales for the first time since last Fall. Spinners took nearly 150,000 bales more than during the corresponding week last year. A census report on May consumption is expected either today or Monday. A local crop reporting agency estimated the condition on June 8 as 73.7, a decline of 1.5 per cent., due largely to deterioration in Texas. That State was placed at 68, compared with 72 last month. The Weather Bureau predicted unsettled, showery weather for cotton States generally today.

While spot sales in Liverpool continued liberal the contract market remained apathetic under inactive trading conditions. After a few July covering orders had been executed on the call here scattered liquidation of that delivery unsettled the balance of the list and a 20-point decline occurred the first hour. This brought October to 22.35, or 30 points from high quotations of the previous day. As trading aside from swapping business proved largely professional, selling pressure soon ran its course and the market steadied. Though the best rains of the week fell in Alabama, with additional moisture in Georgia, only two stations in Texas received over half an inch. The fact that less precipitation occurred in that State than any previous day this week caused covering later in the session and under the lead of the July position in New Orleans an advance of 30 points developed. Room traders took back cotton sold earlier in the day, running October to 22.66, while July sold above 23 cents. With July in New Orleans increasing its premium to the widest differences so far recorded, July in New York maintained a 40-point premium over October compared with 31 points the previous day.

Private reports that it was raining in parts of Texas circulated the last hour and started a resumption of selling in new crop positions. An increased quantity of January and March contracts had appeared in the market on all recoveries the past few days and pressure before the close yesterday left final prices slightly lower on the day.

Week-end figures showed 49,000 bales in sight, compared with 40,000 a year ago, making 14,333,000 for the season, against 10,916,000 last year. Spinners took 200,000 against 53,000 last year, making 13,290,000 for the season, compared with 10,381,000 last season. The visible supply decreased 151,000 compared with a decrease of 13,000 a year ago, leaving the world's visible supply of American cotton 1,994,000 against 1,404,000 a year ago.

COTTON TRANSFER UNIT.

Federal Charge Is Said Not to Affect New York Delivery.

The recent amendment by the United States Department of Agriculture of Regulation No. 11, reducing the transfer unit of cotton from 100 to 25 bales, has no effect on the unit for delivery on the New York contract, according to Richard T. Harriss, President of the New York Cotton Exchange.

"In some quarters the belief prevailed," said Mr. Harriss, "that this amendment referred to units for delivery on New York contract, or would otherwise affect the handling of certificated cotton in New York. The Warehouse and Delivery Committee of the New York Cotton Exchange considered the amendment carefully, however, and is of the unanimous opinion that it was designed only to simplify the work of the Department of Agriculture in handling transfers of certificated cotton from one market to another.

"It not infrequently happens that the owners of certificated cotton in other markets desire to forward it to New York under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture in order to avoid the necessity for recertification on arrival in New York. This amendment, therefore, merely provides that in such instances the number of bales in a lot or mark thus transferred may consist of any number of bales but not exceeding twenty-five. Upon arrival at licensed warehouses in New York such cotton may be warehoused, just as at present, in whatever sized lots best suits the convenience of the deliverer."

EUROPE'S PROSPECTS FOR CROPS BRIGHT

International Institute Forecasts 24 Per Cent. Cereal Decrease Here This Year.

ROME, June 11 (AP).—Cereal crop prospects for Europe at the beginning of June were promising, the yield of wheat being expected to exceed that of last year and perhaps be above the average, says a bulletin issued today by the International Institute of Agriculture.

The crop forecast for the United States is not so favorable, being estimated at 24 per cent. less than 1924 for wheat and 16 per cent. less than last year for rye and oats. It is indicated the barley harvest will be 9 per cent. more than in 1924.

The decrease in production in the United States may be partly compensated by a good Canadian harvest, which estimates made here say may be larger than in 1924, recent rains having benefited the prairie provinces.

Crop conditions in Europe were reported as follows: German Winter wheat varies from average to good, but was decidedly better than in early June, 1924. Spring sown cereals are not yet as satisfactory as last year, but are above the average.

In Czechoslovakia Winter crops are in good condition but Spring crops are below the average. In Poland the first provisional estimate furnished the International Institute shows an increase of 53 per cent. in Winter wheat and 68 per cent. in Winter rye, as compared to 1924.

In Hungary the weather has been generally favorable, and the forecast for wheat, rye and barley crops is above the average, with a normal harvest expected for oats.

Rumania and Serbia report favorable crop prospects, while Bulgaria expects an increased yield of more than 50 per cent. Russia expects an average harvest.

Italy expects more than an average yield of cereals this year. Crop conditions in northern Spain are satisfactory, but drought in central and southern Spain has retarded the growth of cereals.

In Scandinavian and Baltic countries early June reports were favorable. Great Britain looks forward to an average yield of cereals.

NEW BUYING CHECKS DECLINE IN WHEAT

Strong Houses Come to Rescue When Prices Go 11 Cents Below Wednesday's High Mark.

EXPORT TRADE IS LARGER

Threshing Returns From Oklahoma Suggest a Better Yield Than Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Scattered liquidation developed in wheat early today and at the low point prices showed 11½@12½ cents under the high on Wednesday with September off 5 cents from the finish of yesterday. Numerous stop loss orders were caught on the way down. Commission houses with Eastern connections pressed the selling side for a time, but the break brought in heavy and aggressive buying.

This absorbed the surplus in the pit on the decline and the close was on a rally of around 3 cents from the inside figures, with a net loss of 1⅛@2¾ cents, July showing the most strength and going to 3½ cents over September at the last.

The rally was due to heavy buying by a leading cash house, which was a seller early. The sharp break the past three days is said to have cleaned out the stop order holdings and developed an export demand and advanced cash premiums. There were sales of No. 2 hard wheat here at 12 cents over July on track.

The seaboard reported 500,000 bushels of durums, Springs and Manitoba's sold for export. Greece bought a cargo and Italy took durums. There was also an unconfirmed rumor that 1,000,000 bushels of rye had been taken for export and there came a confirmation of around 500,000 bushels, with 300,000 bushels of oats.

Northwestern markets were weak, with Minneapolis 3⅛ to 3½ lower, the July there being almost the same as Chicago, while recently it was at a good discount.

There were reports of threshing returns from Oklahoma showing twenty to twenty-five bushels to the acre, and a car of new wheat was received at Wichita, Kan. Yields are also said to be better than expected. The short interest is said to have been increased on the late advance in wheat.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 911,000 bushels; week ago, 781,000; last year, 476,000. Shipments were 607,000 bushels; week ago, 844,000; last year, 781,000.

Buying of September corn by a strong local house was largely responsible for a rally of over 2 cents from the low point, and the finish was unchanged to ⅝ cent lower, with July showing the decline.

Houses with Iowa connections sold December, while those with Illinois clients bought—Iowa selling on the rains over part of that State.

Oats showed independent strength and gained ⅛@¾ cents, being hard to sell early without affecting values, and the reverse later.

Rye was off 1@1¾ cents. Primary arrivals of corn were 574,000 bushels; week ago, 882,000; last year, 717,000, and shipments, 237,000 bushels; week ago, 610,000; last year 547,000.

National Convention Is Told That Obsolescence Deductions Mean Saving of Millions.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—Saving of millions of dollars in Federal taxes and possibility of the collection of additional millions in rebates from the Government was the good news received today by the convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers in the final business session of their convention. The meeting came to an end tonight with the President's dinner at the Mid-Day Club.

Colonel Gordon Strong of the Republican Building Chicago, was the bearer of the welcome tax saving message. He brought the information that the Federal Board of Tax Appeals had recognized for the first time the element of obsolescence in buildings.

"The Government recognizes," said Colonel Strong, "that shifts in business districts and changes of styles in buildings and equipment tend to make commercial buildings obsolete long before they wear out. Henceforth, obsolescence is to take its place alongside depreciation in income tax reductions."

Delegates to the convention had a busy hour when they learned that in order to take advantage of the obsolescence allowance for 1919 notice of intention to put in claims for rebates must be filed by noon tomorrow with the Appeals Board at Washington. Telegrams were sent to members of the association all over the United States and Canada informing them of the necessity for prompt action in filing these declarations.

In a report of the Committee on Legislation Chairman T. L. Waugh of New York called attention to the fact that decisions of courts on the matter of zoning and height limitation of buildings were entirely at variance. He predicted that eventually the liberty of free development of cities and villages probably would be sustained.

In this connection O. F. Slimp of Cincinnati, Chairman of the committee which investigated height limitation, refuted several arguments commonly advanced against high buildings. He argued that the modern office building is the last word in sanitation and that the statement that the tenant suffered from lack of sunlight and air was not borne out by investigation.

All the national association officers were re-elected, as follows: President, Lee Thompson Smith, New York; Vice Presidents, Paul Robertson, Indianapolis; M. S. Halliday, Cleveland, and E. Clarence Holmes, San Francisco; Treasurer, John T. Redmond, Chicago, and Corporate Secretary, Howard G. Loomis, Omaha. C. F. Palmer of Atlanta was added to the directorate.

WOOL MARKET BROADENS.

Irregularity in Trade Conditions Continues, However.

BOSTON, June 12.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

"A stronger, broader market has been in evidence again this week, both in the country and at the seaboard points. Prices are now at the 50-cent level for the better bright wools in the country, while the seaboard markets are several cents behind country values, as a rule, although 2 to 3 cents a pound higher in the grease than last week. The woolen mills are in good position generally, while the knitters are finding better business and the worsted mills are making only slight progress.

"The foreign markets are rather irregular, Bradford prices favoring the buyer. Rather more activity is reported from the River Plate, with prices showing a very slight tendency to strengthen. The Australian program is yet to be determined."

PREVENTS SUBWAY PANIC.

Motorman Has Fireman Silently Called to Extinguish Hot-Box.

Passengers on a south-bound Interborough subway train last night were entirely unaware that an alarm had been turned in and firemen summoned to put out a fire in a journal box of one of the cars.

The motorman saw smoke coming from underneath the car just before the train pulled into the Fifty-ninth Street station. The station men were notified and a silent alarm sent in. Firemen and trainmen pulled the burning cotton waste out of the journal box, inserted fresh oiled waste and the train resumed its journey without the passengers being aware of anything amiss.

HEARST TO BUILD FOUR BIG BUILDINGS

STRAUS CO. TO ISSUE BONDS

Two Office Structures to Go Up in East 57th Street and Apartment Hotel and Theatre in 54th Street.

One of the largest and most important real estate mortgage bond issues of the year was announced yesterday, when William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane completed financing arrangements with S. W. Straus & Co. for the immediate erection of a theatre and a group of commercial and residential buildings, two in East Fifty-seventh Street and the others on the northern corners of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street.

The bond issue consists of $7,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds covering the Hearst and Brisbane properties, which are to have a value in excess of $10,000,000 when the improvements are completed.

The fourteen old buildings on the several plots to be improved are now being demolished.

Plan Four New Buildings.

The buildings to be erected on the site include a twenty-story office and store building at 5 East Fifty-seventh Street; an eighteen-story office and store building at 20 East Fifty-seventh Street, both between Madison and Fifth Avenues; a twenty-story apartment hotel on the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, already leased from plans to a company for a long term of years, on a plot of 12,000 square feet, and a theatre building on the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, on a plot of 15,000 square feet. The theatre has been leased to F. Ziegfeld Jr., and will be known as the Ziegfeld Theatre.

A fifth property, included in the real estate bond issue, is a completed store and office building fronting 28 feet at 9 East Fifty-seventh Street and 20 feet on Fifty-eighth Street, comprising 4,800 square feet.

On these properties the S. W. Straus Company has underwritten an issue of $7,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. real estate bonds of the W. A. R. Realty Corporation, headed by Mr. Brisbane and Mr. Hearst, who personally and unconditionally guarantee the payment of both principal and interest of the bonds. The bonds are secured by the land, comprising 34,500 square feet, four buildings to be erected and one completed.

It is understood that these bonds will be offered by a selling group of dealers to net the buyers 6.10 per cent.

Both Mr. Hearst and Mr. Brisbane have been extensive investors in New York real estate for several years. Mr. Brisbane's holdings are said to be more than $9,000,000. The largest proportion of their holdings are centred in the district roughly bounded by Columbus Circle, Central Park, Fifty-third Street and Seventh Avenue.

Old Homes to Go.

The clearing of the sites on the northern corners of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, necessitating the removal of fourteen old structures, will see the passing of the old home of Mrs. Luther Kountze, for many years a social leader in New York, at 5 East Fifty-seventh Street. The house adjoining it on the west was formerly the home of Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, when the corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street was the "hub of the Four Hundred." The new eighteen-story office and store building at 20 East Fifty-seventh Street will stand on the site of the former home of Mrs. Adolph Scheftel.

Plans for the new residential and commercial structures are now being prepared by Emory Roth, architect. Thomas W. Lamb will draw the plans for the new theatre, which, according to tentative plans, will have a seating capacity of about 1,650 persons. The stage will be unusually large and especially adapted to Ziegfeld productions.

Arthur Brisbane is now erecting a thirty-three-story apartment hotel and bank building on the northeast corner of Fifty-seventh Street and Park Avenue. Plans for the structure were filed last January by Emory Roth, architect, who estimated the cost at about $2,400,000.

TORNADOES HIT NORTHWEST

Several Persons Are Injured in Minnesota and Iowa.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP).—Tornadoes in Southern Minnesota and Iowa and lesser rain and windstorms in those States caused heavy damage to property and injury to a number of persons yesterday and early today.

A score of persons were reported injured at Alexander, Iowa, a small town, where reports said the storm struck last night and wrecked or damaged more than twenty-five homes and blew a Minneapolis & St. Louis mixed passenger and freight train from the tracks.

Another tornado struck Conger, Miss., causing much damage to property and injuring at least two persons. Nearly five inches of rain fell in parts of Southern Minnesota, where wind and rainstorms damaged property and injured persons.

After a cloudburst yesterday at Rochester, Minn., two inches of rain fell today, inundating houses and other property when the Zumbro River overflowed. Homes near Mazeppa, Pine Island and Rochester were isolated.

Washouts interfered with railroad traffic. At Winnebago the roof of a house was blown away by an eighty-mile wind.

DES MOINES, June 12 (AP).—One woman was drowned because of the storms in Northern Iowa last night. She was swept from a bridge into a swollen stream near Protovin.

GREEN URGES AMENDMENT.

Head of A. F. of L., in Flag Day Appeal, Favors Child Labor Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, came out today in an appeal to workers to observe Flag Day.

He especially stressed the observance as a patriotic incentive to children, and pursued this suggestion to urge the adoption of the pending child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution. He said:

"During the convention of the American Federation of Labor in 1922 Flag Day was set aside in the interest of the children of our nation. It was there decided that an amendment to the Constitution should be urged to protect child life. It was felt that the children of the future would regard Flag Day as the day of their emancipation from the factory and workshop and their entrance into the schools and the playgrounds to which they previously had been denied. It would impress upon them the justice for which our flag stands.

"Flag Day, therefore, has a new mission which will add to the glorious principles it represents."

Judge Collapses in Court.

NORWALK, Conn., June 12 (AP).—Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States District Court, collapsed on the bench here shortly before noon, while hearing a case. He was carried from the court unconscious, but was soon revived. Physicians said the collapse was from overwork.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......4 per cent. for the best names
Thursday ......4 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Silk Trade Continues Confident.

For the time being, the broad silk trade is quiet. Manufacturers are going ahead slowly with their Fall production, although there is nothing to warrant any change in the belief that the new season will be a satisfactory one. The slowness is more apparent in the covering of raw silk requirements, it being generally agreed that much buying has still to be done for July and August needs. The prime factor governing this is the limited interest of the mills in silk above the level of $6.50 per pound. With silk fabrics at present levels, the mills are said to get a profitable margin that is placed in jeopardy with any rise in Japan raws above that figure. The consensus of opinion, however, is that raw silk prices through practically the entire Fall are not likely to cause concern unless present indications change notably.

Hard Coal Situation Normal.

Conditions in the anthracite trade are rapidly getting down to a normal Summer basis, Saward's Journal will say today, the excessively high temperatures of the first week in June having helped along this process in no small degree. Thousands of householders who would have remained in the city until later in the month, or possibly until July 1 had the weather remained tolerable, sought relief elsewhere after a few days of torture from the heat. Among them were many who had planned to have their coal put in this month, but now delivery will have to be postponed. Another factor that is working to restrict the retail business is the matter of credits and collections. Neither in the statistics of production nor in the talk heard in coal offices is there anything to warrant the statement that the bituminous trade is rapidly becoming active and prosperous.

Fan Sales Take Big Spurt.

Sale of electric fans by department stores, hardware and radio shops during this month is said to show a big jump over the same month last year. While this is primarily due to the heat wave, it also reflects the greater merchandising attention being given these items. Sales of small fans for the home have particularly figured in the increased sales, the manufacturers having gone in for models which may be had to retail from $5 up. The coming of the radio shops into the retailing of fans is more noteworthy than last year, these stores thus getting an added turnover during the more or less slack period in the sale of radio sets or parts. Incidentally, it is said that the potential market for the sale of fans for home use has been only scratched, considering the great addition to the number of homes and apartments now using electricity.

Way Paved for Good Response.

With the cleaning up of stocks of tropicals and beach cloths as the result of the recent spurt in the demand for Summer clothing, the way is believed to have been paved for a good reception for the 1926 lines of these goods. The first opening of these goods will probably come about the second week in July. While there may be some slight revision of prices on these goods at the coming openings, the market view seems to be that last year's levels will hold for the most part. In the beach cloths, it is said, there will be a continuation of last year's marked trend toward novelty patterns. Lines of tropical worsteds are likewise expected to be comprehensive, some mills having decided to show larger ranges since the improved sentiment lately brought about by the hot spell.

More Favor Later Openings.

Less has been heard in the men's wear fabric market lately about early openings of regular lines of lightweights. Those who broached such views previously have been answered by others who described openings before August as premature and a tactical error. For the present the situation remains at this point, although it is held that there are more in the trade who favor opening in that month than those who see advantage in a July showing. What the largest producer in the trade will do is still a question. The new management is credited with giving the matter of an opening date very careful study in the effort to choose a happy medium that will avoid errors having an unfavorable merchandising reaction.

Spring Season Ends Well.

Despite the disposal by some men's neckwear manufacturers of fair quantities of seasonable merchandise at close-out prices, the situation in this merchandise continues a sound one. It is generally agreed that the Spring demand was good, with some fill-in business counted on still to come from retailers, particularly in lightweight crêpes and foulards. The bow tie is now beginning to take better with consumers and, with any renewal of the recent hot weather, a considerable run on stocks held by the stores is anticipated. Some buying for Fall has already been done, but real activity for this season is believed a matter of some weeks away. Stripes are expected to retain leadership for the Fall, with bright colors again stressed.

Burlap Shipments Quite Heavy.

Shipments of burlaps from Calcutta to North American ports during May amounted to 99,000,000 yards, according to a cable received here yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc. Of this quantity 88,000,000 yards were shipped to East Coast ports. May's total shipments compared with 83,000,000 yards in April and 89,700,000 yards in May a year ago. Total shipments from Calcutta to American ports from Jan. 1 to May 31, inclusive, totaled 455,000,000 yards, against 411,700,000 yards in the same period of 1924. This makes the current year's monthly average 91,000,000 yards, or 8,000,000 yards less than the May total. The local market was reported extremely firm yesterday and just as dull as it was firm.

Gray Goods Prices Firmer.

Fair trading and a somewhat firmer tone marked yesterday's activities in gray goods here. Spot business was done in 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 9¼ cents, with July sales made at 9⅛ cents and August-September deliveries sold at 8⅞ cents. Ten cents was paid for 39-inch 68-72s, and that figure also bought goods for shipments running into the early Fall. For 39-inch 72-76s, 11 cents was paid. No great volume of sheetings was moved, but sales included 37-inch 48-squares (four yard) at 9¼ cents, 36-inch 5.50s at 7 cents and 36-inch 6.15s at 6½ cents. Some good trading in hard-twist voiles was reported on the basis of 12½ cents. In the specialties 72-80 pajama checks were held at 9¾ to 10 cents.

Will Spend Many Millions.

Merchandise executives of the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., which operates a chain of dry goods stores throughout the country, were unable to say yesterday just how large the company's Spring, 1926, buying appropriation would be, but it was said that buying would be based on an estimate of a $90,000,000 business for 1925. Purchasing for the new season will begin about July 1. Only filling-in orders will be placed for Fall, 1925, from now on. It was further said that the company planned to have about 675 stores in operation by late October, those now open totaling 588. One of the features of the stores opened and to be opened during 1925 is that a larger proportion of them are and will be located in the East than has been the case heretofore.

Fall Color Card Now Ready.

The Fall, 1925, color card of the Textile Color Card Association is now ready for general distribution, according to a statement issued by the association late yesterday afternoon. In the new card are 106 shades, which represent the largest seasonal group yet put out by the association. One hundred of them are contained in the general card, the other six, which are shoe and leather hues, being issued in the form of a supplement. One of the features of the general card is the first group of ensemble colors ever compiled. This group provides silk and wool colors that are exactly the same and that are known by the same names. The colorings of Oriental rugs are the inspiration for them, and they bear rug names. In the other colors are three important purples and a group of blues in which four principal shades predominate. Also included in the card is a group of particularly brilliant colors of Moroccan and Algerian origin that bear names of that stamp. Another feature is a collection of fourteen shades chosen especially for millinery.

AGAINST CITY TAXES ON PORT AUTHORITY

COHEN FILES A BRIEF

Declares All Attempts to Treat Organization as Private Corporate Agency Have Failed.

The Port of New York Authority should be left exempt from taxation by municipalities in the Port District, but should receive the directions of the States of New York and New Jersey with regard to payments to those municipalities in special circumstances, Julius Henry Cohen, its counsel, contended in a brief filed with the Joint Legislative Commission representing the two States, and made public yesterday. The commission has held hearings on the protests from New York City and several New Jersey municipalities on the proposal to exempt from taxation property the Port Authority may acquire.

"No one has seriously argued that the Port Authority is not now tax immune," Mr. Cohen said in his brief. "An attempt has been made to treat it as though it were a private corporate agency and not a governmental agency performing governmental functions. This has utterly failed.

"Under the circumstances, if the status quo is preserved, the Port Authority will pay no taxes except as it does in the case of Hoboken, under special agreements. Even though this policy may involve litigation, it may be better to have the litigation than to adopt the recommendations of those who would place the power of taxation in the hands of all the municipalities.

"On the other hand, it is the business of the State, while preserving its own sovereign powers as against the control of municipalities, to deal equitably with all the municipalities. The situation calls for joint constructive effort in the solution of this most difficult and delicate problem.

"The Port Authority should be left free, as stated in its resolution, from taxation by the various municipalities, but should receive the joint direction of the two States with regard to payments to be made to those municipalities.

"The State is not a monster, seeking to injure any of its agencies. It should not come in and take out large revenues and reduce the borrowing capacity of any of the municipalities. It must, therefore, give heed to their complaint, but, giving heed, should not surrender.

"The situation, like many others in statecraft, requires constructive ingenuity, not denunciation, abuse or demagogic appeal intended to inflame the public generally. The Port Authority is, and has always been, willing to aid in such a constructive solution, and will be very glad to confer further with the commission in this regard, in the hope that out of the very broad study that this commission is giving to the matter a solution will be found that will be of permanent value."

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Although the Changes Were Fewer, the Advances Again Led.

For the second time in three weeks the advances in Dun's list showed an excess over the declines this week. Thirty-three of the fifty-eight revisions were upward. Last week the advances numbered thirty-one in a total of sixty-six changes. One of the features of the current list was the relatively few changes in the foodstuffs, which showed only six advances and five declines. The greatest numerical weakness was shown in the metals.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for this week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

For the first time in quite a while there were no changes in the grades of flour listed in the local provisions market this week, despite the drop in wheat. Middle Western lard was lower, however, and bacon also declined. No change was reported in hams. At Chicago the only rise was in live sheep, with live hogs lower and live beef unchanged. Mess pork also was unchanged, but the price of short ribs was lower.

Local dairy product prices were unchanged this week, with the exception of a rise of 1½ cents a pound in fresh cheese. Although prices in this part of the general list are still higher than they were a year ago at this time, the margins between the two, for the most part, are smaller than they have been.

Neither the listed fresh nor dried fruits showed a change either way, and in the vegetables there were not many revisions. Potatoes showed a drop of 25 cents a barrel, but are still substantially above the corresponding price for 1924. Other changes in vegetables included advances in choice peas and choice red kidney beans.

Both No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos coffees advanced again, but the tea list continued bare of changes. The spices showed only advances in black Lampong and white Singapore peppers. Sugars were generally unchanged.

In the grains only oats and malting barley were higher this week. Wheat, corn, rye and hay all declined. No. 1 kip hides and No. 1 and Chicago city calfskins were the only items in that part of the general list to show revision. They were all higher. Leathers continued to be devoid of fluctuation so far as the listed varieties were concerned.

Building materials and lumber listed were without change this week. The metals, however, were quite unsettled, with a rise in zinc contrasting with declines in several other items. The latter included valley furnace basic and gray forge pig irons, iron bars, tank plates, electrolytic copper and tin. Furnace and foundry coke were both lower. A drop in resin was the only change seen in the naval stores this week. In the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils there were twelve changes, of which nine were advances. Among the few features in this part of the list was a rise of $3 a barrel in Norwegian cod liver oil, which brought it to $35 a barrel. This price is $14 a barrel higher than at this time a year ago.

Japanese and Chinese raw silks were both higher this week, and the best Brazilian crude rubber advanced again. French ochre and English vermilion paint went up. Hemp was cheaper.

No marked changes were seen in the textiles this week, although there was again a firmer undertone to gray goods and to some of the finished cottons. Burlaps were stronger, largely due to the firmness of the primary market. This, in turn, was due principally to reports of damage to the jute crop by bad weather in the growing country.

Cross-Word Puzzles for Undertakers

The cross-word puzzle is spreading, a series of the black and white squares having recently appeared in The Casket and Sunnyside, New York's funeral directors' professional journal. Technical and scientific terms associated with funeral directing and embalming are the subject of the puzzle. Quite far afield is the cross-word puzzle in Spanish recently noted in El Espejo (The Looking-glass), a Spanish publication edited by the Spanish Club at Illinois Woman's College, which also prints an article on the origin of the cross-word puzzle.

The Meridian Security Corporation, Mark Kanner, President, yesterday placed loans aggregating $1,250,000 for its subsidiaries with William Henry Barnum & Co.

The premises affected are in the garment centre and consist of 356-58-60, 61 and 63 West Thirty-sixth Street and 323-25-27 West Thirty-ninth Street.

Titles to these properties are insured by the New York Title and Mortgage Company. Hammond & Hughes negotiated the transaction. Benjamin C. Ribman of Ribman & Ribman took care of the legal details for the Meridian Security Corporation.

Yonkers Hat Factory Sold.

One of the largest realty transactions involving industrial property in Yonkers, N. Y., was closed yesterday with the sale of the Riverdale Avenue and the Elm Street plants formerly occupied by the Waring Hat Manufacturing Company, to the Yonkers Fur Dressing Company, for a reported consideration of $340,000.

The property was bought from Allen Doremus of Brooklyn, who is associated with S. W. Strauss Company of New York, the brokerage firm which held the mortgages of the former Waring Hat Company, and which foreclosed them last Fall. The Waring plant covers two city blocks between Vark and St. Mary's Streets on Riverdale Avenue and extends back to Hawthorne Avenue. The plant dates back to 1828, when William C. Waring and Hezekiah Nichols began the manufacture of bodies for wool hats. The plant in its heyday had a capacity of 12,000 dozen hats. The Yonkers Fur Dressing Company, Nathan Ressler, President, now occupies a plant on Chicken Island, Yonkers. No announcement was made concerning its plans for the future.

New Greenwich St. Garage.

A record rent per square foot for garage space in Manhattan was probably established in the leasing of a garage building from the plans by S. H. Finkle and the Business Exchange for Sambro Garage, Inc. (A. Geiger, M. Salzberg and L. Rosenberg), a syndicate of garage investors, to a client of Allan J. Simon.

The planned garage is to be constructed by the lessors on an area 100 by 100 feet at the southeast corner of North Moore and Greenwich Streets, Manhattan, the ground being leased from the estate of B. Fischer.

The building will be two stories and basement, with runways instead of elevators, and will cater to the trade of commercial vehicles and day parking abounding in the wholesale grocery territory. Stores will be constructed on the entire Greenwich Street frontage.

The lease is for twenty-one years and the rent, including taxes, assessments and insurance, which the tenant is obliged to pay, will aggregate over a million dollars for the period. The tenant for the completed garage is Ralph Bash, a pioneer garage man who operates a chain of garages in Manhattan.

3 Bullfighters Hurt on Same Day.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 12.—The bullfighting season's disasters continue. Yesterday matadors were severely wounded at Toledo, Barcelona and Plasencia, the men being Gitanillo, Tieba and Gavira. At Canizar, Guadalajara, an amateur, Sal[illegible]dor Arribas, was killed.

YOUTH SHOT TWICE, SAVES UNCLE'S GEMS

Five Bandits, Frustrated, Rain Bullets on Their Pursuers.

ESCAPE IN STOLEN CAR

Three Volleys Smash East Side Shop Windows—Victim in Serious Condition.

Frustrated in an attempt to hold up an east side jewelry store yesterday five armed robbers shot and seriously wounded the nephew of the proprietor. Firing a fusillade, in which many bullets shattered neighboring store windows, the robbers escaped through dense crowds after an exciting automobile chase by two policemen on a commandeered truck.

The victim of the shooting is Joseph Lacher, 19 years old. He was taken to Bellevue with two bullets in his back and late last night was said to be in a very serious condition.

Lacher and his uncle, Joseph L. Lacher, were arranging trays of gems in the window of the shop at 31 Avenue B about noon when a black automobile pulled up at the sidewalk. Hundreds were passing at the time. Four men remained in the car. A fifth looked up and down the street and then stepped inside the jewelry store. The proprietor of the shop met him near the counter, while the nephew continued to work.

"Let's see some bracelets," said the stranger.

Suspicious because of the number of jewelry store robberies in the neighborhood, the elder Lacher refused.

"How about some rings, then?" asked the man.

"I'll show you nothing," said Lacher.

"I'll make you show me," said the man, drawing a pistol and pressing it against Lacher.

As he did so, the nephew jumped from the shop window and running toward the robber, shouted. The uncle also gave a shout. The robber muttered a curse and ran for the door, with both Lachers after him with renewed shouts. As the robber reached the door, with the nephew close behind, he suddenly pulled the trigger of his pistol. The bullet struck the nephew in the side. The robber ran through the sidewalk crowd to the automobile.

"Give them the works," he called to his companions, who had already drawn their pistols.

The nephew, undaunted by the wound in his side and followed by the proprietor, sped out from the store. Their screams brought a crowd toward them on the run. The robbers' car started off; and as the engine roared the bandits let go a volley of bullets. One struck the nephew in the other side of his back as he ran after the car. He sprawled on the sidewalk in front of a drug store, next door.

The robbers fired another volley. Five bullets whizzed past the elder Lacher and splintered the jewelry shop window. Two bullets from a third volley went through the drug store window.

Patrolmen McGowen and Robb of the Fifth Street Police Station on patrol in the neighborhood heard the screams and shots, and seeing the robbers' car head east on Fifth Street, they commandeered an emergency truck of the Consolidated Gas Company and took up the pursuit. As the two cars sped through the crowded street the policemen feared to shoot because of the bystanders. At Avenue C the robbers' automobile made a quick turn on two wheels and disappeared.

A dozen policemen were needed to handle the crowd that gathered around the fallen youth. He was taken away in an ambulance. The robbers obtained no loot. The license number of their car was taken and was said to have been that of a recently stolen automobile.

COLLEGE GRADUATE HELD AS A ROBBER

Confesses Attempt to Hold Up Shoe Store, Saying He Was Out of Work.

Joseph Bernard McNally, 19 years old, who has been occupying a furnished room at 301 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, and who was graduated from Seton Hall, in South Orange, N. J., a year ago, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Jacob Eilperin in the Fifth Avenue Police Court and held in $5,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of felonious assault.

McNally entered the Thom McAn shoe store at 642 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, Thursday evening and asked the manager, George Buchsbaum, to fit him with a pair of shoes. As Buchsbaum stooped over McNally hit him on the head with a heavy iron spike about a foot long. As Buchsbaum fell to the floor McNally sprang to the cash register and was trying to open it when Buchsbaum got to his feet and grappled with him. Passers-by heard the struggle and called Policeman John Hoey.

McNally told the police that he attempted to rob the shoe store because he was out of work and hungry. He said that his parents died when he was twelve years of age and with the money that was left to him he put himself through school.

Inquiry at Seton Hall confirmed McNally's statement that he was a graduate. His address on the school records is given as 185 Washington Park, Brooklyn. At that address it was said that nothing was known of him, although a letter addressed to him there was forwarded to an address in Haverhill, Mass., and later received by McNally. Letters sent to him by a relative also bore the Washington Park address on the reverse side with the name "M. I. Loomis." Letters written to McNally were on the stationery of the Hotel Nichols, Haverhill, Mass. McNally is a member of Company D, Seventy-first Regiment. He at one time was employed by a concern in this city engaged in making aerial surveys.

It was said at the Cumberland Street address that he had been there about three months. He told the landlady that he had been out of work for five weeks and that he had been subsisting on short rations.

SUE FOR INJURIES IN CRASH.

Three Charge Neglect in Wreck Which Killed Princeton Athlete.

Trial was begun yesterday in the Essex County Court at Newark before Justice Smith of a suit for damages against Louis Millman of 511 South Eighteenth Street, Newark, arising from a collision between his machine and another driven by Louis Gordon Norrie, former Princeton polo star, in Neptune Township, Sept. 23, 1923, when Norrie was killed.

Katherine Powey, 20 years old, of 623 North Seventh Street, Newark, who was a passenger in Millman's machine, is asking for $15,000 through her father Anthony, who is seeking $20,000. Isadore Arbeitel of 71 Fairview Avenue, Newark, also a passenger in Millman's machine, is asking for $30,000. All three allege neglect by Millman as the cause of their injuries. Suit for damages has also been filed against Morris Appel of 301 Hunterdon Street, Newark, administrator of the Norrie estate, but it was announced today that it had been withdrawn.

In Norrie's machine at the time of the collision were Miss Adele Ryan, a granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan; Miss Geraldine Thompson and Miss Jane Sales of Richmond, Va., all of whom were hurt.

NEW DRUG TRAFFIC TRICKS.

Silk Shirts and Automobile Inner Tubes Brought Into Use.

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP).—Silk shirts and automobile inner tubes have come into a new use, Federal agents recently discovered in round-ups of unlicensed narcotic peddlers.

Hundreds of ingenious hiding places have been resorted to by the sellers, but the latest device discovered was a portion of an inner tube filled with thousands of grains of morphine. The tube was closed at the ends and completely covered with beeswax.

The silk shirt of bright color has become a weapon of the narcotic agent in trading with peddlers who are willing to accept this type of merchandise instead of money. The illicit trafficker does not keep the shirt long, for it is easy evidence for arrest and the shirt is recaptured for use again in the same manner.

BURGLARS GETTING LOOT BY TRUCKLOAD

ONE $27,000 SILK ROBBERY

Loss in Three Burglaries $12,000, and Seven Other Thefts in Shops Are Reported.

Burglars who use motor trucks in which to carry off their loot have been making a cleanup recently, especially in the fur and garment industries, according to reports that have sifted through the police veil of silence.

One of the places visited by thieves employing trucks was the plant of the Milmar Garment Company on the tenth floor of 22 West Twenty-first Street. Entrance was gained by jimmying the front door. Dresses valued at about $7,000 were taken from this firm and about $10,000 in dresses from two other firms in the building.

The detectives of the West Thirtieth Street Station have another nut to crack in the theft of $3,000 worth of silk from the plant of Krenik & Feigenbaum, manufacturers of ladies' coats, at 122-130 West Twenty-seventh Street. The theft was discovered Thursday morning when employes opened the place. The silk had been kept in a strong-room with a special lock. This lock had been successfully manipulated and the contents of the room were gone.

For the third time since Dec. 27 bandits got away with part of the stock of M. H. Mailhouse, 117 East Twenty-fourth Street, on Saturday. Three armed men tied up three employes of the firm, backed up a truck and drove off with $27,000 worth of fine silk and other goods. They were polite, industrious bandits. They used strong cord with which to make their victims fast, and one of the men told a victim that if he was tying the knots too tight to let him know and he would ease up.

The leader of the three robbers explained that all they wanted was the stock of the firm, and so the victims could keep their valuables. One of the robber trio could not resist the temptation to take the pocketbook of an employe. The latter complained.

"Put that back," was the sharp order of the leader, and he was obeyed.

A burglary suffered by the firm of Adolph Packard, 110th Street and Broadway, several days ago, netted the burglars $2,000. They jimmied the front door and got away with 109 dresses, 25 coats and 2 suits.

The Imperial Clothes Shop at 1,349 First Avenue was another victim of burglars. Entrance was gained by breaking in the front door and no one apparently saw the men when they carried out 120 suits.

Some of the other places reported to have been robbed recently were the Legion Dress Company, 11 West Seventeenth Street; May Goldie, ladies' dress store, 2,166 Broadway; Salzman & Alman, 141 West Twenty-first Street; the Vienna Dress and Costume Company, 54 West Twenty-second Street; the Harris Dress Company, 1,225 Broadway and the Loft candy store, 266 West 125th Street.

INLEHMANN ART SOLD.

Collection Brings 3,719,560 Francs in Paris.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 12.—The sale of the Inlehmann collection was widely attended today, but many prices were disappointing, failing to reach the sums asked. The paintings sold belong to the Flemish Duties Schools of the Middle Ages and Renaissance periods and included seventy-five paintings, which brought 3,719,560 francs.

The familiar Rembrandt, "Zachary in the Temple," reached only 385,000 francs, and "The Study for a White-hall Ceiling," by Rubens, reached 120,000 francs.

Hobbema's "Mill in the Forest" brought 370,000 francs; "The Laughing Child," by Hals, 335,000 francs; "The Wheat Field," by Ruysdael, 210,000 francs; "Oen ter Borch," by Brodeuse, 235,000 francs, and his "Toilette," 325,000 francs.

Cuyp's "Drawbridge" sold for 176,000 francs, nearly twice its appraisal value.

BANISTER Shoes

There is only one solution to an advertising problem:

Find the man!

FIFTEEN years ago nobody loved an alarm clock. But along came a Frenchman named Leroy and transformed this ugly household duckling into a family cavalier.

It took a lot of finesse to make a garrulous disturber of the morning peace seem like a cheery friend; a jolly old pal, even to the sleep-loving sluggard.

But Leroy was an artist in advertising.

Many men and several organizations have carried on this advertising since Leroy laid down his pen. And, to their credit, they have made no attempt to take out of it, that which Leroy inspired into it.

The manufacturer who hired Leroy settled his copy problem for many a year. He found his man.

Two other men, H. P. Williams and George Dyer, put into clothing advertising twenty years ago the best that is in it today. Most clothing advertisers are still drafting their copy from the master patterns of these two advertising designers.

Thus, twice in succession, on its advertising problems, did the clothing business find its man.

A long while ago, Claude Hopkins created a certain type of action advertising which sent people into dealers' stores, while giving the advertiser an immediate coupon count on the number of these dealer-callers. Nearly every attempt that has since been made to put the coupon urge into national advertising has taken something from the Hopkins plan.

Here again, a great advertising need found its answer by finding its man.

The older and wiser an advertiser grows, the more he appreciates that "the man's the thing" in advertising successes. Finding the right agency service is largely a question of finding the right man.

And then making sure that he takes off his coat and does the job without delegating any part of it to sundry and supplementary Georges.

You may find your man on the pay-roll of a big agency. Or you may find him running an agency of his own, selling himself instead of a hired staff.

But the size and nature of his surroundings will have little to do with his usefulness to you.

His real power-plant lies within the man.

The founders of this agency are wedded to the notion that the best advertising is, after all, a personal service task; not to be accomplished by mass production methods.

They concede the fine economic advantage of "group effort" in agency service. But they maintain that, in the final showdown, "conference copy" seldom holds a candle to the job done by the solitary worker who shuts himself up with his problem—and lives with it until he licks it.

The principals in this agency have been major executives in large businesses. Hence they are not awed by the detail-problems of large accounts. They are ready to cheerfully delegate that detail to their ample routine facilities.

But they will not delegate the responsibility for producing good advertising. That responsibility belongs to the principals and they assume it.

To any national advertiser, spending one hundred thousand dollars a year or more in white space, who does not feel he is getting that vital spark in his advertising which only high-voltage personal service can infuse, this is an open bid for an interview.

Lennen & Mitchell, Inc., believe in action advertising.

Do you?
